The Most Notable Sayings in English History.

The Leisure Hour offered prizes for wise sayings connected with historical events. In the May number the editor awards the first and second prizes, both of which are won by women.

He says: "A careful analysis proves beyond all doubt that the most popular instances of wise sayings connected with history are the following:

"Oliver Cromwell's: 'Put your trust in God, but keep your powder dry.'

"Cardinal Wolsey's dying words: 'Had I but served my God as diligently as I have served my king, He would not have given me over in my gray hairs.'

"Latimer to Ridley at the stake: 'We shall this day light such a candle, by God's grace, in England as I trust, shall never be put out.'

"Sir Robert Walpole in the declaration of the war with Spain: 'They may ring their bells now, but they will soon be wringing their hands.'

"Nelson's: 'England expects every man to do his duty.'

"Wolfe at the Heights of Abraham, repeating the stanzas of Gray's 'Elegy': 'I had rather be the author of that poem than take Quebec.'

"Sir Walter Raleigh at his execution: 'What matter k'w the head lie so that the heart be right?'

Profit in Chickens.

But few realize how profitable poultry and egg production can be made, provided as much time and attention is given to it as to many other less important vocations. Some one has decided that a hen can be kept for less than 50 cents a year. It is a poor specimen of a hen that won't lay ten dozen eggs a year. At the low price of ten cents a dozen, this would leave a net profit of 50 cents. At this rate, it will pay every farmer to keep a flock of hens and give them proper care. There is no danger of over production.

Fowls to be profitable must be given proper attention. Those running at large will almost take care of themselves for a part of the year. They are our gleaners and economizers, for they every day convert into eggs what otherwise would go to waste. However, fowls in confinement need different treatment. Meat food must be supplied. The most satisfactory means of providing this is to secure a green bone mill and give them green cut bone. This meat food, or at least some sort of a similar food, is almost an absolute necessity for yarded fowls. Tender green stuff is also valuable. Last fall I sowed a patch of rye for early spring "greens." Early this season a patch of oats was put in to furnish green food after the rye had become too far advanced. Early each morning and every evening a basket of green stuff was cut with a pair of shears and given to them. The results have been most satisfactory. We have had lots of fertile eggs, and nice, thrifty, healthy fowls. It pays to raise chickens and to attend to their wants and needs.

Horrors of a Sea Battle.

Few people, even naval men, realize what fighting on an ironclad means. Capt. McGiffin, who was an officer on board a Chinese man-of-war at the battle of the Yalu river, gives an English description, however, a most vivid description. He tells, among other things, that the din made by the impact of heavy projectiles against the metal sides of the vessel is awful beyond description. He wore cotton in his ears but in spite of that is still deaf from the noise. The engineers in the Chen Yuen stuck to their work, even when the temperature was above 200 degrees Fahrenheit. The skin of their hands and arms was actually roasted off, and every man was blinded for life. "The sight being actually seared out." Late in the action, after his hair had been burned off and his eyes so impaired by dejected his d that he could only see out of one of them, and then only by lifting the lid with the fingers he was desirous of seeing how the enemy was delivering his fire. As he groped his way around the protected deck, a hundred-pound shell pierced the armour about eighteen inches in front of his head. In a second his hand touching the steel was so burnt that part of the skin was left on the armour. That shows how intense is the heat engendered by the impact of a shot, and how rapidly the steel conducts that heat.—Boston Journal.

Grass Paving Blocks.

A new industry which has recently been started in Norfolk has been the manufacture of paving blocks out of fibres of grass growing on salt water marshes. The grass is subjected to a heavy pressure, and large square blocks come out of the press, when three circular saws take hold of the block and cut it into smaller blocks of five and a half inches thick provided lengthwise with strong wire. These blocks are then subjected to a bath in three different tanks of different kinds of oils, which makes the fibre supple. The Manufacturers' Record is authority for the statement that these blocks have been tested for paving purposes in Philadelphia for over a year on one of the busiest streets near the stock yards, and have it is said, stood the test remarkably well. They make a smooth, noiseless pavement, on which, it is claimed, horses cannot slip. Large contracts for these paving blocks have been secured in Pittsburg and New York. This plant, as now established, turns out about 400 to 500 yards per day of this paving, and the owners expect soon to enlarge it considerably. Thus one more industry for the south is established.

On Gossiping Women.

Bishop F. D. Huntington, of New York, addressed some school-girls awhile ago, on "Talking as a Fine Art." He used his opportunity to brand women who indulge in scandal. "I say to you, weighing my own words, that you would be less depraved, less savage, would less disgrace your womanhood, would be less a curse to your kind, and, if God is rightly revealed to us in his Word and his Son, would less offend him by going to see dogs fight in their kennels at the Five Points, or bulls gore horses in Spain, than by putting on your bonnet and gloves and going from house to house in your neighborhood, assailing absent acquaintances, dribbling calumny, sowing suspicion, planting and watching wretchedness, stabbing character, alienating friends by repeating to one the detraction that you 'heard' another has spoken. I believe that before the judgment seat of Christ, the prize-fighting man will stand no worse than the slanderously gossiping women."—Occident.

Ready For Death.

It is seldom that a man dies in a coffin, but that is exactly what old Barney Frickers, of Alliance, O., did when he finally gave up the ghost in the fall of 1890. For more than 20 years "Old Barney" had been haunted with the idea that he was on the verge of the grave. Every evening he declared that he would never again see the sun rise. He constantly brooded over his queer hallucination, and never allowed himself to go to sleep without being carefully prepared for death and burial. Every night he robed himself in his grave clothes and solemnly laid down in his coffin and passed the night firmly believing and probably hoping that for him the day would never dawn again. Finally death came, but, grim and sly as he was, he did not find "Old Barney" unprepared. The coffin in which this queer old character had so often awakened disappointed, was of his own make, and was said to have been a curiosity in itself, being literally covered with all kinds of patterns and sizes of allegorical carving.—St. Louis Republic.

A CAREFUL STUDENT OF SOCIAL REFORM.

Rev. W. Galbraith, LL. B. Pastor of Elm Street Methodist Church Toronto, has a Good Word to Say of Dr. Agnew's Catarisal Powder.

The Rev. Wm. Galbraith, LL. B., is one of the thoughtful preachers of the day. The active interest he has taken in questions of social reform has given him wide influence outside his own church, where his influence is undisputed. His mind is of the kind that thinks out a problem, and then he is able to speak with force and intelligence. He is to be credited with examining into the merits of Dr. Agnew's Catarisal Powder, with the same bent of mind: And what does he say? That in this medicine he has found a remedy that gives quick relief for cold in the head which is so uncomfortable to everybody, and giving relief there it helps perhaps more than any other remedy to stave off the ill effects that come from catarrhal trouble.

One short puff of the breath through the flower, supplied with each bottle of Dr. Agnew's Catarisal Powder, diffuses this power over the surface of the nasal passages. Painless and delightful to use it relieves in ten minutes and permanent cure of Catarrh, Hay Fever, Colds, Headache, Sore Throat, Tonsillitis and Deafness. 60 cents. Sample bottle with flower sent free on receipt of two 3 cent stamps. S. G. Deitch, 44 Church street, Toronto.

A Horrible Story.

GENESE, N. Y., Sept. 19.—James Whitney, aged 50 years, a Canadian, who came here some time ago, was seen to crawl out of a well in this village. Upon examination the man presented a most frightful appearance. There was a gash over two inches deep under his left ear, and his face was covered with grime and clotted and dried blood which was ground into his beard. To add to the wretched condition of the man, his body had become fly-blown and the wound in his throat was full of maggots. The doctors pronounced his condition the worst they had ever seen; over a pint of maggots being taken from his body. Whitney had been suffering from a felon and thinks he must have gone crazy, as he remembers nothing since a week ago last Saturday, when he thinks he cut himself in the woods. The man has lost over 50 pounds since he was last seen.

A long time ago a celebrated preacher delivered a discourse on the text—"He giveth His beloved sleep." Observing that a large number of his hearers were nodding their heads, he suddenly stopped and said: "Brethren, it is hard to realize the unbounded love which the Lord appears to have for a large portion of this congregation."
