PREPARE FOR THE WORST.

Dr. Janeway's Advice Respecting the Coming of Cholera.

In speaking of the likelihood of cholera gaining a foothold in America this year, Dr. Janeway, of New York, tersely advises everybody to be prepared for the worst. This may seem at the first glance the talk of an alarmist, but it is in reality sound advice. There is no cause for panic, but a systematic preparation in view of a possible epidemic of cholera is really essential. Quarantine regulations need to be observed. The work of the scavenger should extend to every hole and corner of cities and towns. An uncontaminated water supply is essential. The matter of sewerage is important. But there is yet another and also very important consideration. It is an undisputed fact that disease of any kind, and especially such a plague as cholera, will foster most quickly, and with the most deadly effect, upon an already diseased or debilitated system. It therefore becomes the duty of every person to as far as possible secure himself or herself from its ravages, by confronting the dreaded enemy with a strong and healthy physical system. Comparatively few persons find themselves in that condition at this season of the year. The vast majority, indeed it may be said that all persons, find it necessary to fortify themselves by the use of some remedial agency, to restore lost vigor and vitality and so be literally prepared for the worst. The grateful testimony of thousands has established beyond dispute that no more effective combination for this purpose is offered to the public than Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills. These are standard remedies, the formulas of which are endorsed by leading physicians on both sides of the border; and they present to everyone at moderate cost the most efficient means of regaining perfect health. They revitalize the blood, stimulate the digestive organs to regular and perfect action, restore to the nerves that force and strength which they have lost, and remove from the system all traces and effects of debility. No time should be lost in hesitation or to make a choice between remedies; for there is no other agency so sure and so effective as Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills. They are within the reach of all classes, and now is the time to secure the boon of restored health which they place within easy grasp.

Those suffering from indigestion are the first to be attacked by cholera. K. D. C. is the Greatest Cure of the Age for indigestion. It is the best cholera preventive.

Oyster Culture.

The English experts appointed by the government to inspect the oyster beds of the Maritime provinces have made their report, and few points were made which have not been already touched upon in these columns. The grounds possess great natural wealth but have been greatly damaged by indiscriminate raking and by the operations of the mussel mud diggers. During the whole inspection the experts did not see "any death or marine enemy to the oyster, which is very remarkable over such an extensive area of ground." Many of the grounds are not at present in a fit condition to plant oysters upon. It is suggested that they be thoroughly cleaned by dredges as used in England. These instruments always improve and enlarge the beds, and also bring up oysters at any depth of water. When introduced in the Dominion it is predicted they will supersede the rake and open a new feature in the oyster industry. The culture of oysters is carried on most profitably in both England and France, and with proper official supervision and assistance, we are led to believe that the whole coast of New Brunswick, from Caracquette to Bay Verte and the shores of Prince Edward Island, as well as a great many places in Nova Scotia, could be made to yield a handsome revenue. In some places grass, weeds and soft mud are to be found where once existed famous oyster beds; this is largely the effect of mud digging, which will have to be restricted if the oyster industry is to be actively encouraged. Of Richmond Bay the inspectors say: "This ground covers an extensive area, and is nothing short of a gold mine; it is very prolific. Some of the beds are large, consisting of many acres, the stock upon them comparing well with cultivated grounds: the resources appear to be enormous for the beds are well stocked with oysters and oyster brood, which we find of a good quality, and in a healthy condition, growing rapidly." The regulations suggested are—

1. Boats engaged in the oyster fishery should be duly licensed, registered and timbered with the respective ports to which they belong, having a number painted in large figures on the boat, as well as her name, in the same manner as is done in the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Holland and other European countries. The above system answers admirably and most effectually in British and continental waters. It seems to be an excellent way of preserving this and other fishing industries.
2. Licenses might be granted to oyster fishermen; each license having a list of rules printed at the foot, such as: No round oysters to be landed under two inches in diameter, or long oysters under three inches in length, under penalty of a fine for each offense. The rule would apply only to localities where the above size could be defined, as sizes vary according to different waters, but the above rule would apply to all places visited by me and mentioned in this report.

3. No fishing for oysters should be allowed on Sunday, nor at any time during the close season.

4. The number of each fishing boat to correspond with the license held by them. With the assistance of the above rules a record of boats and men could be kept showing the number of people engaged in this industry, and whether it prospered or not. It would also be useful to fishery officers, for the purpose of detecting boats poaching during the close season, or fishing on licensed or reserved grounds.—Journal of Commerce.

"I Am So Tired"

Is a common exclamation at this season. There is a certain bracing effect in cold air which is lost when the weather grows warmer; and when nature is renewing her youth, her actions feel dull, sluggish and tired. This condition is owing mainly to the impure condition of the blood, and its failure to supply healthy tissue to the various organs of the body. It is remarkable how susceptible the system is to the help to be derived from a good medicine at this season. Possessing just those purifying, building-up qualities which the body craves, Hood's Sarsaparilla soon overcomes that tired feeling, restores the appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, imparts vigorous health. Its thousands of friends as with one voice declare "It Makes the Weak Strong."

Colored People's Jubilee at Chicago.

Aug. 25 is set apart as the festival of the colored people, or, as they themselves seem to prefer to call it, Afro-American jubilee day. The celebration is to be given in Music Hall on the fair grounds. Its object is to show the progress which the colored race has made in speech and song in America, and to this end the brightest representatives of the colored people in oratory and music will be brought together. The orators of the day will endeavor to show the exact standing of the negro in this country, his advancement in some directions, and his lack of progress in others, and his disabilities as a citizen. There are to be 2,500 colored children in the choruses, and all the prominent colored singers of the country have been invited.

Kissed by Accident.

There was something the matter with the engine, and the train had stopped to release the injured locomotive and be taken in tow by another. The baby was squalling in the Irish nurse girl's arms, and the young and inexperienced mother had made unsuccessful attempts to pacify it. In the seat behind them sat a bashful young man who twisted and turned with every fresh outburst of the yelling infant. He seemed to be suffering intense torture, and his face wore such a look of agony that I believe the child was frightened, for it was held over the nursegirl's shoulder while the latter patted its back.

The bashful appearing young man must have finally decided a pin was torturing the baby, for he leaned forward to speak to the young mother, who at that moment exclaimed: "Poo! little tootay wootsy sweetie! Don't e ky! Mamma tiss oo."

"I beg your pardon!"—began the young man. At that instant the fresh engine was coupled to the train, striking with a heavy bump and starting every car back a bit. The motion sent the young man forward, so his head came between mother and infant, and he received her kiss fairly on the left ear. Everybody smiled except the infant, the young man and the mother.

"What do you mean, sir?" she cried, her face flaming. "I think you had better beg my pardon!" The bashful young man couldn't utter a word. He grabbed up his overcoat, seized his grip and fled to the smoker. And then even the baby smiled.

The Pin Truth

Is good enough for Hood's Sarsaparilla—there is no need of embellishment or sensationalism. Simply what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story of its merit. If you have never realized its benefits a single bottle will convince you it is a good medicine.

The highest praise has been won by Hood's Pills for their easy, yet efficient action. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents.

Flagged an Express Train.

New York, April 28.—Mr. A. Austin Smith, of Richmond, Va., came in from Richmond on the Southern express over the Pennsylvania line Saturday. Mr. Smith told a Globe-Democrat reporter to-day that his train was stopped about fifty miles from Washington by a runaway couple anxious to get to Washington to be married. The train was behind time and was running at a very high rate of speed. When it was about two and one-half miles from Guinea, a small station in Spottsylvania county, it came to a sudden stop that almost threw the passengers over the seats in front of them. Men, women and children tumbled over one another in the rush to get out. In the midst of the rush a big, awkward young farmer was seen assisting a pretty, blushing black-eyed girl upon the train. The girl looked to be 17 years old and the young farmer 21. The young couple walked into the train and took a seat together. This reassured the passengers and they got aboard again. The conductor explained that the engineer had stopped the train because he saw the two young people in the middle of the track, one waving a red handkerchief and the other a white handkerchief. The angry conductor ordered the couple to leave the train, when the farmer said: "We are just going to Washington to link up. I ain't never been on your train before, Cap'n and now I am here. I am going to stay and you have just got me to lick. We had to get away from Jennie's old man some way, and the quickest way I knowed of was to stop this here train and git on board. Here's your money to pay for our ride."

The conductor called his brakemen, and the brawny young farmer squared himself for a fight. The girl burst into tears. The passengers took the couple's part, and after inducing the conductor to let them remain gave them the best lunch that could be provided. The farmer cordially invited his hosts to witness the ceremony at Washington, but they all declined.

Quack Advertisements.

Are a nuisance and we think it behoves publishers to examine into the merits of many articles puffing up in their columns. We do not deny that many meritorious remedies are properly to be classed under this heading. Take the hundreds and thousands relieved from severe suffering by the use of Polson's Nerviline; would it not be unreasonable to expect them to condemn this far-famed remedy? Now we know for a fact that Polson's Nerviline is without exception the most powerful, pleasant and certain remedy in the world for pain. It cannot fail, for it goes right to the bottom of pain, penetrates to the nerves, soothes them into quietness, and affords prompt and permanent relief.
