Harcourt Xmas Entertainment.

Nothing in religious circles, worthy of mention transpired in our locality except the entertainment in the Presbyterian church under the able direction of Rev. Mr. Steven.

The S. S. children in their series of recitations, hymns and dialogues, most praiseworthy acquitted themselves. Master Grover Livingston, a blind boy, is especially worthy of mention for his masterly recitation, and we trust the next time we hear the children, Master Grover may be among them.

A Xmas tree beautifully decorated with burning wax candles, and a present from their pastor to each of the children, (much to their surprise) occupied a prominent position in the church. These presents, taken from the tree by the elders, were next passed to Mrs. Jas. Brown, who presented them to the little "dots" as their names were announced by Miss Ingram.

During the entertainment, Mrs. Gordon Livingston seemingly embracing the best opportunity, stepped forward and read the following address:—

To Mrs. J. N. Wathen:

Since we as a congregation feel deeply grateful to you for the interest you have ever taken in our church, and more particularly for your untiring efforts during the past few months, we think that this joyous season is a fitting time to express our appreciation of your services.

While wishing yourself, husband and family a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, we ask of you to accept the accompanying gift as a slight token of our appreciation.

Trusting that your life may be long spared to labour for your family and the church, we remain on behalf of the congregation,

Yours truly,

- MRS. D. D. JOHNSTON,
- MRS. A. DUNN,
- MRS. JAS. BROWN,
- MRS. KESWICK,
- MRS. G. H. PERRY,
- MRS. G. L. LIVINGSTON,
- MISSSES AUGUSTA AND HELEN CAMPBELL,
- WM CAMPBELL.

This was most perceptibly a surprise, and Mr. Wathen stepping forward on the recipient's behalf, appropriately replied. The admission fee of five cents amounted to a considerable sum.

Mr. Steven is to be congratulated for this entertainment, and when the next round comes, all wish their pastor joys at home and able assistance in the church.

A Temperance Letter.

Editor Review:

It gives me great pleasure to read in the recent issues of THE REVIEW that the temperance workers of Kent Co. are working up to their responsibilities. They have a large field, and although it may at first be a slow process, yet work done in the name of the Master is never done in vain. It is not only a work for the pledged total abstainers, that is those who are regular members of the I. O. G. T. or such organizations, it is a personal individual work in which all may lend a hand. "Who is that beastly drunkard across the street," said a mother recently, "Oh, it is our George" said her daughter. That makes the question different. He is a man then, not a beast.

Remember that, mothers, he is a man; if not your son, he is somebody's boy. It is pleasant to sit in the comfortable home and sing "Rescue the perishing," but at the same time let my neighbour do the work. Temperance lecturers will not accomplish the work on public platforms branding men with all sorts of names, because they drink rum. Man will lead, but he won't drive. The temperance lecturer often reminds me of the Christian worker during the late war, who went into the hospital and gave a tract on dancin' to a man who had both legs taken off. The minister can't do the work preaching sermons on drinkin'. The people must take hold of it.

Who will come to the help of the Lord against the mighty? What about you churchmembers? Which way is your influence working? What about you fathers? The son says "I'll take what father takes."

Excellent laws has our noble country, excellent administrators, good municipal councilors, and yet how often has the cry gone up from many a broken heart, "How long, oh Lord, how long" will they grant licenses to men to rob our husbands, destroy our sons, and send us with sorrow to an early grave.

A Mine Horror.

HALIFAX, Dec 29.—Hezekiah Loois, Michael Savage, William Turpel and Angus Faulkner, were drowned in the Symonds Kaye gold mine at Montague, ten miles from Halifax, at midnight Wednesday. At a depth of seventy-five feet is a tunnel running two hundred and fifty feet east and west. The gang working at the east end of this tunnel fired off a blast. There was supposed to be a distance of fifty feet between this tunnel and an old working, but instead of fifty there was only five feet of wall. The blast drove a hole through this thin partition, through which water from the old workings rushed with great velocity. Kenneth Miller, Edward Pace, Wm. Pace, and George Grant, who were in the western end of the tunnel, escaped, but the others were like drowned rats in trap. There was no possible escape for them. In a short time there was over forty feet of water in the shaft. Later reports from the mines are to the effect that the drowning was due to the grossest carelessness.

The tunnel was known to be dangerous. Old miners would not work in it. The managing director, Alfred Wadehouse, is a stranger to the district. He has no plans of the workings but was working toward an old tunnel full of water, supposing it to be fifty feet distant. It was only five feet distant. The underground manager of the mine was a hotel waiter a few months ago and had no mining experience. The victims of the disaster were young fellows two of whom had only been working in the mine a few days. Last night the underground manager is said to have been warned that he was in dangerous proximity to the old tunnel full of water, that the water was then leaking through, and that he was digging a death trap for the men. Wadehouse says the responsibility for the disaster is with the men who worked the old mine, inasmuch as they left no plans of it, and his drifts toward the old tunnel were being driven from hearsay reports of the location of the old tunnels. The bodies will not likely be recovered for a week.

Painless Death.

The signs of impending death, says the Medical Journal, are many and variable. No two instances are precisely identical, yet several signs are common to many cases. Many people have an idea that death is necessarily painful, even agonizing but there is no reason whatever to suppose so. It is because in a certain proportion of cases, dissolution is accompanied by a visible spasm and distortion of the countenance that the idea exists, but it is as nearly certain as anything can be that these distortions of the facial muscles are not only painless, but take place unconsciously. In many instances, too, a comatose or semi-comatose state supervenes, and it is altogether probable that more or less complete unconsciousness then prevail. We have abundant evidence of people who have been nearly drowned and resuscitated, and they all agree in the statement that after a few moments of painful struggling, fear and anxiety pass away, and a state of tranquillity succeeds. They see the visions of green fields, and in some cases hear pleasing music, and so far from being miserably the sensations are delightful. But where attempts at resuscitation are successful, the resuscitated persons almost invariably protest against being brought back to life, and declare that resuscitation is accompanied by physical pain and acute mental misery. Death is a fact which every man must personally experience, and consequently is of universal interest, and, as facts are facts, the wiser course is to look them squarely in the face, for necessarily coal black and death keeps no calendar.
