North Branch, Acadiaville. APRIL 3.—The spring crows have arrived and are causing much disturbance with their caw, caw, caw.

The snow is about all gone. Hauling broke up too early to get all the lumber out of the woods.

A quiet wedding took place here last week. The invited were not numerous but all enjoyed a good time.

A horse was left as dead in the woods by its owner here a few days ago. Next morning the owner was agreeably surprised to see the animal at his barn in apparently good health.

Our four schools are all in operation this term. We have not seen an inspector however for three or four years. What has become of the new man?

A new post office has been opened here through the efforts of our new M.P. Mr. Calixte Daigle has been appointed postmaster. This has been long asked for and nearly everyone here is well satisfied.

We are not indebted to "Patriot," for if he had had his way the new office would have been located at Myer's, or at Trout Brook.

Councillor Barriault has left the county and taken up his residence in the neighboring county of Northumberland. It is said he left on account of a difficulty over the location of a road. His followers will regret to hear of his departure, as it will be difficult to find any one to take his place.

Messrs. Chappell Bros. got a large quantity of lumber cut and hauled here this winter. They will saw and haul it to the line during the summer. We trust our local representatives will grant us all the money possible to keep the roads in repair.

We have not yet been granted a third member, but we understand that one of the candidates defeated at the last election would like to act in that capacity. If so he can use his best efforts in our behalf.

We feel comfortable in a new station house in Acadiaville, this winter. The shed is always full of freight for shipment to Carleton and St. Louis.

We hear that Mr. Cyril Cormier of Acadiaville Siding, came home a few days ago minus a hand but with $2000 to replace it, paid by a railway company.

Broken arms, heads, and necks, evidently cost more in the States than they do here.

Trade is dull at present. A few may fly but it is hard to get them to "flock together."

WELCOME.

Can You Think? Can you think of a worse disease than dyspepsia, it plunges its victim in gloom and despondency, makes him a burden to himself and others, and causes constipation and bad blood.

Yet Burdock Blood Bitters cures dyspepsia or indigestion, and has done so in thousands of cases.

Portland, Me. MARCH 25.—We are pleased to see Mrs. T. A. Sweeney and little daughter back again after an extensive trip down east.

She is accompanied by her friend Miss Mary E. Devereaux, who has accepted a situation in the shop of Mr. L. T. Hawkins.

Business is quite rushing in our little town at present. Mr. O. F. Bailey is erecting a new carriage factory which will employ about one hundred men.

There is also a tooth pick factory being erected at Merrill's Corner, which will give employment to quite a number of men and girls.

There is to be an entertainment and dance given by the Odd Fellows, City Hall, Woodfords, in which Mr. H. A. Sweeney and his sisters the Misses Louise and Adelaide are to take part.

Dyspepsia Cured. GENTLEMEN.—I was troubled with dyspepsia for about four years. I noticed an advertisement of Burdock Blood Bitters, so I started to use it and soon found that there was nothing to equal it. It took just three bottles to effect a perfect cure in my case.

Mr. James Brown will remove his mill from Bass River to Richibucto, soon.

Progressive Bible parties have been recommended by a Western diocese, suggested by progressive whist and euchre parties.

The parties interested in getting the Buctouche railway station removed to the south side of the river, failed to get their work in last Monday.

In the St. John Telegraph of the 4th instant, Rev. J. S. Allen, of Richibucto, formerly of Bathurst, corrects some of Hon. Mr. Blair's misstatements re the Bathurst school difficulty.

More Thorough Tillage. It is not probable that the chief mistake of many American farmers is in spreading his labor and time over too many acres.

Broad planting and large crops do not all ways go together. Time and labor are consumed in planting extra acres that would pay much greater net profit if given to thorough tillage of a fair sized crop.

Times and conditions have changed since Herace Greeley could wisely advise farmers to plant a half-acre more in corn to meet the demands of a civil war.

Much new soil was then in cultivation, and some neglect could not ruin a crop. To-day it is only by constant and thorough tillage that we can get an excess in value of crop over our expenses.

The plowing, tillage and reaping of shortened crops leave aught of profit, but a slight addition of labor at the right time changes a moderate yield to a large one, and an unprofitable to a profitable one.

The temptation is to plant more than we can properly cultivate. Let us produce large crops, but the only sure and remunerative way is to add more thorough tillage.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day. South American Rheumatic Cure for Rheumatism and Neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days.

Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cents. For sale by W. Short, druggist.

PROCKINGS FROM GRIP

Talk is Cheaper.—Mr. Verbose—"Silence is golden." Miss Cautious—"I suppose that is why you give us so little of it."

The Reason Why.—"Editors never send my poems back." "That's easily explained. No doubt you forget to enclose stamps."

Good For The Audience.—Clara—"I'm getting uneasy about my sore throat." Maud—"Oh, it's nothing serious." Clara—"But I am afraid it will prevent my talking at the opera to-night."

Irony.—Guffies—"Say, conductor, you ain't running this car on time this morning." Conductor—"Guess not. What do you suppose the rails are for?"

Not his Business.—Goodum—"Do you expect to fill a drunkard's grave?" Old Soak—"Not much, (hic) 'sh too hard work. Whash matter wiz er blooming shexton?"

Trials of an Artist.—D'Auber—"Well, I sold my picture for what it was worth." Smeers—"That was rough on you. How are you going to keep the wolf from the door?"

Unaccountable. Trollcar—"What's the trouble between you and Snarler? He was abusing you like a pick-pocket yesterday." Gafflek—"Was he though? That's strange. I never did the fellow a good turn in my life."

On Good Authority.—Tommy—"Ma, I thought you said it was wrong to fight?" Mother—"Yes, my son. Fighting is very wicked." Tommy—"No it ain't. I heard the preacher read out of the Bible this morning: 'H't h'is eye, Peter, be not afraid.'"

A True Friend of Labour.—O'Hara—"It's the foin politician O'Toole is. It really do one good to shake hands wid him." Flannagan—"It do indeed, especially at election times. He always laves a two dollar bill in the workin' man's fist then."

Thoughtful Husband.—Wife (preparing to retire)—"What on earth are you doing?" Husband (turning his pockets inside out)—"Trying to set your mind at rest so that you will get a good night's sleep. I want to show you that there is nothing in my pockets."

At Sir Hoggery's Dinner Party.—Chappie—"Ah, you hear old man? Awfully mixed crowd, isn't it? There are actually a couple of tailahs heah, by Jove." Cholley—"You don't tell me, That's just splendid, you know! Shall get onah host to give me an introduction to one of them and go wound to-morrow and ordah a new suit."

A Wise Suggestion. The young man had married the rich man's daughter, and wasn't killing himself with work to support her. One day the father called him up to call him down.

"Look here," he said emphatically, "why don't you go to work?" "I don't have to," the son-in-law replied, with brazen effrontery.

"Well, you will have to." "Why will I?" "Because, sir, I can't live always to support you."

"But you will have us something?" "Not much, I won't. There won't be anything to leave."

The son-in-law was alarmed. "Great Jupiter," he exclaimed, "you don't mean to tell me that you have nothing?"

"That's about the size of it." The son-in-law devoted himself to profound thought for several seconds.

"I have a suggestion to offer," he said, in a business-like manner. "What is it?" asked the old gent.

"Well, I suggest that you take out, say, $100,000 life insurance on yourself to save wear and tear on my mind."

Napoleonic Economy. "It seems to me," said a friend of the bank president, "that your cashier is most too extravagant for safety."

"How?" inquired the president, looking up over his spectacles. "Well, he's building two or three new houses; he is buying unimproved real estate; he owns a lot of railroad stock, and interested in various schemes."

"That's economy, my dear sir," explained the president. "Economy, nothing," protested the friend. "His salary is only $2,500, isn't it?"

"That's all." "Well, how the dickens can he spend $10,000 or more every year?"

The president took off his glasses and wiped them carefully. "Um-er," he replied, "only by the most careful economy, my boy. It takes an economist, I tell you, to do that. Now, if he were getting $10,000 a year and saved $2,500 for investment, there wouldn't be anything at all in it, but to do it the other way is Napoleonic, my boy, Napoleonic."

The Day After Christmas. Visitor.—Well, Willy, did you have a good time yesterday? Willy (in disgust).—No; I ain't half as sick as I was last Christmas.

The Light-Headed Youth. The clock struck 11 and the young man rose to go. "Is it possible I have been here so long?" he murmured apologetically.

"Oh, do you look at it in that way?" suggested the young lady with sudden coolness.

"Such a waste of time," he continued, stumbling madly on to destruction. "Sir! if you—"

"Of your time, my dear miss," he gasped on the brink, and was saved from going over.

"Don't mention it," she said sweetly, and they parted as friends, but he realized that it was a narrow escape.

What She Will Say. "You think you're wonderfully good," said Mr. Scapgrace to his wife, "but what will you say when you meet me in Heaven?"

"Well," she responded, "I'll say: 'How did you manage to get here?'"

Not Unkissed. First quidnunc.—"Did the town authorities take any appropriate action on the death of Serrage the 'Buffalobore'?"

Second quidnunc.—"Yes; they had the fire-bell rung while the funeral was going on."

Kouchibouguac. APRIL 4.—On Monday last Mr. McMaster, farmer here, was surprised to see a large bear crossing the river from Sullivan's farm.

He at once sent for a neighbor who did not credit the statement; at first Bruin walked right through the field in close proximity to Mr. Morrel's farm.

Mr. Morrel sent to Mr. Little for his rifle, but Mr. Bruin took the hint and cleared away in a north-easterly direction.

A number of young men pursued him but their efforts to capture him were unavailing. He was last seen crossing the post road near McIntyre's.

He is described as being about four years old, and it is said he was first aroused near Trout Brook.

Hugh Grogan, and James R. Kennedy, arrived from North Stratford last Friday. They may not return to the States for some time.

Miss Lizzie Grogan, paid a visit to friends in Kouchibouguac last Sunday. St. Margarets people are highly satisfied with her conduct as teacher.
