The Work of the Mississippi.

A writer in Longman's Magazine says: The Mississippi has in the course of ages transported from the mountains and high lands within its drainage area sufficient material to make 400,000 square miles of new land by filling up an estuary which extended from its original outfall to the Gulf of Mexico for a length of 500 miles, and in width from 30 to 40 miles. This river is still pouring solid matter into the Gulf, where it is spread out in a fanlike shape over a coast line of 150 miles, and is filling up at the rate of 362,000,000 tons a year, or six times as much soil as was removed in the construction of the Manchester ship canal, and sufficient to make a square mile of new land, allowing for its having to fill up the Gulf to a depth of eighty yards. Some idea of the vastness of this operation may be conceived when some of this soil may be transported more than 3000 miles; and that if the whole of it had to be carried in boats at the lowest rate at which heavy material is carried on the inland waters of America, or, say, for one-tenth of a penny per mile over an average of half the total distance, the cost would be no less a sum than £238,000,000 a year. Through the vast delta thus formed the river winds its way, twisting and turning by innumerable bends until it extends its length to nearly 1200 miles, or more than double point-to-point length of the delta, continually eroding the banks in one place and building up land in another, occasionally breaking the way across a narrow neck which lies between the two extremities, and filling up the old channel.

Deserting the Soil.

The flocking of the rural population to the cities, its results and how to counteract them are problems that yearly become more serious. In the United States there has been a steady growth in the urban population during the last hundred years. In 1790 the percentage of the whole population that lived in the cities was 3.35. In 1890 it had increased to 29.13. It has grown more than 7 per cent in the last decade.

England's percentage of urban population is the highest in Europe—48 per cent. Thrifty Holland is next in the list, for 38 out of every hundred of her inhabitants live in towns. Belgium's percentage is 34.5 and France's but 24.

It is in Sweden and Russia that the rural population is the largest in proportion. In each of these countries 91 persons out of every hundred live outside of the towns. Norway, Greece, Switzerland and Germany in the order named, have the next largest percentage of urban dwellers.

These figures are from a recent essay read before the Societe des Sciences de Hainaut by M. Emile Joffrand, one of the most eminent of European authorities, but he confines himself solely to his figures and does not attempt a solution of the questions involved.

Every schoolboy knows that one of the signs which foretold the crumbling and downfall of the Roman Empire was the gathering of the country people in the towns. At Rome there were 100,000 poor who lived on alms. The fields were deserted and agriculture fell into such a deplorable state that in 193 A. D. the exemption from taxes for ten years was decreed for every person who should till the uncultivated fields of the empire.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.

Sweeney—Moisture, intense itching and stinging, most at night; worse by scratching. It allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. Sweeney's Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At drug stores, or by mail for 50 cents. Dr. Sweeney & Son, Philadelphia. ## Labor Saving Machinery.

The Detroit Free Press says: "It is well known how ingenious machinery has well-nigh revolutionized the once intricate work of the carpenter, leaving only the simplest part of the trade for manual labor. Never was this innovation of patented devices so marked than between 1880 and 1890, yet there were 53,547 carpenters in the United States in the former year, while there were 140,621 in 1890, and the average wages of the latter were $675 as against $450 for those who had far less machinery to contend with. Between the same years great strides were made in the moulding and handling brick by machinery, yet the number of workmen doubled while the number of yards was slightly increased, and the wages advanced from an annual average of $225 to $300. In few industries has the saving of labor by machinery been more marked than in the manufacture of furniture, and the cheapening of the product has been simply amazing; yet the number of men employed in it increased from 55,304 in 1880 to 92,304 in 1890, wages advancing from an average of $453 to $527. This line of evidence might be pursued throughout the list of industries where, for any considerable time, machinery has been doing the work of brain and hands. The conclusion forced is that the introduction of labor-saving machinery is not to reduce permanently the number of employees, but simply to adjust the working force and insure higher wages."

"Some of the world's finest literature is out of print," remarked the bibliophile. "That's right," replied the poet, "I can't get an editor to touch my productions."

How She Fixed Him.

He was a theistic lover, and she didn't like his style a little bit. He was constant in his devotions however, and that made matters worse. She had tried gentle means to get rid of him, but he disregarded them with painful persistency.

In this moment of her desperation he felt it incumbent on him to propose to her, as men under similar circumstances so often do.

Which they wouldn't if they had any sense at all.

"Dear one," he exclaimed, hurling himself tragically at her feet, "I love you. My life is yours. Will you take it?"

She did not look like a murderer.

"Mr. Singleton," she responded, with calm determination, "I will."

"Don't do that," she begged, drawing back from him as if in horror: "I have taken your life, as you requested me to do, and you are henceforth to all intents and purposes dead."

He seemed dazed.

"I do not, Mr. Singleton," she continued turning aside; "desire to have a dead person in the house, and if you do not go away at once I shall ring for an ambulance and have you removed to the morgue."

Then the dreadful situation in which his own precipitate folly had placed him was revealed, and he removed himself with promptness and despatch.

Rat-Catching Clams.

They tell big stories about the feats of Puget Sound clams, but the one told by Edward A. Chase, of the North Pacific fish company, is just a trifle ahead of most of them.

Saturday morning when Mr. Chase went into the warehouse he heard a rustling in a box of clams. On investigation he found that a rat had invaded the box, and just as he approached the jaws of a monster clam shut down on the rodent's tail, holding it fast. The rat squealed, but the clam held it tight. Mr. Chase, anticipating the comment of friends who would cry clam story when he would relate the circumstances, called witnesses, and then set about to extricate the imprisoned rat. The result was that the rat was released, but got away minus an inch of tail.

An hour or so later Mr. Chase returned to the warehouse to find that another daring rat had ventured into the box, and in an attempt to pull some of the clams out of the shell with his forefoot had also been made a prisoner by the clam shutting down on the member. For several hours the firmly attached pair were exhibited, and then the rat was killed.—Tacoma Ledger.

Death from Stubbing a Toe.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 27.—Inflammation, resulting from stubbing his toe several weeks ago, caused the death to-day of the Rev. Dr. James Polk Gammon, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of this city. Soon after the slight injury was received inflammation set in, and the toe was amputated. This did not stop the inflammation, and the rest of the foot was taken off. The disease had gone too far, however, and resulted in the sufferer's death.

Dr. Gammon was named after President Polk, who was an intimate friend of his father and wanted to adopt him as a son. He was well known throughout the south.

Mr. Dumbleton, who is too economical to keep any extra collar buttons on hand, and who devotes a good share of his matin moments to hunting for these wayward essentials of male attire, startled his wife the other morning by a more than usual overflow of emphatic language.

"What's the matter, now?" she exclaimed.

"Matter enough!" he returned, with a series of paralytic gasps: "I've swallowed my collar button!"

"Thank goodness!" snapped out Mrs. D. "for once in your life you know where it is."

THE WORLD'S DEBT TO CONGREGATIONALISM.

This Church gave to the World a Beecher—Hear Also What the Rev. S. Nicholls, a Prominent Toronto Congregational Minister, Has to Say on an Important Subject.

Henry Ward Beecher believed man's religious faith was colored largely by the condition of his health. He had said from the pulpit that no man could hold right views on religion when his stomach was out of order. It is quite certain that no preacher can preach with effect if his head is stuffed up with cold, or if he is a sufferer from catarrh. It is not surprising, therefore, that we find the leading clergymen of Canada speaking so highly of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, for cold in the head or catarrh. They know the necessity better than anyone else of being relieved of this trouble. Rev. S. Nicholls, of Olivet Congregational Church, Toronto is one who has used this medicine, and over his own signature has borne testimony to its beneficial character.

One short puff of the breath through the Blower, supplied with each bottle of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, diffuses this powder over the surface of the nasal passages. Painless and delightful to use, it relieves in ten minutes and permanently cures catarrh, hay fever, cold, headache, sore throat, tonsillitis and deafness. Sixty cents. Sold by W. W. Short.

USEPELEE ISLAND WINES FOR DEBILITY NATURE'S TONIC.

E. G. SCOVILL, AGENT PRINCE ISLAND GRAPE JUICE. MARCH 15th, 1893.
DEAR SIR—My family have received great benefits from the use of the PRINCE ISLAND GRAPE JUICE during the past four years. It is the best tonic and sedative for debility, nervousness and weak lungs we have ever tried. It is much cheaper and pleasanter than medicines. I would not be without it in the house.
