Aug. 5th .- Your correspondent takes this place, and Mr. Henry Richard, of short time. Grand Digue. The services at the altar were conducted by Rev. Fr. Masse, a large and representative gathering of the friends and relatives of the interested parties being present to witness the occasion. I concur with all in wishing the happy couple a long and prosperous

On Thursday night the large two and one-half story dwelling-house, along with the out houses and stables, owned by Mrs. Thomas Elliott were burned to the ground. The origin of the fire is not known. A considerable quantity of hay was stored in the barns, and this, together with farming lately disappears. The first dose greatly implements, carriages, sleighs, etc., was a benefits. 75 cents. For sale by W. W. total loss. Owing to the rapidity with which the flames spread very few of the household effects were saved. Mrs. Elliott has the sympathy of the whole community as only a small portion of her heavy loss was covered by insurance. The above mentioned buildings in connection with the adjoining lands, were formerly in possession of the late Thomas Irving, and was popularly known as the "Irving farm," then considered one of the finest properties in the county. The house alone cost upwards of three thousand dollars.

Cocagne at present, the thrifty sound of chester with the remains. the "carpenter's bustle," I mean, of course, the bustle that he makes in plying his tools, and the reverberating echoes of the smithy's anvil are not altogether unheard. In fact, by taking the calm philosophical view of things, one cannot but fall ander the happy impression that there yet remains with us, with all our faults, a certain positive amount of activity and enterprise. From my isolated, though pleasant position, the hard seat of a very cranky little skiff, out upon the surface of our beautiful bay, I can discern in the hazy distance no less than a full score of Roberts farm of 100 acres at Mill Creek. fine new buildings, some just begun, some almost finished, and others fully equipped and ready for service. Among the most Artist Mitchell is making the bank buildstaunch and apacious stable erected, at no paint, small cost, by Rev. Fr. X. Cormier. This building is to be a model in every respect, and is well worthy of imitation. Then comes the commodious looking cottage of Mr. Comeau, in close promixity to which towers the spacious ware-house and stable of Messrs. M. Bilodeau and P. Bourgeois respectively. Many others there are, suffered from dysentery for some months of course, and deserving of note, but I shall mention them later on, when I see more or them.
