The Cummings bill introduced Thursday provides for the admission into the Union of all States formed in the Dominion of Canada, their representation in Congress to be in accordance with their population. And states formed are to be admitted upon their own application and with the consent of Great Britain. An appropriation of $250,000 is authorized to defray the expenses of missions and negotiations to fix and agree upon terms of admission. The last section of the bill provides that there shall be a commercial union between the two countries until the Dominion is admitted and that no import tax, duties or other taxes shall be levied by this country on Canadian products provided the Dominion of Canada admits free of duty the products of this country. The bill was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.
