AN INTERESTING SERMON.

A sermon recently preached by Archbishop Ireland, that distinguished and liberal minded Roman Catholic prelate of St. Paul, Minnesota, is well worthy of the attention of members of all creeds and denominations. His discourse referred more particularly to the Roman Catholic church and its position in respect to politics and political parties, but it would be well if adherents of other religious denominations would consider and act upon the advice given by the Archbishop. It is not very long since a cry was raised that the claims of the Methodists of Ontario were being ignored in the disposal of public offices, and the complaint has been frequently made that the Roman Catholics of this province were unjustly deprived of representatives on the Supreme Court bench. Then again how often do we hear the complaint that the claims of the Baptists to some appointment have been overlooked, or that the Presbyterians have failed to secure recognition. Archbishop Ireland is one of those who believe that the Church should keep itself entirely aloof from politics and that the question of an applicant's religion should not be considered in making political appointments. "A supreme effort," he declares, "should be made to keep the Church from entangling alliances with any political party. It would be a great misfortune for the Church were she to ally herself with any one special party." He further deprecated the custom of some Roman Catholic papers to boast when a churchman receives political honors. To put in office a man because he is a Protestant is wrong; to put in office a man because he is a Roman Catholic is wrong. "The constitution which gives the suffrage," said he, "does not consider a man's religion but his honesty and ability, and when citizens vote their basis of preference must be not the religion of the candidate but his citizenship and his personal fitness for office. Protestants and Roman Catholics must all become thorough Americans or Canadians as the case may be in their political acts and their civil relations with one another and then there will be no religious discord in the land. There is no opposition on this side of the Atlantic to the political and social rights of churchmen that Roman Catholics need notice, and that never will be."

On reading the reports of the political condition of Newfoundland, one is reminded of the stories told by the old inhabitants of the manner in which election contests were carried on in this county before the adoption of the present electoral laws. Kent County some years ago seemed to be free from the restraint of anything like an electoral law, and some of our citizens still look back with regret to the days of the "little Outlets." Some pretty wild elections have been held in this county, but it is doubtful if Kent ever in its palmy days could furnish a more bitter fight than is now taking place in Newfoundland. Those who are in the spot agree as saying that the present contest surpasses anything ever seen or heard of in these parts. The present outlook appears favorable to the new government. They succeeded in carrying one of their men in the Bay de Verde district in the face of a hostile majority of over four hundred less than a year ago, and the constituencies now open are considered much easier to win. In the meantime the courts are busy decapitating the supporters of the late Whiteway government. On Thursday the Supreme Court delivered judgment in the St. John's West election case unseating and disqualifying the three sitting members, and on Monday the two representatives of Burin district met the same fate.

On the item of two hundred thousand dollars for the revision of the electoral lists, Sir John Thompson took occasion to explain to the House of Commons the changes proposed by the bill amending the Franchise act. The intention is not to make the provincial lists the basis except so far as the revising officers may see fit to use them as such. The most important change contemplated by the amendment is to apply to the different provinces the same principle as that applied to British Columbia and Prince Edward Island when the act was passed. In these two provinces manhood suffrage had been adopted by the local legislatures, and it was decided to allow the local law as to the qualifications of an elector apply also to the Dominion franchise. The amendment proposes to extend this principle to the other provinces and hereafter in the making up of the Dominion electoral lists each province will be governed by the provincial franchise act, as to the qualifications of electors. The time for making the lists will also be shortened by making it commence later in the year, and revising officers have been instructed to take no steps in the revision until after the proposed changes have become law. The adoption of the provincial franchise will largely extend the franchise on this county.

Dr. Weldon's bill for the disfranchisement of corrupt electors has been so mangled while passing through committee that it is doubtful whether the author will care to accept the paternity of the measure. The bill as amended provides that any one desiring an investigation must deposit the sum of one thousand dollars before putting the machinery of the act in motion. Another provision allows an appeal to the Supreme Court by any voter found guilty of accepting a bribe. No proceedings can be taken while an election petition is pending, and no advantage can be taken by the parties to an election petition. The bill is pretty certain to pass in its amended form, but it will scarcely be anything more than an ornament on the statute books. With the cast iron conditions and expensive machinery attached to the act there will be found very few able or willing to take action under it.

The result of the plebiscite on prohibition in Ontario does not appear as great a victory for prohibitionists as was at first supposed. It is true nearly every constituency gave a good majority against the liquor traffic, but an analysis of the result shows that there are a great many who did not take interest enough in the matter to record their votes on the question. The Toronto News remarks that there were a little over 300,000 votes cast in that election and of these 110,000 were nays. In other words only about three-fifths of the electors expressed an opinion of any kind and nearly forty per cent. of those who did vote placed themselves on record as opposed to prohibition. It is apparent that a great deal of work has yet to be done before the people as a body are awakened to the evils of the liquor traffic.

A Mysterious Woman. At a certain town meeting in Pennsylvania the question came up whether any person should have license to sell rum. The clergyman, the deacon and the physician, strange, as it may appear, all seemed to favour it. Only one man spoke against license, and the evil it did. The question was about to be acted upon when there arose from one corner of the room a mysterious woman. She was thin, clad and her appearance indicated, the utmost wretchedness. It was evident that her career was almost ended.

After a moment of silence, all eyes were fixed upon her. She stretched her body to its utmost height, and her long arms to their greatest length; and raising her voice to a shrill pitch, she called to all to look upon her. "Yes," she said, "look upon me, and then hear me. All that the last speaker has said, relating to temperate drinking as being the father of drunkenness is true. All practice, all experience declares 'tis true. All drinking of alcoholic poisons, as beverages in health is excess. Look upon me. You all know me, or once did. You all know that I was once the mistress of one of the best farms in the country. You all know that I had one of the most devoted husbands. You

A MONTREAL MAN Relates an Interesting Personal Experience.

While the following statement of A. D. Thomson, of Montreal, is of local interest as coming from him, it is also of universal interest because it emphasises a great truth. Mr. Thomson says:—"Being troubled with nasal catarrh I was advised to try Hawker's catarrh cure, which I did, and since using it the catarrh has disappeared entirely; in fact I can walk all day and breathe through my nose without the least trouble." What Mr. Thomson says has been his experience, has been the experience of thousands. Even the most aggravated forms of catarrh yield to the wonderful curative power of Hawker's catarrh cure. It restores the breath to its pristine sweetness and removes all disagreeable and unhealthy symptoms of the disease. It is a remarkably quick and sure cure for cold in the head, and will relieve the deafness caused by catarrh. For sale by all druggists at 25 cents per box. This remedy has no equal in its field of operation.

all know that I had fine, noble, healthy, industrious boys. Where are they now? Doctors, where are they now? You all know. You all know they lie in a row, side by side, in yonder churchyard—all—every one of them—filling drunkards' graves. They all were taught that temperate drinking was safe; that excess alone should be avoided. But they never acknowledged excess. They quoted you and you, and you," pointing with her shreds of finger at the minister, deacon and physician "you, as authority. They thought themselves safe under such teachers.

"But I saw the gradual change coming over my family. With horror and dismay I felt that we were to be overwhelmed in one common ruin. I tried to break the spell, the delusive spell, in which the idea of temperate drinking had involved my husband and sons. I begged, I prayed, but the odds were against me. The minister said that the poison that was destroying my husband and sons was a gift from above. The deacon, who sits under the pulpit there, and who took our farm to pay his rum bill, and sold them the poison. The doctor said that a little was good, and excess should only be avoided.

"My poor husband and dear boys, all fell into the snare and could not escape. One after another they were conveyed to the sorrowful grave of the drunkard. "Now look upon me again! You probably see me for the last time. My sands are a most run. I dragged my exhausted frame from my present home—your poor house—to warn you all—to warn you deacon, to warn you false teachers of God's word." With her arms stretched upward, and her voice raised to the highest pitch, she exclaimed, "I shall soon stand before the judgment-seat of God. I shall soon meet you all there, you false guides, and be a witness against you all." The mysterious woman disappeared. A dead silence pervaded the assembly.

The minister, the deacon, and physician hung their heads, and the president of the assembly put the question, "Shall any license be granted for the sale of spirituous liquors?" The unanimous response was, "No."

The Sun's Buctouche correspondent writes:—"The local government must think that any kind of a bridge will do as long as a horse can get over, and that bridges are safe until they fall. The Buctouche highway bridge has one short span gone for over a month, and a frail temporary structure runs across and it stands at that. What is the reason? Is it neglect? Is it being put off so that other repairs will become necessary and it will be a fatter job for some one? Or is it being put off until some particular favorite who is working elsewhere will be at leisure to come. COULD HARDLY WALK ON ACCOUNT OF RHEUMATISM P. H. FORD Quachita City, La., After TWO YEARS Suffering IS CURED BY THE USE OF Ayer's Sarsaparilla

FOR fully two years, I suffered from rheumatism, and was frequently in such a condition that I could hardly walk. I spent some time in Hot Springs, Ark., and the treatment helped me for the time being; but soon the complaint returned and I was as badly afflicted as ever. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being recommended, I resolved to try it, and after using six bottles, I was completely cured."—P. H. FORD, Quachita City, La. Admitted AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

GREAT SALE OF Grey and White Cottons.

WE will inaugurate this week and the coming weeks the Greatest Sale of COTTONS ever held in Moncton. Grey and White Cottons are lower now than at any time for 15 years. Somebody is losing money, but we are not.

Read what "The Daily Telegraph" of May 18th says about the Cotton Combine:—

"The Cotton Combine and the St. John Mills." The movements of the cotton combine men at the present time are somewhat mysterious. For the past three years all their mills have been working up to their full capacity, and stock has been piled up so that there is a supply of cotton goods far beyond the needs of the country. Prices were, however, fairly well maintained up to the 15th of April, when a cut of 10 per cent. was made. This did not appear to have the effect intended, and on Saturday last the combine announced another cut of 15 per cent. This brings the price of cotton cloth down to from 13 to 16 cents per pound, according to quality, an unprecedentedly low figure. The significance of these two cuts will be better understood by the reader if he places the matter in the form of a little arithmetical calculation. Let us suppose that the combine had on hand prior to the 6th of April last, a stock of cottons worth $1,000,000, and this we understand is very much below the true figure, these goods would now be worth only $750,000. Thus the combine would have lost, in the brief space of six weeks, $250,000 as a result of their own action in cutting the price. Now, why have these two cuts been made? If the object was to sell off their stock more rapidly it has not been accomplished, because the sales have not increased to any appreciable extent. If the object was to permanently close the two cotton mills in this city, which are not in the combine, that does not seem likely to be accomplished either. It is true that the St. John mills cannot make cotton with profit at present prices, but neither can the mills in the combine. With raw cotton at 9 cents the price of cloth, as made by the present cut, are below cost, and as the combine mills make 20 times as much cotton as the St. John mills, their loss in selling cotton at such a low rate will be 20 times as great. As a matter of fact the St. John mills have no surplus stock, and are therefore not suffering any loss except such as arises from the being temporarily closed down. In the meantime people are wondering whether some person is not squeezing the combine and compelling them to unload their goods at an enormous sacrifice.

Prices we will guarantee are the lowest ever quoted in Moncton. Sale commences at 8 o'clock in the morning and ends at 6 o'clock standard.
