LEGAL NEWSPAPER DECISIONS. 1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the Post Office—whether directed to his address or another, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the pay.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and collect the whole amount, whether it is taken from the office or not.

RICHIBUCTO, N. B., DEC. 27, 1894.

TO OUR THOUSANDS OF READERS A Happy New Year.

TO OUR READERS. In the spring of 1892, acting on medical advice, Mr. Paterson, the founder of THE REVIEW, decided to withdraw from the business.

He accordingly after considerable difficulty succeeded in selling out to a company in the fall of the same year, since which time it has been under the able editorial management of Mr. Wm. D. Carter, LL. B.

Mr. Paterson now begs to inform the numerous readers of THE REVIEW that he is again in harness, and would take this opportunity to thank the many kind friends who so generously aided him in establishing a paper in their midst.

That its publication has been beneficial to the county no thoughtful person will dispute.

It has ever been the publisher's aim to produce a bright, clean and readable sheet that would be a credit to the county, and he trusted to an intelligent popular discrimination for appreciation of his efforts.

If its remarkable success and the words of praise bestowed upon it by the provincial press is any criterion he has succeeded.

We shall spare no effort in future to make THE REVIEW one of the most interesting of newspapers; but we cannot do this without the co-operation of our subscribers.

"The mill cannot grind with the water that is past." Neither can it grind with the water that hasn't come. The snowbanks must melt and the genial rains fill the flume before the ponderous machinery can revolve.

Therefore, if our subscribers will supply the power, i. e. the cash, we shall promise to grind something every week that will satisfy the most fastidious. Most of our subscribers are very prompt in paying up, but there is still a large number in arrears.

This, we feel sure is mere thoughtlessness on their part. It is a mistake, however, to let their subscriptions run on from year to year. It is always easier to pay one dollar than several. A "dead horse," you know, is something at which human nature revolts.

GAMBLING IN DENVER. One of the most remarkable petitions ever sent to the governor of a state was probably the one sent to Governor Waite of Colorado requesting that gambling be permitted in the city of Denver under police supervision.

And not the least surprising of the whole affair was the signatures to the petition. Those signatures included the names of nearly all the leading bankers, business men and manufacturers of the Rocky Mountain metropolis.

They requested that the prohibition against gambling be removed, and that the halls where the roulette and faro kings held high carnival, be thrown open to the public. It appears that Governor Waite, notwithstanding his threat to ride bridle deep in the gore of the opponents of free silver, is a pretty level headed old gentleman in other matters, and has endeavored during his term to enforce the laws of the State.

One of his first acts was to begin a crusade against the gambling dens and houses of prostitution in Denver. He succeeded so well that the proprietors of these institutions concluded to "close up," and now after a few months of decency a demand is made to have these vicious and immoral dens reopened and licensed.

These business men, bankers and manufacturers make this request because to banish the gambler is "against the best interests of the city." There must exist a strange condition of society when such a petition can find the endorsement of the leading men of the community, and while the claim that "gambling is a benefit to the town" has been heard before, it is remarkable that such men as have signed this petition can be induced to say so.

The petition is calling forth a great deal of adverse criticism and it is probable that those who signed it are sorry they undertook the business. The clergy opened fire on the movement from their pulpits the Sunday after it was made public, and preached red hot sermons against the proposition. The petition was read in the churches and those who had been induced to sign it were handled without gloves. No action has yet been taken in the matter and it remains to be seen whether the citizens of Denver are prepared to return to their former system of lawlessness.

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

Home for the holidays! What a depth of meaning the thoughtful find in these words! At this season of peace and good will, everybody seems willing to relax the tension of their worldly employment and gather round the home hearth, there to exchange the greetings of the season, and, for the time being, renounce their very individuality in the enjoyment of renewed friendships and unaffected home life.

The student who has not yet assumed the active part he will ere long be called upon to play on the stage of life, finds here an antidote for his many pangs of homesickness, the inevitable result of his enforced exile, and is infused with a new vigor and strength of purpose which will materially add to his future successes.

And those grown to manhood and womanhood who are already playing an active part in the spheres in which their choice or circumstances have placed them, willingly return in spirit to their childhood and gather round the family board. Hearts that, perchance, have become hardened by their rough contact with the world melt in the genial sunshine of home.

Even these on whose brows the winter of age has heaped the snows of time, cast off at least a part of their load of years and enter with an almost youthful zest into the festivities of the time. From the smallest child whose sublimest happiness is the expected nocturnal visit of Santa Claus, to the aged grandsire whose feet already rest on the threshold of Eternity, all feel happier and better at this season.

There can be no doubt but that the spirit that now inspires humanity with every good and noble feeling, is the Spirit of the Saviour in this, the season of his nativity, proclaiming, "Peace on earth, good will to men."

The following from the Boston Herald is a fair sample of the estimates of Sir John Thompson that have appeared in the journals of the United States:—"While lacking in a number of ways the diplomatic address of his predecessor, Sir John McDonald—a man who was, perhaps, the greatest statesman that Canada ever produced—Sir John Thompson had a vigour of action and eloquence in speech which commanded the approval of his party associates and a manner of winning confidence which endeared him to the Canadian people. The fact that he was a Roman Catholic, and, if we are not mistaken, a convert to that belief, is a proof of the high respect that the people entertained of him, as he was compelled to lead as head in Parliament of the Canadian Government those who were decidedly hostile to his religious faith."

Britain and Her Colonies.

The Daily News has a letter to-day on the relations of England to her colonies. After discussing Canadian affairs at some length it says: "We have not a colonial party like the French and Germans, because there is no anti-colonial party. It is very remarkable that although autonomous colonies unhesitatingly have used their commercial freedom against the mother country, no resentment whatever is expressed here. Young nations must learn wisdom from experience. Protection never in the long run succeeds and free trade never in the long run fails. Sentiment is the real link between the colonies and England. The Liberals under Laurier as we under Blake, are equally loyal with the Conservatives and are anxious for a practical method of further uniting the empire and quickening and cheapening communication between London and the New World. The telegraph has done wonders, but steam has not yet done all it can."

Under the Ban.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—One of the most important results of the recent visit to this diocese of Archbishop Satolli became known to-day when it was announced that by his promulgation of an edict from the Pope three additional secret societies have been placed with the Masonic order under the ban of the Catholic church. They are Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and the Sons of Temperance.

The action of the church authorities upon the subject of the three secret societies is important, as they have many Catholic members who must resign their membership or be refused the offices of the church.

Catholics, who pending this decision had become members of these societies, are to be admonished or withdrawn from them. If they refuse they are to be denied the sacraments until they give up their membership.

The condemnation of the three societies is universal and applies with equal force to Catholics all over the world.

Corbett Thinks the End of Pugilism is Near.

Champion Corbett to a correspondent of the New York World told the following:—"Bowen's death will hurt pugilism and make one more eager than ever to get out of the ring. The future of pugilism, I believe, is coming to an end pretty fast. In another year it will be hard to pull off a fight anywhere. One reason why so many accidents attend boxing these days is that the boxers pick out vital parts on which to strike a man, and with added skill are able to reach their aim more often. The contests under London prize ring rules were far more brutal than those fought under Marquis of Queensbury rules. When the new Legislature organizes, one of the first bills introduced will be one making prize fighting a felony in Texas. The killing of Con Riordan and Andy Bowen will accelerate its passage."

Black River Notes.

Smelt fishing. Oh, what a glorious life! cold hands, wet feet and a hungry stomach. Half a ton of smelts on hand, and a big thaw coming on.

A very interesting party took place at the residence of David Daigle, on Thursday night. The boys enjoyed themselves playing cards for a goose. The goose was won by Donald, and while playing for some ducks, some one stole the goose and it has never been seen since. In the midst of the fun a dog-fight took place which created great excitement among some of the boys and several of them filled the air with old coats and profane language.

After a short scuffle, and peace was made, the parties returned home, some went on skates while others went on sleds all satisfied but the man that lost the goose.

Smelt fever is raging on the Kouchibouguac river. The price fell from one cent and a half to 3/4 of a cent yesterday. Some of our enterprising fishermen are talking of building a freezer for the purpose of keeping their smelts till they get better price.

Patrick Gorman killed a fine seal on Black River point with a hardwood club one day last week.

As we pass along the road on the south side of Kouchibouguac, we are greeted with the sweet strains of the violin mingled with the deep tones of the organ.

Andy has got his skates in order now and says he will get the better of Jim if it takes every horn in the barn.

Large lumber operations are being carried on in Black River, this winter. The chief operators are William Betts, John Hill, Sr., and Densel and Rodney.

Burns Power and John L. Kelly have removed their smelt nets to the Bay. John expects to make a haul some of these days. Don't count your chickens before they are hatched, John.

Hugh McDonald has returned home again from the wild and woolly West after a long absence of three months.

HEAD LIGHT FOR.

Sound as a Dollar.

Some people are lucky in finding the right remedy at the right time. A case in point follows, and is worth reading: About three months ago I was all used up with Rheumatism, suffering more than torture from it. I took three bottles of your valuable medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters, and now feel all O. K. Some six years ago I took a few bottles of B. B. B. and found it the best medicine I had ever used. I had the very best of health until this attack of Rheumatism, but now I am glad to say that B. B. B. has made me as sound as a dollar.

Common Sense.

Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, catarrh. As catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no permanent good. The common sense method of treatment is to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no preparation superior to Hood's Sarsaparilla.
