county to the industrial school at St. John, $150.00.

For shorthand reporting of evidence in all criminal causes tried in the courts held in the county, such sums as shall be ordered by the sitting judge to be paid out of county contingent fund.

Therefore in view of the above facts, your committee respectfully recommend the adoption by this Council of the resolution of which Councillor McKay gave notice that he would move Friday morning at eleven o'clock.

J. G. ATKINSON, ROBERT SMITH, JAMES MCKAY.

COUN. MCKAY'S RESOLUTION.

Next day Coun. McKay submitted the following resolution:

Whereas recent legislation by the local legislature has imposed large burdens upon the various municipalities for the registration of births, marriages and deaths; for the preservation of the public health; for a large share of the cost of the support and education of the blind, namely, the sum of $75 annually for each and every pupil sent from the county to Halifax school or other institutions for the blind, the said sum having been made a charge upon the county school fund; also the sum of $80 annually towards the support and education of the deaf and dumb institution in Fredericton, which is also made a charge upon the county school fund; also the sum of $65 annually towards the support of each and every one of a certain class of pauper lunatics now in the Provincial Lunatic Asylum, or that may hereafter be admitted into that institution, said last mentioned sum to be levied upon the parish from which said pauper lunatic, in the same manner as other rates and taxes are assessed; the sum of $150 annually toward the support and education of each and every boy who may be sent from the county to the Boys' Industrial Home, except in cases where the parent or guardian of the boy is in such circumstances as to be able to pay said annual cost; also a part of the cost of shorthand reporting in the court.

And whereas taxation upon the county has in consequence of such legislation already largely increased, because of the payment of some of the above mentioned charges which have hitherto been borne by the province and paid out of provincial revenue;

And whereas taxation is likely in consequence of such legislation to be still further largely increased in the near future; Therefore resolved that this county council enters its earnest protest against all such objectionable legislation and calls upon the representatives of the county in the legislative assembly of the province to do what they can to effect the repeal of such enactments and prevent the imposition of further burdens of a like character upon the municipalities.

This resolution was also adopted. The discussion showed that the council were very strongly opposed to the policy of the government in unloading their obligations upon the municipalities. Mr. Russell, one of Charlotte's representatives in the legislature, is also a member of the Charlotte County Council. He explained that he was an independent supporter of the government in the legislature, but in endeavoring to consult the best interests of the people he had been compelled to oppose the government in some of their recent measures, notably the lunatic asylum bill. "With regard," he said, "to unloading pauper lunatics upon the counties he was bound to oppose it most strenuously."

A Boston Business Girl. "Father I would like to see you in the library on a matter of business."

"Very well, Viola; come along. Now then, what is it?"

"Father, you are aware that James Noodenhammer has been paying me his attentions for the last year?"

"Yes, and I've felt like kicking him. The idea of a Noodenhammer daring to aspire to the hand of a Grafton!"

"He has asked me to be his wife."

"The scoundrel! Why, I'll maul the tar out of him!"

"And I have almost promised," she placidly continued.

"What! What! My daughter marry a Noodenhammer working for $15 a week? Never! Go to your room while I seek this base adven!"

"Father I want to talk straight business with you," she interrupted. "As you are aware, this is the State of Massachusetts."

"Yes."

"Have you seen the vital statistics of the state for the last year?"

"No; of course not. The idea of that Jim Noodenhammer skulking around here after my!"

"Wait! According to the statistics this State has 571,240 more females than males. There are 228,800 more marriageable girls than can find husbands, to say nothing of 182,321 widows anxious for a No. 2. The number of young men in the State earning over $15 a week and in the market is only 22,107. There are camped on the trail of these young men exactly 220,000 young women and 150,000 widows. Three out of every five children born are girls. Death removes two young men to one married man or old bachelor.

The old man turned pale and grasped a chair for support, and, after a pause she continued:

"From June to October over 80,000 marriageable young women visit our watering places, and it is estimated that 31,442 of them catch husbands, thus far from reducing the chances of a resident. Father take this pencil and figure on your Viola's chances of catching another man if she lets James Noodenhammer center away."

"Great Scott!" he gasped, figuring for a moment. "Why, your chances are only one in 21,875,947!"

"Just as I figured it out myself. What shall I say to him this evening?"

"Say! Say! Why tell him you'll have him and be mighty glad of the chance, and don't let him draw a long breath before you add that the ceremony can take place right after breakfast to-morrow morning, and that I'm to give you a wedding present of $5,000 in cash!"—Boston Post.

He Wanted More.

In enclosing an order for three bottles of Dr. Manning's German Remedy, E. W. Barlow, of Montreal, a well known commercial man, writes to The Hawker Medicine Co.: "When in Summerside, P. E. I. I received from your Mr. Chestnut a bottle of Dr. Manning's German Remedy, and have used it for Neuralgia, and found great benefit from it. I cannot speak to highly of your remedy, for I believe it is a good one." Dr. Manning's German Remedy is a positive cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sprains, Strains, Bruises, Colic, Chills, Cramps and all pains and aches, either internal or external. An invaluable household remedy. Sold everywhere. Price 50 cents.

To Render Shoes Waterproof. Any shoe that has not a hole in it can be made waterproof by a compound of beeswax and mutton suet. Melt the two together in equal quantities and apply to the leather while hot, taking care to anoint the seams and sides better than the uppers. The leather will be kept soft and will wear much longer.

The most palatable preparation of Cod Liver Oil in the world is Miller's Emulsion, and is now being taken by invalids with astonishing success. Miller's is the kind that cures coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Every bottle warranted. No oily taste like others. In big bottles 50c and $1.00 and $2.00.

How a Yankee Sold His Salted Mine. Judge Stevens, of Ironwood, is a good story teller, and one evening, when the thermometer was below zero at Ironwood and the wind was whistling outside of the cosy room where was burning a cheerful fire he related a tale of a Yankee's shrewdness. The judge is an old miner and went out West with the rush for gold. Near a claim where the judge was working was a thin, angular New Englander, who just kept shovelling ore and paid no attention to anyone else. One day some capitalists came along and casually picked up a few chunks from the Yankee's output. When they got back to town they had them assayed and they yielded wonderful results. The capitalists jumped in the air for joy. Then they went back and there was the old fellow shovelling the same as ever and not saying a word.

"You should interest capital to help you develop that hole in the ground," remarked one of the capitalists.

"Well, I'll get on," returned the Yankee plying his pick with renewed energy.

"You should interest capital to help you develop that hole in the ground," continued the capitalist.

"Can develop it myself, I guess," said the Yankee.

"Think you've got anything?"

"Not yet. Nothing in sight."

Then the gentlemen took several more pieces of rock and went back to town. These assayed even richer than the first samples, and the capitalists were wild with excitement. They went back the following day to see the old man, who gazed upon them with unconcern as they approached. He was a taciturn individual, with an honest face, and he looked as though he would rather die than wrong any one.

"My friend," said one of the capitalists, "what will you sell out for?"

"Wouldn't sell out."

"But we want to buy."

"What do you want to buy for?"

There is nothing here yet. May be some day, but this hole ain't worth anything."

"We want to buy it, though, and will give you $10,000."

"It ain't worth 10 cents."

"Will you sell it?"

"Nope."

"Give you $20,000."

"Nope."

Finally $60,000 was offered.

"Well," said the Yankee, "you can have it if you want, but I tell you it's nothing but a hole in the ground. May be worth a lot some day, but now it ain't worth 60 cents."

But the money was paid and the capitalists received the hole. The hole was not worth 60 cents, but the taciturn Yankee had spread a few rich samples around and then waited for some fish to bite. He had an honest face, but human nature is sometimes deceptive.

Raising Onions. E. T. Perkins, in Mirror and Farmer, says the character of the soil on which I plant onions is sandy. The ground is plowed quite deep early in the spring, when it can be worked easily. Then it is harrowed until well pulverized. It is very important to have it fine, for onion seeds are small and would otherwise drop down too deep. The land is then furrowed and a liberal quantity of well rotted stable manure and ashes are strown in the furrows. I draw the earth which was thrown out back and thoroughly mix it with the manure by hand; probably should do different if growing onions on a large scale.

I believe in early sown seeds for a good crop—the earlier the better—so they will germinate quickly, as the ground is then moist. Cover about half an inch. If planted late, on rather moist soil, they are liable to form thick necks and become nearly worthless. I have broken down the tops of specimens that acted in this manner, but have never seen much good resulting from the treatment, as the necks will never dry up like the rest; often they grow up again if the season is wet. I used to plant in beds, but they are difficult to weed. By planting in rows there is much less work in keeping the weeds out. They must be kept free from weeds, for you cannot grow both. When the little plants appear, I sprinkle ashes over the ground. Some advise planting radishes among the onions, as the onion maggots will attack them first; then they can be pulled and more planted. By this method you can destroy many of them, and perhaps save the crop from destruction.

All Men.

Young, old, or middle aged, who find themselves nervous, weak and exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork, resulting in many of the following symptoms: Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory, bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headache, pimples on the face and body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscles, eyelids, and elsewhere, bashfulness, deposits in the urine, loss of will-power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, drowsiness, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice, desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes, surrounded with LEADEN CIRCLES, only looking skin, etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity unless cured. The spring of vital force having lost its tension every function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse, committed in ignorance, may be permanently cured. Midnight in a Hundred Years.

A romantic story attaches to a quantity of precious Gobelin tapestry woven to illustrate classical legends, which has recently been found in Paris. When Marie-Antoinette of France was married to Louis-Augustus of Savoy, she carried these twenty pieces of tapestry with her to Italy. When Napoleon invaded Italy, the priceless webs mysteriously disappeared. The two officials who had hidden them, died, and no one could find the place of concealment when it was again safe to make use of them. After nearly a hundred years, they have recently been discovered in a secret chamber behind some dress in a store-room on the top floor of the old palace.

Indispensable.—There are some simple remedies indispensable in every family. Among these, the experience of years assures us, should be recorded Barry Davis' PAIN-RELIEVER. For both internal and external application we have found it of great value; especially can we recommend it for colds, rheumatism, or fresh wounds and bruises.—Christian Era.

Queer Use of Words.

English is so heterogeneous, the English is, oftentimes provocative of both amusement and amusement. A newly imported English governess was recently told by her American lady patroness that, owing to a sudden shortage in servants, she would have to ask her to have the care of her own bedroom until the deficiency in service was supplied.

To which the accomplished Englishwoman naively replied: "Well, I will willingly make my own bed, but I tell you frankly, madam, I will not broom a room."
