ENGLAND AND IRELAND.

The Home Rule Bill has practically passed the Commons and in a few days will be sent up to the House of Lords. That it will be there summarily rejected appears to be the general opinion. The bitterness which characterized the debate in the Commons, and the bad feeling thereby aroused, will no doubt tend to strengthen the hostility of the members of the upper chamber to the measure, and with an overwhelming Tory majority in that body it is predicted the bill will be thrown overboard in six days. In such an event the government will probably resign at once, there will be an appeal to the people and the battle for Home Rule will be fought over again in the constituencies. Meanwhile the Tory leaders are appealing to the electors through the press. Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour have each endeavored to make out "a case against Home Rule." One of the "strong points" of their argument is that in the event of war between England and some other European power, the temptation would be strong to Ireland if in a state of semi-independence to give either active or passive aid to the enemies of England. United Ireland replies to this argument, points out just what the Irish expect and what they demand ultimately, and declares that until this is granted England can never expect the friendship of the Irish people. It says:—But let us come to the real question, whether or not the people of Ireland would sympathize with England or with England's enemy, in this supposed war. Well, it would all depend. We are fighting for our National rights, and mean to win as much or as many of them as we can. As we cannot have separation, we shall try to secure the place to which we are entitled in the Empire men of Irish blood have done so much to make. The present Home Rule Bill is no final settlement of the Irish question, and for so small an installment of justice we can hardly afford to forget our whole past. If English Liberalism is of opinion, with some of its leaders, that Ireland is entitled only to a large measure of local government under the guise of a legislature, then it will never make Ireland a friend of England.

If, on the other hand, it is wise enough to acknowledge that Ireland is a nation, with the rights of a nation, and probably in the near future with as great a claim to shape the destinies of the English-speaking world as Hungary has to shape those of the Dual Empire, it may make Ireland a friend of England with ease. That Liberalism grasps this aspect of the situation is not clear, but if we may judge by the remarks the other day of the Daily Chronicle that the present Home Rule Bill is only the first stage of Home Rule, and a mere provisional arrangement, there are men in Mr. Gladstone's party who know the truth. And the truth is—and we say it, remembering the foolish utterances of Mr. Michael Davitt and Mr. William O'Brien on the subject—that not until England really and truly, not in words, but in hard deeds, recognizes our place as one of the three peoples of the British Empire, can there be any such thing as international hand-shaking.

THE SUPREME COURT VACANCY.

The vacancy on the bench of the Supreme Court of Canada caused by the death of Mr. Justice Patterson, will, it is generally conceded, be filled by the appointment of a New Brunswicker, and there is no little speculation among lawyers and politicians as to who will be the lucky man. It has been the general thought, though not the invariable rule, to fill Supreme Court vacancies by appointing judges from the Supreme Court benches of the provinces, and there is every reason to believe that the general rule will not be departed from in this instance. The opinion seems to be pretty general that Mr. Justice King's chances of promotion are good, though it is said a majority of the Conservative members of the province favor the appointment of Judge Palmer. The appointment of either of these two judges would leave a vacancy on the bench of our own province, and here is where the greater contest would come in. It is understood that in the event of such a vacancy there will be a number of applicants and a warm fight for the position. St. John would furnish several applicants, and the outside counties would, no doubt, also contribute their share. The names of Mr. E. McLeod, M. P. for the city and county of St. John, and Mr. F. E. Barker, ex-M. P., have been mentioned before in connection with the New Brunswick Supreme Court, and in case of a vacancy it may fairly be presumed that these two gentlemen will be among the applicants. It is also pretty certain that County Court Judge Landry will be again an applicant, and his chances would appear to be good. The fact that the last appointment was from the County of Westmorland will be somewhat against him, but Judge Landry's strong card is that he is a Catholic, and the Catholics of the province are unrepresented on the Supreme Bench. It is understood that a majority of the North Shore members, including a majority of the Catholic members from this province, will insist on his appointment, and, with Mr. Lawlor out of the field, Judge Landry will be a strong candidate. His friends, in expectation of a vacancy, have already put his name forward for the position, and we may expect further developments as soon as it is definitely settled that there will be a vacancy. Judge Landry is not satisfied with his present position. He is after a Supreme Court judgeship, and will make a strong fight to attain the coveted position. He has behind him a strong and influential backing, and altogether his chances look promising.

Moniteur Acadien:—Several of our citizens took advantage of the presence of Hon. Messrs. Foster and Angers at Shediac to claim from them some recognition of the Catholic element in future appointments to the Supreme Court Bench. Senator Poirier was spokesman for the delegation, which Mr. Josiah Wood, M. P., presented to the honorable ministers at the Weldon House. In measured terms he recalled that hitherto no Catholic had been appointed to the Supreme Court Bench of this province though they form one third of the population, that there had been and were still men capable and worthy to fill the position. He mentioned, among others, the names of the late Judge Waters and of the present Judge Landry, whose title to the honor is incontestable, and whose promotion would be satisfactorily regarded by the North Shore counties. Hon. Mr. Foster, Hon. Mr. Angers and Mr. Wood followed, all admitting the justice of the claim made. The ministers added that there was no vacancy now existing, but if one should occur they would be pleased to submit to the government the representations made to them.

The news that the Behring Sea tribunal has decided in favor of Great Britain on every point at issue in the dispute will be gratifying to Canadians. It has been pointed out that this report cannot be anything more than surmise, as the commission is sitting in secrecy. Reporters, however, generally find out just about what is going on in such matters, and the report may be accepted as pretty nearly correct.

St. Louis Creamery.

Mr. Cyrillia Daigle, salesman for the St. Louis, Kent Co., butter and cheese factory, sends THE REVIEW a crock of the butter made at the factory. The butter is fresh, sweet and inviting, and can be heartily recommended to buyers. St. Louis is one of the finest agricultural parishes in the county and offers a very promising field to this enterprise. The factory has been running three weeks, under the management of Mr. W. H. Middlemiss, an expert from the state of New York, and several sales have already been made. The farmers of the parish can now, instead of manufacturing their own butter, take it to the creamery where it can be handled much more promptly and a greater quantity of butter taken from the same quantity of milk. The milk that is left is returned to the farmers and can be carried away within a very few minutes after it has been brought to the factory. It is for calves, pigs and fattening purposes almost as good as it originally was. The butter is put up in tubs of 25, 50 and 70 lbs. Next season operations will be carried on on a much more extensive scale. This factory is so far the only enterprise of the kind doing work in the county of Kent, and there is no doubt but that it will be highly successful and will tend to more fully develop the farming and dairying industries of the parish. Other parishes are moving in the same direction, and before long it is to be hoped there will be an establishment of this kind in every parish.

Wife and Companion.

A man nowadays wants something more than a good housewife and mother of his children. Time was when the education of men generally being very indifferent, they were not particularly sensible of any great deficiency of education in their spouses, and were content when the erudition extended no deeper than a prayer book and a recipe book. But times have changed, and with the progress of education comes a longing for a companion, and for one whose face does not assume a blank appearance when anything more subtle than baby clothes forms the subject of conversation. Woman's influence.—Women exert a far greater power than that exerted by the ballot. If her influence is exerted to bring souls to Christ, it is a mighty influence for good. God has made her the teacher and guardian of children from infancy until they start out in life for themselves. Children always go to the mothers for sympathy, to share their griefs and joys, and look to them for advice. Every mother has the power to teach her son to be true to himself, his God, and his country. The example we set our little ones is either for good or evil, and will make or mar their future lives, as the case may be. The first step to virtue is to love it in another.

A kind heart is a fountain of gladness, making everything in the vicinity freshen into smiles.

There is nothing of so great importance as the good qualities of one to whom we join ourselves for life. They not only make our present state agreeable, but often determine our happiness to all eternity. CELIA.

Queer Marital Arrangement in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 2.—A romance without a parallel in fiction is about to be consummated here between the families of Walter Wilkinson and Charles MacAllister. The families have long been connected with the most exclusive circles of Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. MacAllister were very intimate with Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson. This has finally resulted in an arrangement by which there are to be mutual divorces in each family, and after that cross marriages—that is to say, Mrs. MacAllister is to marry Mr. Wilkinson, and Mrs. Wilkinson is to marry Mr. MacAllister. The first marriage will occur the latter part of this week, and the ex-wife and ex-husband will be among the guests.

The affair has come about through a natural development of affairs and has not been attended with the slightest scandal. For this season the parties maintain their social positions, and the double weddings will be attended by the best people.

Mr. MacAllister is one of the wealthiest men in Baltimore. He is now at his shooting box in New Jersey, but will come this week to attend the nuptials of his ex-wife to his friend Wilkinson, and also to prepare for his own nuptials with his friend Wilkinson's ex-wife.

The department of railways has received complete returns of the intercolonial railway traffic for the year ending 30th June. The statement, while not quite so favorable as first reported, is a most encouraging one and indicates that the reforms inaugurated by Hon. Mr. Haggart have inured to the benefit of the Canadian taxpayers. The following is a statement for the twelve months just closed:—Earnings, $3,065,499.09; working expenses, $3,045,317.50; leaving net profit on the year's transactions of $20,181.46. The figures for the previous year were as follows:—Earnings, $2,945,441; working expenses, $3,439,377, or a deficit of $493,935. During a portion of the year 1892-3 the reforms inaugurated by Hon. Mr. Haggart were in operation, as was evidenced by the material reduction in the loss over 1890-91, when it was $684,946. The average loss for the past six years was $440,000. The statement just issued is all the more encouraging from the fact that the earnings are the greatest in the history of the railway.
