

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC AND Stomach and Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar. It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nerve tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, and the bowels.

IT IS A GREAT REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF

- Nervousness, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Sick Headache, Female Weakness, Nervous Chills, Paralysis, Nervous Paroxysms and Nervous Choking, Hot Flashes, Palpitation of the Heart, Mental Despondency, Sleeplessness, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervousness of Females, Nervousness of Old Age, Neuralgia, Pains in the Heart, Pains in the Back, Failing Health, Broken Constitution, Debility of Old Age, Indigestion and Dyspepsia, Heartburn and Sour Stomach, Weight and Tenderness in Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Frightful Dreams, Dizziness and Ringing in the Ears, Weakness of Extremities and Fainting, Impure and Impoverished Blood, Boils and Carbuncles, Scrofula, Scrofulous Swellings and Ulcers, Consumption of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Lungs, Bronchitis and Chronic Cough, Liver Complaint, Chronic Diarrhoea, Delicate and Scrofulous Children, Summer Complaint of Infants.

All these and many other complaints cured by this wonderful Nervine Tonic.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangement.

REBECCA WILKINSON, of Brownsville, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly, with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which done me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world."

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITUS' DANCE OR CHOREA.

My daughter, eleven years old, was severely afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

JOHN T. MISH, Montgomery County, Ind., says: "I have used the Nervine Tonic for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and it has cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the one and only one great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

Mrs. Ella A. Beaton, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon. If you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

CHAPTER III.—Continued.

She could not, by law, herself provide for Hartland, either by leaving all or part of her ample fortune. It had principally come to her, as to Caroline, through their mother, and to their mother's family it must in some form return, as both knew; but all or any of her sister's children could inherit from their aunt.

"In order to be quite certain about it, I put it twice to Mr. Steward, sister, and that in the very plainest language. I enquired of him whether I was at perfect liberty to leave my fortune to any one of your dear girls, to the exclusion of the others. It seemed rather cruel to exclude the others," (parenthetically), "but then I did not name any one; and so as it may be any one, so it may be any others who would be excluded. That being so, I think it could hardly be called unfair,—could it Caroline?"

Caroline had smiled, for it had been Julia speaking. "Well, my dear," with revived animation, "he said there was no hindrance of any kind. I might select any member of your family, son or daughter,—(but I did not want a son, as I told him—I said it was one of my dear nieces whom I wished to select). However, he said it was all one; I might make my choice, and as soon as I had chosen, he could have a will made out. But now, my dear Caroline, comes the difficulty. How can I make my choice, when Hartland has not yet made his choice? Oh, my dear, I beg your pardon. I am too gross; but pray forgive me,—I forgot myself in my anxiety. Pray, my dear Caroline, understand that it is only your good, our good, the good of the family, I have at heart. I am carried away by it. Of course it is not for Hartland to choose—"

"And of course he may decline doing anything of the kind." Lady Caroline had not cared two straws for the outspokenness, and had only been ruminating with bent brow on the feasibility of the scheme. Her pride was not for Julia.

"We may be quite open with each other," she had declared presently. "You may say to me what you please, Julia; but you will, you must, be discreet towards him. Whatever happens, it will be absolutely necessary"—with upraised finger—"to be discreet with Hartland."

"I must say something to him, you know."

"Impossible! Not a syllable."

"But, my dear, did you not see his last letter? He only proposes stopping a few weeks, and then," tearfully, "shutting up the Abbey, sending away the servants, and going back to India."

"Turning you out of it?"

"He does not know of my existence. He would not do such a thing for the world, if he did. 'I want him to live with me. We should get on together excellently, I know; and it would make things smooth all round.'"

"But why need anything be said as to the future?"

"It is not likely"—Julia had been unusually sagacious—"that any young man would throw up his profession, to be dependent on an elderly relative, unless there were some sort of settlement."

"You are right," Lady Caroline had interrupted, brusquely. "Still, it is awkward."

"For you it might be, but for me it need not at all. I put it to him as purely my own idea; I tell him that I have an arrangement—a family arrangement—in my mind, which I should like him to think over, and let me presently have his opinion of it. Then I talk of your—of our dear girls—praise them—"

"I should leave that alone."

"You would not even tell him they are and pretty?"

"I should let him find out for himself."

"But he may just see them?"

"Oh yes, he may see them,"—even Lady Caroline had laughed. "They are not exactly enclosed in a nunnery, my dear, that you should look so despairing. He may see them, and talk to them—occasionally. He will not care for it often; they have none of them anything to say—"

"Dear! I find them so delightful."

"Ah, they are fond of you," with softened tone; "you draw out what is in them I suppose; it is not everyone who can. But to return to Hartland; you should lay the matter in a purely business-like manner before him. Tell him what you can do, and what you would be disposed to do, and let him judge for himself. It is no matter of sentiment—"

"Oh, my dear Caroline!"

"In the meantime," Lady Caroline had prosaically continued, "the new Lord Hartland will be short of money."

"Oh, that will be all right,"—Julia had recovered her early spirits and ardour,—that I can do—I mean I can make him comfortable at once. While I live, I make a Hartland a handsome allowance, and also keep up the Abbey entirely at my own expense. As long as he continues single, I reside there—as I have always done, you know—keep house for him, and receive his friends. Then when he marries Rosamund—or any one of my dear nieces—in order to enable him to do so, I step forward and settle all I have upon her after my death."

"You are very good, Julia, and the young people ought to be grateful to you. There is, of course, one person yet to be considered—"

"Your husband? Certainly."

"No; Hartland. What if his affections are already engaged?"

"Then Julia's face had fallen."

"I hardly think that can be," she had murmured; "he is only twenty-five."

"Twenty-five is a most susceptible age."

"Very true. But still—somehow, my dear, I feel that what I say is true. He is free,—I have a presentiment that he is free, and that he will marry my own dear little Rosamund."

"There was no more to be said."
