Our Side of the Case Now.

PARIS, May 10.—In the Behring sea tribunal of arbitration, this morning, Sir Charles Russell, of counsel for Great Britain opened his argument in reply to the speeches of Messrs. Coudert and Carter, the counsel for the United States. Sir Charles announced his intention of dividing his argument into four heads. In the first place he proposed to discuss the American claim of right to control sealing in Behring sea. The second section of the argument was to be devoted to the regulations, the third to the damages claimed under the treaty, and the fourth to the damages claimed under the modus vivendi. He intimated that he would only briefly touch upon the regulations. Sir Charles, continuing, absolutely denied the existence of any property right in wild animals, as claimed by the Americans in the seals found in Behring sea.

He stated that Great Britain had, and always had had the greatest willingness to join in the promulgation and observance of any regulation which would tend to preserve and enhance the value of the Behring sea seal fishery as long as the regulations would benefit the nations interested generally and equitably. Great Britain, however, did object and object most strenuously to being a partner in the framing of any set of regulations which would benefit the Americans exclusively, or at all events to a greater extent than they would the sealers of any other nation. At some length he plainly exposed the American exaggerations of the value of the sealing industry. He replied most effectually to the arguments of the American counsel regarding the cruelty habitually practiced by pelagic sealers in the capture of seals by explaining fully the cruelty of some of the methods practiced by the American company in killing seals upon the islands.

Sir Charles defined the international law as being such principles as could be acquiesced in by all nations, but by which no nation can be bound until these principles were accepted by them. He denied the power of the tribunal to apply any recognized international law to the dispute in question. He justified the intervention of the Dominion of Canada in the negotiations, and compared her action to the claims asserted by the United States at the time when they were colonies of Great Britain. Sir Charles produced evidence to show that the Alaskan catch of late years contained a very large number of female skins. This was in direct contradiction to the claim made by Mr. Coudert in his argument, he asserting that the Alaskan catch contained but very few male seals, while the catch made by the pelagic sealers consisted principally of female seals. Replying to Mr. Morgan, of counsel for the United States, Sir Charles explained that the reference to the Newfoundland bank fishery in the Anglo-American treaty of 1833 acknowledged no right of property in the fish on the Banks such as is now claimed by the United States in the seals of Behring sea. He showed that the American Government obtained from the company to which they sold the right of sealing in Behring sea a royalty of forty-two shillings upon each skin taken, and said that if the seals were, as the counsel for the United States alleged, a trust for the benefit of mankind, it was disposing of that alleged trust at the very highest possible market price.

Confederation in Newfoundland. St. John's N. E., May 12.—On motion of Mr. Murray in the Legislature yesterday the question of confederation with Canada sprang up on a resolution based on negotiations of the recent conference in Halifax.

Sir William Whiteway declared that, while he was not strongly opposed to confederation, he did not consider the present time opportune for discussing the matter. He believed that the vast majority of people on the Island were against confederation. He did not care to touch the matter without a mandate from the people, and even then he must have a good majority to do so.

Mr. Morine, an ardent confederator, took the same view of the matter and his motion to consider confederation resolutions was defeated on a division by a large majority.

The Commercial Hotel.

The re-opening of the Commercial hotel by Mr. P. Gallagher, proprietor of the Queen, has already been noted, but the public is probably not aware of the extent to which Mr. Gallagher has gone in the re-opening of this commodious house. As is well known the Commercial is splendidly located with regard to the business portion of the city, being in close proximity to some of the largest business firms, the post office, customs and telegraph office. The house contains some sixty rooms altogether, which have been furnished in first class style. The house throughout has been thoroughly renovated and some of the larger rooms present a handsome appearance, being supplied with costly furniture. The bathrooms are supplied with hot and cold water and the general plumbing in the building is being executed by E. Estano & Sons, is a sufficient guarantee for its efficiency. New furniture specially selected by Mr. Gallagher from G. H. Lappe, of Montreal, adorns the hotel from top to bottom. In the line of carpets no expense or pains have been spared to procure both a serviceable and attractive article with which almost every inch of floor on the two flats has been covered. The carpets were bought of W. E. Ferguson, Moncton, whose stock in this line it would be hard to improve on. The bed and table linens and curtains were got of McAuley Bros., St. John. In the dining room, improvements have been made in the way of more room and fixtures. At each end of the room are placed two large mirrors nearly seven feet square, while four tables laden with the latest designs in silver and glassware give the room an inviting appearance. The silverware was supplied by K. Bezanon, Moncton, and the crockery was by G. H. Warwick, St. John. Both the gas and the incandescent electric light have been put in, and it is Mr. Gallagher's intention to put in a furnace heating apparatus, this fall. One of the special things with which the office of the hotel is supplied, is the new call board mentioned a few days ago. It is pronounced the simplest and best call board in use by hotels. Mr. Gallagher reports that he has been favored with a liberal patronage much beyond his expectations since the opening of the house and with his wide experience in the business and recognized abilities as a caterer the patronage of the Commercial will no doubt increase to the satisfaction of the proprietor. The Queen hotel has also undergone a thorough renovation and under the guidance of such an efficient manager as Mr. Thos. Gallagher should here none of its old-time popularity.

The Green Flag.

New York, May 10.—The Ancient Order of Hibernians, with 400 delegates representing various American lodges, have been holding secret sessions at Tammany hall for the last three days. At noon to-day they adjourned and boarded the steamer Hazel Kirke at the foot of Nineteenth street, sailed around the statue of liberty and up the North river. At the mast of the vessel the flag of the Irish republic, green with a gold harp without the crown, was hoisted. The Italian and Russian cruisers perhaps did not choose to recognize the flag and the Blake and other British cruisers had already sailed away before the somewhat vainglorious act on the part of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The Irish were astonished at finding that the Russians did not recognize their banners, as some time ago the representative of the czar here entered into a secret arrangement with the Clan na Gael; but the American and German vessels cheered and saluted. The session of the Ancient Order of Hibernians to-night discussed the affair, considering it as an insult all the more important as a letter from Mr. Gladstone, whose former coercion laws and other harsh treatment of Ireland, have been condemned by the home rule bill, is to be read at the session to-morrow.

Wants to see the Farmers.

OTTAWA, May 9.—Hon. Geo. E. Foster and Hon. Mackenzie Bowell returned to the city Sunday from the tariff enquiry at Toronto.

Mr. Foster, seen by a Montreal Star correspondent, said: "We met a great many deputations, representing all classes of trade, manufacturers, importers and consumers, and entered quite fully with them into the tariff question as affecting the varied interests. We found the usual divergence of opinion as to specific and valorem duties, and the general desire was to give all the information in respect to their particular trades and the effect of the tariff thereon. We also received enquiries, and some very valuable ones, with reference to the class and rates of duty which will be taken into careful consideration. The delegates were, without exception, most reasonable and business-like and whilst pressing their particular views, showing no desire for revolutionary measures. The deputations were arranged by the board of trade, on requisition from several interests, and in response to advertisements in the press, so that, if any interests were not represented, it was not any fault of the government or the board of trade.

"I notice that some criticism has been made, that we have not consulted the consumers. It will be seen from the above that they had every opportunity to represent their views. But the investigations are, however, only commenced, and before we are through, the fullest opportunity will be given farm laborers and mechanics to make up and discuss matters of the tariff as far as it affects their interests.

Wrecked, Traded, &c. With Mrs. White.

WINDSOR, W. Va., May 11.—George Williams, a blacksmith on the West Virginia and Pittsburgh Railway, was arrested Saturday night charged with wrecking a train some days ago by which several were killed and injured. His wife, with whom he had quarrelled, was on the train and he had made threats that he would speak to get even with her. He was slightly injured in the disaster.

Medical Satisfaction.

GENESEE.—I have found B. B. B. an excellent remedy, such as a blood purifier and general family medicine. I was for a long time troubled with such head-ache and heartburn, and tried a bottle, which gave me such perfect satisfaction that I have since then used it as our family medicine. S. BATES, North Bay, Ont.

Albany, N. Y., May 12.

The last statement written by Charles W. Harris, which was given out Tuesday afternoon from the State Prison Department, covers a number of closely written pages. In it he reviews his trial for the murder of his wife, criticizes the witnesses and concludes with this paragraph: "And now, face to face with the greatest injustice known to man, knowing that no commitment or truth can mitigate my case, I do solemnly declare that I am innocent of the crime for which I am condemned to die."
