

Some of the young men of our town attended the opening of the Opera House in Kingston, on Tuesday last.

New Year is looked forward to with much interest in consequence of a grand ball to be given by the proprietor of the "P. Woods Hotel," for which extensive preparations are in progress, also a concert by the "Harcourt Amateur Dramatic Club," in which the well known play, "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" will be put upon the boards, for the first time in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Buckfield spent Friday in Moncton.

While driving to Richibucto last week Mr. Wm. Ferguson met with quite a painful accident. In going down a hill his horse slipped, throwing him from the carriage with such force as to inflict several ugly wounds on his face and head.

Messrs. John A. Farrar and Isaac F. Forman, I. C. R. telegraph operators, arrived by Saturday night's express, and proceeded to Mill Branch to spend Xmas at their respective homes.

Sheriff Delahunty spent a few days with friends in town last week.

After eight years' sojourn here, Mr. Dennis Saulnier bade farewell to his many friends and left by Friday morning's express for his home in Saulnierville, N. S., where he will spend a few weeks, prior to leaving for Boston.

Mr. Ben McLeod is able to be around again after an illness of two weeks.

Miss Oulton, teacher in the primary department of our school, left on Friday last for her home in Pt. de Bute, to spend her vacation. W. V. Goodwin also left to enjoy a well earned holiday, though Dame Rumor says not to his own home.

Mrs. R. Saulnier and Misses Buckley spent Christmas eve in Moncton.

DAISY BELL.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

IT GIVES NEW STRENGTH TO THE OLD AND FEEBLE.

It Banishes Old Troubles And Renews Life.

PAINE'S CELYR COMPOUND NEVER FAILS TO CURE.

In Canada thousands of old people are indebted to Paine's Celery Compound for their present vigor, health and strength. From disease, sickness, and loss of energy, they have been raised to a condition of health that guarantees many years of life, and usefulness to their families and friends.

Amongst the many old people who have been cured by Paine's Celery Compound is the case of Mrs. Henry Lewis, of Montreal, who is deserving of special attention; her letter is an interesting one and worthy of careful perusal. Mrs. Lewis writes as follows:

"I am now an old woman, being in my seventy-third year; and can most frankly confess that no action of my life has ever given me greater pleasure than the present one of testifying with my whole heart and soul in favor of your Paine's Celery Compound."

From my experience with other advertised remedies, I may say that they are not to be compared with your grand medicine for a moment. Paine's Celery Compound to me was new health and increased strength; all other medicines I found worthless and my money was spent in vain.

"Two years ago I became weak, sleepless and restless, and my appetite was almost gone. Severe headaches, biliousness, kidney trouble and sore back made life a misery to me, and I despaired of being in health again."

"These distressing troubles often confined me to bed for a week at a time; and it is almost impossible to describe the agonies and wretchedness I endured during these severe attacks. A friend advised me to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial; others insisted that I required careful nourishment and dieting. I had heard, however, of such wonderful results from the use of Paine's Celery Compound, that I determined to honestly and carefully test its value in my case; and I bless God that I had sufficient courage and will power to do so, as it has made me a new woman. I used your Compound simply as directed, and found, after commencing the second bottle that the virtues of the great medicine were instilling a new vitality and giving me a new existence."

"Up to date, I have used about twelve bottles, and am now completely and permanently restored. I do all my own house work; I am cheerful and happy, and do not experience any of the fatigue and weakness that troubled me some months ago."

"I live and enjoy life to-day, and thank God for the great agent of life that cured me."

"I trust that thousands of women will have a chance to read this testimony, and profit by my experience. I strongly appeal to all women to give up other medicines that they are now vainly using, and commence at once with Paine's Celery Compound, which alone can bring back lost health. I wish I could personally visit every woman in Canada who is suffering as I once suffered; I am sure my words of testimony and comfort would soon convince all that there is only one honest, worthy and meritorious medicine that can meet their troubles, and that medicine is Paine's Celery Compound."

Why is a great strong man like you and begging? Ah, Madam, it is the profession in which a gentleman can also see a beautiful lady without the familiarity of an introduction.

THE QUEEN'S LAUNDRY.

METHODS PURSUED AT THE ROYAL SCRUB HOUSE.

But Few Visitors Get Here—There is One Room Where the Curious Eye Never Penetrates—The Queen's Supervision of the Old Linen.

The royal laundry, or, as it is more generally known, the Queen's Laundry, is very pleasantly situated on the borders of Richmond Park, in which it stands upon a portion of the park itself. The keeper of this lodge has no sinecure, for there are very few of the private establishments of royalty more difficult to obtain permission to see over than this, says a writer in "The Lady."

From the entrance gate a drive, bordered on each side by lawns and flower beds, sweeps up to the residence of the superintendent. This gentleman, it need not be said, is an expert at his business, and has had the establishment in his charge fitted up with the latest and most approved machinery and appliances. Every item of material used is thoroughly tested as to its qualifications, the soap and soda analyzed, and every precaution taken that each is of the purest possible nature.

NO VISITORS HERE.

The laundry itself is a square, ivy-covered building, with a wing projecting from one side. It has no pretensions to architectural beauty or appearance, but its interior has been designed for the special purpose for which it is fitted. In this the personal linen of Her Majesty is dealt with, and no stranger, under any circumstances, is permitted inside its walls. On either side of a stone passage are large cupboards, which are thoroughly ventilated, and stored with the various kinds of soap used. The carbonate of soda and ordinary Scotch washing soda are kept in chests in this same passage.

The soiled linen arrives from the Royal Palaces in great white square baskets, and is taken in hand at once by the sorters, and compared with the list that accompany it. The personal linen of members of the royal family is sent and returned in wooden boxes with brass plates, on which are engraved the names of the owners and numbers, thus: "The Queen, 6," or "H. R. H. the Princess of Wales, 3." These are taken to a sorting room kept especially for them. Two washing rooms used for the household and table linen lead from the general sorting room. From the rinsing tub everything goes immediately into the wringing machine, which, revolving at the rate of 700 revolutions a minute, delivers the articles very nearly dry. Across the passage is the mangle and press room, where daily great piles of table cloths, towels, sheets, etc., are dealt with. The greater portion of the articles are neatly marked with red cotton, "V. R. L." with the initials of the palace they belong to under, thus: "O. H., "B. C.," or "B. P." Some, however, are marked with a stamp.

GREAT BATCH OF TOWELS.

Towels form by far the largest number of items dealt with, and when Her Majesty is at Windsor, several hundreds of dozens a week go through this establishment, and all the household linen dealt with is from the Queen's establishment alone, for though all the personal linen of the members of the royal family is cleansed here, so as to secure the greatest amount of safety from any infection, the household linen of the private branches is sent principally to different firms. Drying and ironing rooms are on the first floor. That devoted to the former purpose is elaborately fitted with slides over the furnace, but is principally intended for use in wet or wintry weather, as there is a splendid drying ground attached, and adjoining this is a large corrugated iron shed, with open ends, and sides formed of revolving shutters, for use on showery days and damp nights. In the ironing department we find a rule in work that seems strange, involving, as it does, much extra work and expense—everything here is thoroughly dried before it is ironed. Of course, the patent ironing machine saves a good deal of the extra labor, but the scores of flat-irons speak eloquently for themselves of their share of the work.

THE ROYAL TABLE LINEN.

The royal table linen is of the finest substances, and is specially manufactured. The designs woven in are very handsome and elaborate, the Queen's monogram predominating, with roses, shamrocks and thistles among armorial bearings. It is also made in sets, each tablecloth having a number of serviettes to match in design, etc.

One large room is devoted to calender work, and here all the enormous quantity of chintz covers for the palace are dealt with. Adjoining this is the important room where everything is thoroughly aired before being returned. The department in which the personal linen is cleansed only communicates with the other buildings by a door, which is always kept locked, and the key is in the possession of the superintendent, and the most stringent rules are in force regarding visitors, even for members or servants of other departments of the royal household.

CLEARING OUT THE OLD LINEN.

Even in royal establishments linen will wear out, and whatever may be done in the houses of the Princesses, the Queen herself periodically superintends the throwing out of worn articles at her palaces. As she is seated in the linen-room at Buckingham Palace, each thing is held up before her and condemned or passed, as the case may be. If the former, its destination is at once fixed—either a hospital or some other charitable institution—and it is certain to reach that destination as soon after it is cleared from the books of the palace as possible.

Criminals' Pictures.

In a New York photograph collector's album there are the pictures of 100 criminals who were tried and convicted in that city last year. A good proportion of them are men of fine appearance, with honest looking faces and a pleasant expression. The owner of the album explains these pictures to his acquaintances, without telling who the men are, and he says that of all the people who have seen them not one has yet guessed that they are convicted criminals, or that they do not rank among the most respectable citizens.
