A GOOD EXAMPLE. The Honorable W. E. Meredith, late leader of the Ontario Conservative opposition, recently appointed Chief Justice of that province, presided at his first Circuit Court at St. Catherines last week. At the opening of the Court it was the intention of the members of the bar to present him with an address expressing their pleasure at his elevation to the Bench, but His Honor firmly declined to receive it. In doing so, Chief Justice Meredith has elevated himself in the opinion of all right thinking and independent people, and has set an example which it is desirable should be followed. Mr. Meredith when at the Bar was regarded by the profession as one of the ablest and most trustworthy lawyers in Ontario, while his career as a public man and active politician has been such as improvements have been made during the to win respect of both friends and op. past summer. ### BILIOUS FROM CHILDHOOD.

Rev. Benjamin Hills, Pugwash. N. S., writes: "In a word I may say that K. D. C. has helped me more than anything else I have ever used. I had been bilious from childhood; for several years had rarely passed a week without a severe attack of bilious colic, with intense pain at the back of my head. These attacks usually follow my Sunday work. Eince I began to use the K. D. C. I have scarcely had any return of biliousness and the attacks have been very light. I have had greater freedom from suffering since I began the use of K. D. C. than for years past. I believe that the occasional use of a bottle of K. D. C., will keep me comparartively free from the old trouble. I thank you for calling my atttention to K. D. C. Had I tried it long ago it might have saved me years of suffering. I am glad torecommend it to fellow sufferers."

Judge Landry arrived in Buctouche, Wednesday, and took quarters at the filled with the leading Acadians of the (their late band master) and Mr. James | county. After mass at St. Jean Baptiste church, Urbain Johnson, ex-M. P. P., read to Judge Landr the following ad-

Supreme Court of New Brunswick.

HONORABLE GENTLEMAN: It is customary in Great Britian and her colonies to honor the justices of the county, insomuch as they are the representatives of the judicial authority of the state and to welcome them when for the first time they are called to preside over the courts within their jurisdiction. This custom has been observed under all circumstances and throughout all the provinces.

We regret to state that the grand jury neglected to fulfil that duty on the occasion of your holding your first circuit court in this county. There is for us the inhabitants of the county of Kent a double obligation not to retrograde in this respect because Her Majesty's representatives in naming you judge of the supreme court of this province knew how to appreciate an honorable man, and secondly because it pleases us, as Acadians, and it is for us a great honor. After having represented us at the federal parliament you are coming back to us clothed with the high dignity of supreme court judge.

In extending to you a cordial welcome, we believe that we represent the universal sentiment of the county when we state our belief that you have attained your present eminence by your aptitude, qualities and high integrity. After heaven has granted you many years for the honour and advantage of this province, and as a useful politician, you are promising us an honourable and brilliant career as judge, and therefore we are pleased to welcome you on your elevation to the Supreme Court bench of our province.

A. D. CORMIER, and 1100 other Acadians in the county. Judge Landry said he felt somewhat embarrassed in his reply, for his difficulty was less in what he might say than in what he ought not to say. He felt grateful for sucha public expression of confi-

merited such a grand demonstration of respect. As the address alluded to the fact that the grand jury had not presented him with an address when he, for the first time, visited the county as a Judge of the Supreme Court, he was constrained to refer to that matter. The omission was inexplicable; he could not understand it. He presumed the promotors of the address just read to him, wished to make amends for that omission. He noticed the address was signed altogether by people of his own nationality. He had no doubt that many others, of the different nationalities in the county, would have been pleased to subscribe to it had they been asked to do so. He did not know whether they had been asked or not; with that he had nothing to do. The committee having this matter in hand had dealt with it in their own way, while he was always pleased to express his gratitude to his Acadian compatriots for all they had done for him during his career as a public man, he knew he had not attained to his present position by their suped his promotion to the Supreme Court Bench more strongly than the representative of the County at Ottawa. He had, unsolicited, accorded him that support. Considering the fact that they had been political opponents in times gone by he wished to publicly express his appreciation of such generous conduct, and he took this opportunity to do so most heartily. He did not wish to say that an Acadian representative would not have done as much, but no Acadian representative could have done any more. Now that he had bade "good-bye" to

Longevity and Alcohol.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The British Medical Association has been investigating the question of longevity in connection with the use of alcoholic beverages. The terms used in the report are rather elastic, but the figures are instructive. Deaths to the number of 4,234, taken at random, show the average age of temperate drinkers to be sixty-three years; careless drinkers, fifty-nine years; free drinkers, fifty-seven years; intemperate drinkers, fifty-three years; total abstainers, fifty-one years. The analysis in the case of those who reached the age of more than eighty shows that fifteen per cent. were total abstainers, ten per cent, heavy drinkers, and seventyfour per cent, moderate drinkers. Of those who lived more than ninety years, fifteen per cent. were total abstainers, nine per cent. were hard, and seventy-five per cent. moderate drinkers.
