Beaten at His Own Game.

It was on a Mississippi boat. The smooth faced, boyish looking passenger had been placed at the table with his back to a large mirror. Standing behind the black mustache sport, who was a veteran gambler, I could look into the mirror and see the reflection of every card in the smooth faced man's hand. I knew the card sharp with the bulldog jaw could see them, too, and it looked like a clear case of robbery to me. I wanted to warn the lamb that was about to be plucked, but I realized it was none of my funeral, although it might be if I interfered.

The smooth faced man held up two pairs-sixes and trays. I saw him glance at the single card he drew, and the mirror told me it was a queen. The man with the black mustache had a 10-spot full. He played easy at the start, but the smooth faced fellow seemed resolved on a bluff, for he put up heavily.

The betting grew hot and the situation became painful, for I believed I knew what was coming. The most of the spectators were uncertain, and they watched the scene with breathless interest. At length the greenhorn shoved up his last dollar.

"It is the limit of my pile," he calmly said. "I call."

"The money is mine," laughed the sport, as he spread out his cards. "Beat a ten full if you can."

"All right," just as calmly retorted the other as he spread out four trays and deliberately raked in the money, keeping his sharp eyes on the astounded card sharp. "That is dead easy."

The gambler turned very pale.

"Why, I—I thought," he stammered. "That I only held two pairs," smiled the boyish looking passenger. "You see you were mistaken. You can't always depend on a mirror to tell you the truth."

There was no more playing and no trouble, although the baffled and paralyzed gambler did make a move toward his hip pocket. He seemed to think better of it, and the smooth faced stranger wandered out with his winnings, lighting a cigar as he went.

"Who in blazes is that man?" asked the sharp.

"That is Professor Hartz, the magician," somebody replied.

The gambler sneaked off the boat at the next landing.

What Can be Done.

When the system is overloaded with impurity, the circulation sluggish, and the stomach out of order, as is often the case in spring time, there is no remedy so efficacious as Burdock Blood Bitters to remove every trace of impure matter and restore perfect health.

Opening the Fair.

At the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition Monday, the crowd in attendance was enormous and was variously estimated at from 150,000 to 175,000. Before the ceremonies were half over, twenty women and half as many men had been removed unconscious to the hospital where a corps of physicians was in waiting. Most of the helpless ones had simply fainted, but a number was suffering from more serious injuries received in the jam. President Higginbotham realized the gravity of the situation, and while the orchestra was playing he arose from his seat, advanced to the edge of the platform and raised his hands above his head in a mute appeal to the assembled thousands. He cried out at the top of his voice: "For God's sake keep cool," but his words were not heard far. His appeal had a salutary effect, however, as the centre and rear portions of the wedged in mass refrained from pushing towards the frail barriers.

Yet the hospital chairs continued to be forced through the almost blocked passage way to carry out the sick women and children. For several minutes it looked as though a terrible catastrophe could not be averted. The multitude continued to sway to and fro, and the air was filled with the shrieks of the women, the hoarse shouts of the men, the cries of the little children, of whom there was many hundreds, if not thousands, and the warning yells of the occupants of the grand stand. With the view of facilitating the disposal of the throng President Higginbotham escorted Mr. Cleveland and the dual party from the platform, with all possible haste, but this did not suit the temper of the spectators, and they yelled "Come back; we want to see more of the president." Finally, by breaking into the throng from a half dozen points, the Columbian guards succeeded in turning it into half as many channels, but not before the section of the platform occupied a few moments before by the President and his party had been turned into a harbor of refuge for no less than twenty-six sick or unconscious women and children.

An Essay On Man.

Man that is born of woman is small potatoes and few in a hill. He rises up to-day and flourishes like a ragweed, and to-morrow or next day the undertaker hath him. He goeth forth in the morning warbling like a lark and is knocked out in one round and two seconds. In the midst of life he is in debt, and the tax collector pursues him wherever he goeth. The banister of life is full of splinters, and he slideth down with rapidity. He cometh home at eventide and meeteth the wheelbarrow in his path. It riseth up and smiteth him to the earth, and falleth upon him, and runneth one of its legs into his ear. In the gentle spring time he putteth on his summer clothes, and a blizzard striketh him far from home and filleth him with curse-words and rheumatism. He buyeth a watch-dog, and when he cometh home from the lodge the watch-dog treeth him, and sitteth near him until rosy morn. He goeth to the horse trot and betteth his money on the brown mare, and the bay gelding with a blaze face winneth. He marrieth a red-headed heiress with a wart on her nose, and the next day the parent ancestor goeth under with a crash and great liabilities, and cometh home to live with his beloved son-in-law.

Feeding Value of Skim Milk.

The feeding value of skim milk is variously estimated by different chemists, from 15 to 25 cts. The following comparison made by a contemporary is probably about right:

Skim-milk	.....$23
Clover hay	.....77
Wheat bran	.....1.02
Corn meal	.....1.03
Timothy hay	.....52
Oats	.....35

These are comparative prices, that is, if wheat bran is worth $1.02 per 100 pounds, clover hay is worth 77 cts., and so on. The figures give a fair comparison of values. One hundred pounds of skim-milk, or about 50 quarts are valued at 23 cents or less than half a cent a quart. We cannot advise you as to a price to pay for it; local conditions will control that. You will see that, pound for pound, it is worth for feeding about one-fourth as much as oats—that is 16 gallons of milk will contain about the same food elements as a bushel of oats. Will the skim-milk prove as valuable for feeding as the oats? For some animals, yes. A horse, for example, could not drink skim-milk enough to take the place of 12 quarts of oats, but calves, pigs and chickens can use it if it is mixed with grain food. Skim-milk probably pays best when fed to chickens—used instead of water to make their morning mash, or scoured and made into curds.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

Symptoms—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and alternate, become very sore. Swayne's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At drug stores, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. Lyman, Sons & Co., Montreal, wholesale agents.

The Lover's Leap.

Sappho killed herself by jumping from the Lover's Leap, a Leucadian cliff. This leap was often taken by lovesick persons, who believed that if they survived the fall they would be effectually cured of a hopeless passion. The leaps were always witnessed by crowds of spectators, and the would-be suicides were in no way interfered with by the state. Boats were in attendance below to pick up the leapers if they came to the surface of the sea after the plunge. Sappho had a passion for a young man who did not return her love and leaped from the cliff in order to be cured. She perished in the fall. So also did Artemisia and many other celebrities. Phny tells a curious story of an old Athenian miser who was in love with his cook and desiring a cure, went to have a look at the cliff. He peeped over, shook his head, went home and married the cook.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Britannia Rules The Waves.

Americans are highly pleased with the figure their war vessels cut alongside of the pick of the best navies in the world. But the biggest United States ship stood sixth on the list in the matter of size. The Blake, with a displacement of 9,000 tons, nearly double that of any other vessel in the fleet, gave England the pre-eminence. Then came Germany with a 6,052-ton cruiser, Russia with one of 5,796 tons, Brazil with one of 4,950 tons and Spain with one of 4,760 tons. The largest vessel of the United States group was the Baltimore, which measures 4,600 tons. It looks as though Britannia still rules the waves.—Toronto Mail.
