WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION COLUMN.

All Communications to this Column Should be Addressed to Mrs. J. Stevenson, Secretary W. C. T. U. Richibucto.

Women's Christian Temperance Union Richibucto, will meet every fortnight at the residence of Miss Ostle. Meetings on Thursday at 3 p. m. Mothers' meetings will be held every fortnight on alternate Wednesdays, at the same place and hour. Mothers are requested to attend.

Trust the people—the wise and the ignorant, the good and the bad—with the gravest question, and in the end you educate the race.

On Behalf of Police Matrons.

While I was in Chicago in August some of the women were looking over the plans for four new police stations. It transpired as they talked that they have succeeded in establishing a woman's advisory board of the police, consisting of ten women appointed by the chief of police, and in charge of the quarters of all women and children prisoners and of the station house matrons, two of whom are allotted to each station where women are taken. Through the work of the women, Chicago led in this reform, which is now extending to the chief cities of the country.

Now all women and juveniles are separated from the men in nine of the Chicago precinct stations, to one which every such prisoner must be taken, no matter at what time or on what charge such a person is arrested. The chief matron is Mrs. Jane Logan, a woman who came to Chicago from Toronto and became conspicuous in the Woman's club and in the Household Art Association. Miss Sweet "coaxed her into the police work," and the mayor appointed her chief matron. She has an office in a down town station, where the worst prisoners are taken, as well as the friendless girls and waifs who drift in at the railway stations. The waifs are all taken to her, and she never leaves them until they are on their way back to their homes, or to better guardianship. She maintains "an annex," kept clean and sweet, with homelike beds and pictures, and to this place are taken any first offenders and others of saving whom she thinks there is a chance. Female witnesses are also kept there instead of in the prisoners' cells and all who go to the annex are entirely secluded from reporters as well as all others. Two of the best matrons of the force are in charge day and night. All woman and girl prisoners are attended to at court, even the drunken woman being washed and dressed and made to look respectable. Mrs. Logan always goes herself with the young girls to see that they are not approach and in order that, if it is just and advantageous that they should escape punishment, she may plead with the court for their release. Formerly every woman who was arrested was searched by men, and thrown into a cell in the same jail room with the male prisoners. Lost children, homeless girls, and abandoned woman were all huddled together. The woman of the city "couldn't stand it," they say. They worked eight years, led by Miss Sweet to bring about the new accomplished reform.

In all cases in which women complain of abuse or mistreatment by the police or others, Mrs. Logan sits on the police trial board "to show the unfortunate woman that she has a friend." The board is comprised of five inspectors and the assistant chief of police, and the president asked her to join the sessions whenever a woman is involved in any case that comes before it.

The police do not oppose the work of the women. Desperate and abandoned females used to make fearful charges against the patrolmen and others on the force under the old regime.—Julian Ralph in Harper's Monthly, July, 1893.

Some of Woman's Work in Chicago.

Mrs. Fanny Howe is president of the Protective agency, one of the most remarkable humanitarian organizations in the city of Chicago. Its founder, Mrs. I. D. Harvey, is the daughter of Judge Platt who was distinguished among the early settlers of the town, but one of the greatest workers in it, and the person who has done the most toward developing it is Mrs. Charlotte Cushing Holt. She is studying law just now, because she needs that branch of knowledge in order to advise the poor. The Protective agency protects women and children in all their rights of property and person, gives them legal advice, recovers wages for servants, sewing women and shop girls who are being swindled; finds guardians for defenceless children; procures divorces for women who are abused or neglected; protects the mothers' right to their children. It has obtained heavy sentences against men in case of outrage—so very heavy that this crime is seldom committed. In a matter akin to this the women of this society perform what seems to me a most extraordinary work. It is a part of the belief of these ladies that all women have rights, no matter how bad or lost to decency some of them may be. Therefore they stand united against the ancient custom among criminal lawyers of destroying a woman's testimony by showing her bad character. This these women call "a many-century-old trick to throw a woman out of court and deny her justice."

As an instance of the manner in which they display their zeal on behalf of the principle that no matter how bad a woman is she should have fair play, there was this state of affairs: Five mistresses of disorderly resorts had brought as many young girls to Mrs. Logan (police matron) and said they wanted them saved. The girls were pure, but had been brought to the house in question by men who had pretended that they were taking them to restaurants or respectable dwellings. The agency caused the arrest of the men implicated, and when the first case came up for trial the agency sent for fourteen or sixteen married women of fine social position to come to court and sit through the trial to see fair play. When the bagnio-keeper, who was the chief witness against the prisoner, took the stand she testified that the girl had been told that her house was a restaurant where she was to have supper. Undeceived, she was greatly frightened, and the woman took charge of her. Then the counsel for the defence began to draw out the story of the woman's evil life and habits. He was rebuked from the bench, and was told that the woman's character for chastity could not effect her testimony, and that when counsel asked such questions of women witnesses the court would insist that similar questions be put to all male witnesses in each case, with the same intent to destroy the force of the depositions. Thus was established a new principle in criminal practice. In the other case prosecuted by the agency the same array of matrons in silks, laces and jewels was conspicuous in the court rooms. The police and court officials are said to have been astonished at this proceeding by women of their standing. But the women have not only gained a step towards perfect justice for their sex, they say that their presence in court has put an end to the ribaldry that was always a feature of trials of the kind.—Julian Ralph in Harper's Monthly, July, 1893.

To all New Brunswick Sunday School Workers.

The 11th annual New Brunswick Provincial Sunday School Convention will open at Chatham on evening of Oct. 15th and continuing through the 16th and 17th. Mr. Wm. Reynolds the well known International Field Supt. and Mrs. W. F. Crafts President of the International Primary Union, are expected. Each S. S. is priviledged to send two delegates and each County Convention has elected five. It is desired that this shall be a Convention of representative Sunday School workers—such as will take back to County, parish and school, its lessons for practice. County and Parish officers, Supt. and primary teachers will note this. The programme will contain conferences for benefit of these and their work.

Superintendents, elect your delegates without delay and send their names by postcard to D. P. McLachlan, Chatham. Do not neglect this. The committee in Chatham engage to do their best for delegates but they ask that names reach them not later than Oct. 8th. While the local committee cannot guarantee homes to other than delegates, it would be profitable to any christian workers to attend these sessions.

Reduced fares at I. C. R. Stations Delegates and visitors will ask for Convention Certificate with first class single fare ticket. This Certificate being signed by Secy. in Convention will ensure a free return. On the Canada Eastern Ry. ask for ticket to Convention. A certificate will be given you in Convention which you will present to ticket agent on returning. Albert and Central Rys. will give return for single fare to those going to Convention. Shore line will issue their usual Excursion ticket to delegates for Convention. C. P. R. conditions are too complicated for us to offer anything but their ordinary return ticket. St. John and Miramichi river boats, it is believed, will give return for single fare, but their reply is delayed. All pastors are members without election. It is reported many of these will attend, will they kindly forward their names also to D. P. McLachlan so that homes may be provided. All trains and boats will be met and delegates conducted to St. Andrews Presb. School Room for registration and direction to homes. It is desired that all come with earnest prayerful purpose in this great work.

A Sensational Yarn.

New York, Sept. 28.—The Herald has the following cable despatch from Santa Maria De Puerto Principe, Cuba, Sept. 20, via Tampa, Fla, Sept. 27: The semi-official newspaper, El Fanal, organ of the Union Constitution, ultra Conservative Spanish party in Cuba, in a leading article makes the assertion that Spain backed by England, Italy and Mexico, is about to demand $500,000 indemnity from the United States on account of the filibustering expeditions organized by naturalized American citizens and despatched from American ports to re-enforce the Cuban insurgents. England, Italy and Mexico, the article goes on to state, having pooled their interests in order at an opportune moment to humiliate the United States and force from that government a complete renunciation of the Monroe doctrine, requested some time ago the concurrence of Spain in a joint naval demonstration against the leading ports of the United States and have only been waiting Spain's acceptance of the invitation to carry out the plan. New York, it is admitted, is the point where the allied fleet will first make its appearance and if the demonstration fails to have the effect desired it may be followed up by more positive measures. In connection with those assertions El Fanal announces that the Spanish government will immediately increase its force upon the island of Cuba to 180,000 men and proceed at once to re-fortify Havana and other Cuban cities and ports of importance, for which purpose Krupp guns and imperial torpedos of big calibre have already been purchased in Europe. As a matter of fact the forts about Havana have all been strengthened during the past fortnight, but it may be added that most of the new guns, instead of pointing seaward to defend the port against attack, are turned upon the city itself.

The Two Matches.

One day there was a traveler in the woods in California in the dry season, when the trades were blowing strong, wrote the late R. L. Stevenson. He had ridden a long way, and he was tired and hungry, and dismounted from his horse to smoke a pipe. But when he felt in his pocket he found but two matches. He struck the first and it would not light.

"Here is a pretty state o' things," said the traveler. "Dying for a smoke; only one match left and that certain to miss fire. Was there ever a creature so unfortunate? And yet," thought the traveler, suppose I light this match and smoke my pipe, and shake out the dottle here in the grass—the grass might catch on fire, for it is dry like tinder; and while I snatch out the flames in front they might evade and run behind me, and seize upon yon bush of poison oak; before I could reach it that would have blazed up. Over the bush I see a pine tree hung with moss; that, too, would fly in fire upon the instant to its topmost bough; and the flame of that long torch, how would the trade wind take and brandish that through the impenetrable forest? I hear this dell roar in a moment with the joint voice of wind and fire; I see myself gallop for my soul, and the flying conflagration run and outflank me through the hills; I see this pleasant forest burn for days, and the cattle roasted, and the springs dried up, and the farmer ruined, and his children cast upon the world. What a world hangs upon this moment."

With that he struck the match, and it missed fire.

"Thank God," said the traveler, and he put his pipe in his pocket.

The Murder of Stambuloff.

Madame Stambuloff is urging a curious piece of circumstantial evidence against M. Natchovitch, whom she accuses of having been implicated directly in the murder of her husband. In a recent interview she said: "My accusation is specially directed against M. Natchovitch, but I cannot exculpate M. Stoiloff, although I cannot conceive why he should be prejudiced against my husband, with whom he had always been formerly on a most friendly footing. I am not surprised at anything which M. Natchovitch does, as his past speaks against him. When, four years ago, M. Beltcheff was struck by a bullet intended for M. Stambuloff, M. Natchovitch came to me and asked for the measurements of my husband's shirt, as he wished to have a bullet-proof shirt made for my husband in Vienna. I gave him the measurements, and a fortnight later he brought the shirt, which, as experiments proved, afforded protection against revolver bullets. My husband, however, disliked articles of clothing which restricted his freedom of movement, and he never wore the shirt. Only M. Natchovitch, my husband and I knew of the existence of this shirt, and I alone was aware that M. Stambuloff never used it. My husband had not a single wound on his body; they were all on his head. Judge for yourself whether that is not a startling fact."

A Joke on the Proprietor.

A young newspaper man working his way east from Denver tells of some amusing incidents of his experience in a city which is one of Denver's rivals. The newspaper on which he worked was owned by an old fellow who had worked his way up from poverty to proprietorship and whose proprietorship of a newspaper was acquired under a mortgage foreclosure.

As soon as the old man got hold of the property he began to look around to see where he could save a few dollars in the running expenses. Several weeks passed before he ventured a suggestion. Said he: "Do you know that fellow that works in the little room upstairs—the fellow who works with a pair of shears and a paste pot?"

"Why, yes; that is Tompkins, the exchange editor," said the manager.

"Tompkins? Yes, that's his name. Well, you want to keep your eye on him. In fact, if you take my advice you'll give him the grand bounce next pay day."

"Why? He is one of the best men on the force."

"Don't you believe it. I have been watchin' him unbeknown for several days, and I give you my word 'n honor he don't do a thing from sun to sun except sit there with his feet cocked up and read newspapers. Fire him! He is soldiering, an' you can bet on it."

With great difficulty the manager made the irate proprietor understand that it was the business of the exchange editor to read newspapers, and that the more he read the better his work was likely to be.

Like the Touch of Magic

Desperate Itchings of the Skin Allayed by Chase's Ointment—The Recognized Skin Specific.

It is only a few months since Dr. Chase's Ointment was brought prominently before the public, principally by its cures of stubborn and long standing cases of Itching Piles that had defied all other treatments. To-day it is recognized from ocean to ocean as an infallible cure for Itching Piles, Eczematic Eruptions and all Itching of the Skin. Its cures have rendered its sales larger than those of all other preparations for such ailments combined. People use Dr. Chase's Ointment with confidence, because in every community someone has been benefitted like Mr. Simpson, Berlin, Ont., who, under date of Feb. 8, '95, writes that for a number of years he was troubled with Itching Piles; they caused intense suffering, and although dozens of advertised remedies were used, none of them did any good although some of them had long and thorough trials. Here are his own words quoted from his letter. "Last fall I got a box of Chase's Ointment from Mr. Landreth's drug store, Berlin. I applied according to direction and soon found it was what I wanted. Only used part of one box when I was well as ever in my life. Once in a while since I have felt slight symptoms of its return, but one application of the Ointment and all is right again."

Such expressions as this from those who use Chase's account for its popularity.
