PRICE 50 CENTS.

Merely Curious.

There is no end to the mischief that John Phoenix of California is responsible for. A short time ago while enjoying himself at a theatre, he observed a man sitting three seats in front of him whom he thought he knew. He requested the person sitting next to him to "punch the other individual with his cane." The polite fellow did so, and on the disturbed person turning his head a little he discovered his mistake—he was not the person he took him for. Fixing his attention steadfastly on the play and affecting unconsciousness of the whole affair, he left the man with the cane to settle with the other for the disturbance, who being wholly without excuse, there was of course a ludicrous and embarrassing scene—during all of which Phoenix was profoundly interested in the play. At last the man with the cane asked, rather indignantly: "Didn't you tell me to punch that person with my stick?"

"Yes."

"Then what did you want?"

"I wanted to see whether you would punch him or not."

A Monkey's Good Manners.

"I was amused at an act of politeness I once witnessed on the part of a monkey that had a very peculiar effect on my mind," said Stephen L. Warner, of Beatrice, Neb., recently. "One day an Italian organ grinder, accompanied by a trained monkey, wandered into our town and the man stopped before my house to play. The monkey was an intelligent little fellow and was attired in a jacket and a cap. While his master was grinding out the music the monkey hopped down from the organ where he had been sitting, and jumping the fence, came up into my yard. He was at once spied by a fox terrier of mine, and the dog made a rush at him. The monkey awaited the onset with such undisturbed tranquility that the dog halted within a few yards of him to reconnoitre. Both animals took a long steady stare at each other, when suddenly the monkey raised his paw and gracefully saluted his enemy by raising his hat. The effect was magical. The dog's head and tail dropped and he sneaked off into the house and would not leave it until satisfied that his polite but mysterious guest had departed.

Nice for Jones.

A very learned and compassionate judge on passing sentence on one Jones who had been convicted of murder, concluded his remarks as follows:

"The fact is, Jones, the Court did not at first intend to order you to be executed before next spring; but the weather is so very cold, our jail is unfortunately in a bad condition, much of the glass in the windows is broken, the chimneys are in such a dilapidated state that no fire can be made to render your apartment comfortable; besides, owing to the great number of prisoners, not more than one blanket can be allowed to each, and to sleep sound and comfortable is therefore out of the question."

"In consideration of these circumstances, and wishing to lessen your sufferings as much as possible, the Court, in the exercise of humanity and compassion, do hereby order you to be executed tomorrow morning as soon after breakfast as may be convenient to the sheriff and agreeable to you."

"One of my sick headaches," you will hear people frequently say, as if the complaint was hopelessly incurable. As a matter of fact, Ayer's Pills not only relieve sick headache but effectually remove the cause of this distressing complaint, and so bring about a permanent cure.

The outside peel of onions makes a good lining for hen's nests, as the odor from this vegetable drives away the lice, which are sure to be the worst on the hen that is sitting if there are any in the hen house. It is well to rub a little grease on the neck of sitting hens to destroy the lice, but it should not be used plentifully or put on their breasts. Grease of any kind closes the pores of the egg, and when its supply of air is cut off the chick is sure to die in the shell.

Blood-purifiers, though gradual, are radical in their effect. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is intended as a medicine only and not a stimulant, excitant or beverage. Immediate results may not always follow its use; but after a reasonable time, permanent benefit is certain to be realized.

A persistent sitter usually half starves herself in her devotion to her eggs. This is not necessary. If taken off the nest twice a day and not allowed to get to the nest until a feed of grain has been given, and the hen will be nearly as heavy at the end of three weeks as she was when she began. She will turn off the chicks early and begin laying for another litter. The best feed for sitting hens is wheat. A little wheat has nutrition of better kind and more concentrated than any other grain. It is not so fattening as corn, but the hen sitting still does not need fattening food, and will not eat enough of it to keep herself from becoming thin.

PERMANENTLY CURED
BY USING

Ayer's Pills

"My husband was subject to severe attacks of neuralgia which caused him great pain and suffering. The pains were principally about his eyes, and he often had to remain in a darkened room, not being able to stand the light. Ayer's Pills being recommended, he tried them, using one before each meal. They very soon afforded relief, followed by permanent cure. I am a strong believer in the efficacy of Ayer's Pills, and would not be without them for ten times their cost."—Mrs. M. E. DEBART, Liberty, Tex.

"I have used Ayer's Pills in my family for forty years, and regard them as the very best."—Uncle MARTIN HANCOCK, Lake City, Fla.
