Too Much for the Mummies.
In the land where Moses rested On the ripples lily-crested In the willow-woven shallow close to Pharaoh's fatal shore, Many, many decades after Stood a pair whose ready laughter Wasn't altogether suited to these catacombs of yore.

All the knowledge beatific Hid in crumbling hieroglyphic Didn't catch the faintest tribute of a query or a look;
For in interchange of glances Leaped the subtlest of romances, Which the maiden, growing pensive, comprehended like a book.

"Sweet," the man articulated,
"We are briefly separated,
From the chaperon and others of an unromantic cast;
Don't you think it would be pleasant To improve the precious present While the balance of the party are intruding on the past?"

And the maiden, not unwilling,
Helped to frame a sound so thrilling That the palpitating ether died away in languid swoons,
Till the tenth reduplication Of the novel titillation Proved, without exaggeration 'twas a fearful case of spoons.

When the chaperon, pursuing,
'Came suspicious of a wooing,
And the party shortly after occupied the lovers' tracks,
Ere they found the pair they hunted,
By a wonder were confronted—
For the mummies in the cases had completely turned their backs.

Spiritualism.

Editor Review:
SIR,—In your issue of the 2nd inst. I have read with interest an article on the above subject, and I am agreed with you that it is becoming a live issue in religious circles; and I am also aware that it is engaging the attention of some of the greatest minds.

Now, it may almost look like presumption for men of my calibre to attempt to refute the arguments of such brilliant men; but, nevertheless, I am constrained to offer the objection which I know the Bible to contain. And when science enters the realm of religion and directly contradicts it, I am astonished to find ministers of the gospel upholding "science falsely so called."

Webster defines spiritualism to be "A belief in the frequent communication of intelligence from the world of spirits, by means of physical phenomena, commonly manifested through a person of special susceptibility, called a medium." And F. F. Morse, in "Practical Occultism," page 85, says:—"The phenomenal aspect of modern spiritualism reproduces all essential principles of the magic, witchcraft and sorcery of the past. The same powers are involved, the same intelligences are operating."

Now it seems to me that men who profess to believe the Bible should view all such doctrines from that standpoint, otherwise they cannot give the trumpet a certain sound, and should heed the advice of the Lord. "To the law and to the testimony if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in them."—Isa. 8:20.

Now let us examine the subject a little in the light of "this word." We find on searching that this same doctrine was held away back as early as B. C. 1490, and the Lord tells his own people to "Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them."—Lev. 19:31; and according to their law, "A man or a woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death."—Lev. 20:27, Deut. 18:10-12, Ex. 22:18. And when we are asked to inquire of a familiar spirit we should be ready to "Try the spirits whether they are of God."—John 4:1; and to reply, "Should not a people seek unto their God."—Isa. 8:19.

This same word also tells us that this will be one of the apostasies of the last days.—Tim. 4:1; and that Satan will transform himself "Into an angel of light."—2 Cor. 11:14; and his agents into "Ministers of righteousness."—verse 15; and in the Revelation of Jesus Christ to John he says: "For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty."—Rev. 16:14.

But let us go farther and see if we cannot discover the reason why the whole world are ready to be deceived; for there cannot be effect without a cause. What does the word teach? should be the question. The answer is not far to seek, for does not the word proclaim: "For the living know that they shall die; but the dead know not anything; neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten."—Ecl. 9:5. "Also their love and their hatred, and their envy is perished; neither have they any more a portion forever in anything that is done under the sun."—verse 6. "His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them."—Job. 14:21. "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."—Psa. 146:4, 115:17, 6:5, Acts 2:34. The apostle Paul says: "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised; and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished."—1 Cor. 15:16-18. Now how could this be possible if man has inherited immortality. This is evident.

If the so-called Christian church had not adopted the pagan doctrine of the natural immortality of the soul, it were impossible to be deceived by Satan in this worst of all deceptions, in that it is so much like the genuine.
Accept the Bible doctrine of the mortality of man, and no life, only through Christ, and all becomes clear.
Yours truly,
D. G. SCOTT.

A Conditional Pardon.
"Mr. Duseberry," said the sick man to his neighbor, whom he had called to the side of what he supposed was his death-bed, "we have had much difficulty in the past and have not been on speaking terms. I believe I am now about to die and I have sent for you that we may settle our differences and be friends before I go."
"Nothing would give me greater pleasure than a reconciliation," replied Duseberry, as he took the hand of the dying man.

"But remember," said the invalid in a gradually sinking voice, "if I get well the thing goes on just as it did before."

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.
Swarms—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. A Confident Prisoner.

It was a case of chicken-stealing, and the prints of bare feet were found in the gravel around the hen house. The lawyer for the prosecution was one who, if he had been a Napoleon, never would have crossed the Alps. He would simply have pulled them up by the roots and thrown them over the fence. The prisoner was an unknown tramp and lame at that.

"You say you don't know anything about this theft?"
"That's what I swore to, sir," said the tramp, meekly.

"You were in the back yard of Slam-tipp's house about supper time?"
"Yes, sir."

"You know the location of the hen house?"
"Yes, sir."

"You were seen on the road in front of the house some time after dark?"
"I was there, sir."

"You were in the yard after dark?"
"Yes, sir, and after supper also, sir," replied the prisoner, with a wan smile at his innocent little joke in such a place.

"And you were seen by the cook sitting on the doorstep with your shoes off?"
"Yes, sir; there was a pebble in it that was too big to get out of the same hole it got in at."

"Now, sir, I propose to prove that you made these tracks with your bare feet while you were stealing the chickens of the plaintiff."
"You can't do it, sir," said the prisoner, mildly but firmly.

"And why not, pray?" asked the lawyer, with fine sarcasm.
"Because, sir, I've one wooden leg, sir," and he gave a kick that sent it clean across the court room and almost knocked a constable senseless.—Tid-Bits.

Less than half a bottle of SCOTT'S CURE FOR RHEUMATISM entirely cured me of a very severe attack of Rheumatism. I applied it on cotton batting, and obtained almost instant relief. I take great pleasure in recommending Scott's Cure to any who suffer from Rheumatism or pains in the limbs, of any description.

Cleaning Windows.
Cleaning windows is an important part of the work in the routine of house-keeping, and while it does not seem a difficult task to keep the glass clear and bright, it nevertheless requires a knowledge of what not to do.
Never wash windows when the sun is shining upon them, otherwise they will be cloudy and streaky from drying before they are well polished off; and never wash the outside of the window first, if you wish to save trouble. Dust the sash and glass and wash the window inside, using a little ammonia in the water; wipe with a cloth free from lint, and polish off with soft paper. For the corners, a small brush or pointed stick covered with one end of the cloth is useful. When you come to the glass outside, the defects remaining will be more closely seen. Wipe the panes as soon as possible after washing and rinsing, and polish with either cambric or soft paper. In rinsing one may dash the water on the outside, or use a large sponge. It is preferable to a cloth.

How Gold is Shipped.

La Bretagne, which sailed from New York for France recently, carried as a part of her cargo over $3,000,000 in gold. "In shipping gold," says the New York Commercial Advertiser, "apparently as little care is taken as in shipping oats. On the west side of the New York sub-treasury building is the gold vault. The vault is divided into compartments for storing the precious metal, and the total capacity of this vault is $72,000,000. When the coins are received at the Treasury they are put up in bags, each holding $5,000, and when delivered to the purchaser the gold is counted by the bag."

"The bankers who buy the gold for shipment do not count the coins; they take Uncle Sam's word for it that each bag contains its $5,000."

"Barley & Son, the truckmen who handle gold for nearly all the shippers," continues the Advertiser, "had an ordinary open trunk ready and the bags were carried from the Treasury doors and loaded up. Four or five armed men ride on the truck to the bank, where the bags are again counted and but in strong kegs (not quite so large as nail kegs) which hold $50,000 each. Then the kegs are sealed by the banks and the same truckmen take the kegs to the steamer, where they are placed in the strong room and guard is kept over them night and day until the kegs are delivered into the hands of the consignees. This strong room is usually underneath the cabins in the centre of the ship, and is accessible only through the officers' quarters."

The gold shipped by La Bretagne, weighs about six and one-half tons. The cost of shipping it is very heavy. For cartage the cost is $1 per keg, and for cooerage $2 per keg. The rate charged by the steamships is one-eighth of 1 per cent of the value and the insurance is one-tenth of 1 per cent, which makes the total cost of transportation about $2,310 per $1,000,000.

She Was His Violet.
The newly-wedded couple boarded the train at a village station and a crowd of about a hundred people saw them off. The groom was a strapping young fellow with sunburned face and hands and bear's grease on his hair, while the bride might have been the "hired gal" on the same farm. They had no sooner taken a seat than he put his arm around her and began to caress one of her hands. A voice in the rear of them cried out "Spoons!" but the bridegroom gave no sign. Pretty soon he pulled her head over on his shoulder and there was a titter from the rear of the car. The head stayed there, however, and Josh got both her hands in his one paw. Three or four voices cried out "Oh!" and "Ah!" but it was fully two minutes before he tenderly pushed her away and rose up and looked around and said: "We are married. It was a case of luv. We sparked for seven years. She's my violet and I'm her towerin' oak. We've got 180 miles to go and we are goin' to spoon every durnd rod of it, and if that's any critter here who thinks he can't stand it be kin git out and walk!"—St. Louis Republic

The Kilkenny Cats.

Everybody has heard of the famous cats of Kilkenny.

"Each cat thought there was one cat too many,
So they quarrelled and fit,
They scratched and they bit,
Till, excepting their tails,
And some scraps on their nails,
Instead of two cats, there wa'nt any."

Not everybody knows, however, the true story of the cats. In 1798 or 1803—historians differ about even so important dates as this—Kilkenny was garrisoned by Hessian soldiers during a rebellion in Ireland. One night some of the soldiers amused themselves by cruelly tying the tails of cats together and throwing the animals across a clothes line to fight. An officer entered the room to stop the inhuman sport, but the soldier who saw him coming gave a great slash with a sword and cut off the tails of both cats. The cats escaped out of the window, but the bloody tails had to be accounted for. The quickwitted soldier who had cut the feline knot coolly replied to the officer's question that the cats had devoured each other, with the exception of their tails, and the story was thought to be so good that it was perpetuated in verse. At least that is the story told in explanation of the well-known rhyme.

From The Far North.

In northern climates people are very subject to colds, but the natural remedy is also produced in the same climate. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles. Price 25c. and 50c.

Women Men Like

Notwithstanding all cynical assertions to the contrary, there are some most delightful friendships existing between men and women that have in them no thought of love. There is a mental congeniality as well as an attraction of opposites that proves very delightful to many a man. They enjoy conversing with bright, clever women who have their own views on topics of the day, differing so largely in their feminine expression from the masculine arguments heard at clubs or in offices. A man delights in the contrast; the keen, clever insight of a companionable woman and the clever wit that punctuates her conversation is to him as champagne compared with porter when he thinks of some of the prosy albeit truthful sentiments issuing from the lips of members of his own sex. Some women are the equals, and in many cases the superiors of hundreds of their male associates, yet they never act as though they knew their own worth. Therein lies their greatest charm. It takes a very clever woman to combine the strong mental qualities that lend such piquancy to her every word with a manner not humble, yet so far from being aggressive that a man feels flattered rather than outdone in every sentence she utters.

Rebecca Wilkenson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone. I bought one bottle of South American Nerve, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; I consider it the grandest medicine in the world." A trial bottle will convince you. For sale by W. W. Short, druggist.
