The Latest in Hypnotism.
Our Vienna correspondent telegraphs: Prof. Kraft Ebing, the director of the department for disease of the mind at the Vienna university, assembled all the Vienna professors and doctors of the faculty on Tuesday to witness an experiment similar to those of Prof. Charcot, in Paris. In an introductory speech he said he believed he had found a means of putting a person of ripe years, at will, back to any stage of life, and extinguishing everything that the mind has taken up since then. A woman of thirty-three was then introduced and was placed on a sofa, and the professor sent her into a hypnotic sleep. He asked her if she remembered everything in her life when she was seven years old. At first she said "No," but on his insisting she promised to try. The professor then woke her up and talked to her in a fatherly way and she spoke with the voice, words and manner of a little girl. He gave her an India rubber ball and doll, with which she seemed delighted and set to play immediately. Requested to write she wrote a school-girl's hand, and questioned when she had been in Vienna before, she said, "Two years ago, 1873, for the exhibition." He told her to remember herself at fifteen, and she put ball and doll away, wrote a pretty hand and spoke with shyness. In the discussion which followed the professors and doctors declared that Prof. Ebing had in no wise proved his case, and it could not be decided what had been the truth and what dissimulation in the woman's performance. The possibility of the professor having wished to deceive his colleagues is altogether out of the question, but it looks very much as if he had deceived himself.—London Daily News.

This is to certify that I have suffered with Rheumatism for three years. I tried all kinds of medicines, but of no use. I purchased one bottle of SCOTT'S CURE FOR RHEUMATISM, and it cured me. I am pleased to recommend it to the public as a sure cure for Rheumatism.

Just as He Wears His Hat.
When a man wears his hat perfectly straight, and nicely adjusted to his head you are safe in believing that he has a corresponding straightforwardness of character. He is a man to be relied upon—steady, business-like, and with a well-balanced temperament.
If a hat slopes at the back its wearer has good brain power; tilted habitually forward it indicates preponderance of the material nature. The man who places his hat on one side is self-assertive.

Then there are some men whose hats are always too large for them, and were it not for their ears would pretty well smother them. Such men are usually wrapped up in their thoughts as they are in their hats. They are of a philosophic cast of mind, and live a good deal out of the world, for they are generally trying to solve some mighty problem—mighty to them—that not one person in a thousand cares an atom about.
Other men go to the opposite extreme, for their hats are invariably too small for them, and are just perched on the top of their heads, the owners of which are mincing, affected individuals, with, as a rule an inordinate love of dress and any amount of self-esteem.
The man who throws his hat on his head anyhow is a careless, happy-go-lucky indolent character. He generally has his hands in his pockets, and you can see any number of his genus lounging at the street corners.

A Violent Hail Storm.
ANDOVER, N. B., July 19.—A violent hail storm visited the California Settlement and Grand Falls Portage on the 12th inst., doing a great deal of damage to crops in that vicinity. The storm lasted forty minutes, the sharp pieces of ice being from the size of a robin's egg to half the size of a hen's egg. The following farmers of the above named places lost all or most of their crops: Charles Shorey, John Hart, John Wolverson, Chas. Ross, Geo. Parks, Alex. Murchison, Fred Langley, Alex. Downey, Wm. Langley, Andrew Downey, George Langley, Lijah Wright, Edward Peichie, Robert Hallet, John Langley, James Dunn, James Barnes. In some places, such as hollows, the hail-stones were two feet deep. Trees were stripped of their foliage and left standing without a leaf. Windows were broken, and the hail was so sharp that even the hay was cut clean to the roots. The like of it was never known here before. Fortunately the path of the storm was not more than half a mile in width, and crossed the country in a southeasterly direction, passing over the St. John river at the mouth of Little river, doing considerable damage through Tilley Settlement and on the Tobique.

Disgrace and Death.

Mackinaw, Mich., July 18.—Lillian Saulte, an 18-year-old girl employed as chambermaid on the island, committed suicide last evening by taking laudanum. She leaves two very compromising letters implicating a soldier at the fort, who, she said, outraged her Friday night while returning from a village dance. She couldn't stand the disgrace and has for days been pleading to have him put in prison. The letters are of a heart-rendering kind, telling of her struggles as an orphan and her battle for her honor. Her only relatives reside at Petrolia, Ont., where the remains will be sent. Officers have the man named in the letters in custody and he will be given an examination at the coroner's inquest.

William Badgeley, the young soldier now in custody on the island, charged with assault on Lillian Saulte, was found hidden last night in the hold of a Canadian bound steamer.
The coroner's inquest is now being held, and very damaging evidence is being given by the girl's companions. But her person and his face show marks of a desperate struggle. An autopsy was held this morning by Drs. Bogan, Bailey, and Surgeon Gardner, of Fort Mackinac. Their testimony goes to show that the girl met her death by laudanum poison, and that a criminal assault had been committed.
Talk of lynching Badgeley has been prevalent among the other soldiers.

Lillian Saulte arrived here from Detroit three weeks ago and had always borne an excellent character. Badgeley admits taking the girl to the soldiers' dance and escorting her part way home, when he says they had some trouble and he left her.

Cut it Short.

If it is unnecessary to say a thing, why say it.
"It is altogether needless to enter on any argument to sustain this proposition," says the learned judge, and forthwith enters on one of great length and dullness.
"I deem it entirely unnecessary to combat the gentleman's views," says the orator, and, so saying, goes on to combat them till some rude person cries, "Sit down, please!"
"I will not stop to enlarge," observes the preacher, and then he stops, and enlarge is no name for it.
"It goes without saying," remarks the editor, and then, for fear it will not go, says it over and over again for a column or two.
"Tell me not in mournful numbers," sings the poet, and straightway informs himself in many unwhimsical stanzas of the very things he did not want to know.
What is the necessity, the cruel necessity, for the unnecessary thing?

How to go to Sleep.

The activity of the brain is in direct proportion to the amount of blood contained in the vessels of the brain, and anything that lessens the amount of blood in these vessels will induce sleepiness, while the greater the flow of blood the greater will be the flow of ideas. This is comparatively a new discovery, for it used to be held that much blood in the brain caused sleep. Dr. William Hammond has however, demonstrated the fallacy of this latter idea by a description of the results obtained by experiments with instruments of precision, one of which was his own invention, which showed that the flow of blood to the brain was coincident with the degree of mental activity displayed in the subject.
If a person lies down, thus allowing the blood to flow more readily to the brain, and cannot sleep, let him get up, sit in a rocking chair and throw his head back and he will probably go to sleep very quickly. Some people have found by experience that they can sleep better after eating, and the doctor explained this by saying that the blood not being able to be in two places at the same time and having to go to the stomach to digest the food has to leave the brain, and therefore sleep follows.

Mr. Mercier's Position.

BOSTON, July 18.—A largely-attended reception to Honorable Mr. Mercier explorer of Quebec, was held in the Hotel Clarendon parlors yesterday. In the afternoon Mr. Mercier called upon the city officials at the City Hall and in the evening was entertained at dinner by President Johnson of the St. Jean de Baptiste Society and Arthur Tessier. In brief after dinner remarks, Mr. Mercier referred to the condition of the people of Canada and said independence was her only salvation, especially as far as Quebec is concerned. Annexation England would not grant, and as Canada stood she was powerless to make any advancement, for that country was unable to make any treaty broad enough to suit the commercial views of both countries. But if Canada were to become independent she could make treaties with the United States to the advantage of both. Mr. Mercier then explained his position while he was premier of the province of Quebec, saying he always endeavored to pursue a policy of true liberality in the interest of the people.

A Child Saved.

My little boy was taken very bad with diarrhoea, he was very delicate and got so low we had no hope of his life, but a lady friend recommended Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and although he could only bear a few drops at a time he got well. It saved my child.

At Maccan, Wednesday the storm was the worst that has ever taken place about here in the summer. At eight o'clock Thursday morning the ground was still covered with hail stones of great size and in many places there were windrows of hail 6 inches deep. The platform at Maccan was being shovelled off yesterday morning when the train passed and some hail was gathered up and brought to Amherst, much of it was then half an inch in diameter.
