The Weather and Disease.

Poets and writers in all ages have made reference to the effects which changes of weather produce in the human organism, and the archives of folk-lore would furnish much evidence that these effects have not passed unnoticed by the proletariat. Unfortunately, however, the subject has been adulterated with a great deal of superstition, which has in a great measure tended to retard intelligent inquiry. That the various atmospheric changes should have some effect upon our bodies is easily understood, for we know that alteration in the surface temperature, a change in the blood pressure or in the air pressure of the lungs, may affect the nervous system, and all these changes may be brought about by some peculiarity of the natural phenomena which we call weather. In recent years the subject has attracted attention by those most competent to deal with the matter, and lately a meteorological station has been attached to the laboratories of the public health department at Rome, where lectures are given to students on the application of meteorology to hygiene. At present our knowledge of the way in which the weather acts upon the body is very limited, and must remain so until a larger number of data are collected. An attempt to trace the relation between weather and disease has recently been made by a fellow of the Royal Meteorological Society by bringing together a number of statistics dealing with the phenomena of the weather and some well known diseases, chiefly zymotic, presenting them by a graphic method in a systematic manner. Little attempt has been made to draw conclusions from these statistics, and until they have been digested by many minds perhaps the writer was wise in his omission. There are few people who could not give instances of the influence which the weather has upon them, either mentally or physically, and there are many medical men (who in other directions have no opportunity for original research) who might do some useful work by recording the result of their observations on the subject, and thus add considerably to our knowledge of the role which is played by the weather in the causation or prevention of disease. On some constitutions the seasons have a marked influence. With many the spring with its bright days and clear air, is felt to be the time of the year when they get the most enjoyment from life; while others, probably of a more sensitive temperament, experience the greatest sum of happiness and health when peaceful autumn wraps them in its serene atmosphere. On the other hand, winter or summer, as the case may be, produces in other temperaments the greatest consummation of healthy vitality. Certain changes in the weather too tend to increase or diminish the amount of energy that we put into our daily work and it has been stated that in a large factory from ten to twenty per cent. less work is done on dull days and days of threatening storm. The whole subject is one which, pursued in a proper scientific spirit, should be productive of useful results.—The Lancet, London.

Stabling Cows.

John Gould, of Ohio, is one of the best known dairymen in the state, and when he recommends a line of action it may be adopted without fear of evil results. On the much-discussed question of keeping cows confined, he has been talking to the readers of Hoard's Dairyman, and we give below his conclusions: "I may be pardoned if I take the space to say that I never was so well satisfied with the close stabling of cows, and no exercise, as the present winter, the most severe in Ohio in 30 years. While other dairies near me have in the past three weeks of zero and 14 degrees below weather shown a great shrinkage of milk, my cows have not dropped off five pounds in total amount in any day, nor has there been any increase of food in that time, and the happiness and content seen in the stable make me contented that I am on the right side of the question. The other day, at an institute, a noted Jersey breeder and cream producer, who in the past insisted upon exercise and spring water at the brook, as two essentials of good winter dairying, confessed that the present winter he had tried the plan of not turning out, and the result was that the cows had actually eaten less—he weighs all food—given more milk, and were in better condition at midwinter than he was wont to have his cows, and he was going to cut more windows in his stables, let in more sunshine, and use his good feed in the future to make more milk, and less of it to warm all outdoors, spring water and 'grow hair,' as Aug Shultz, of Lake Mills once expressed it."

Poet—"Did you read the two poems I sent in last week?"
 Editor—"I did."
 Poet—"Well, er—what—er—do you think of them?"
 "The first one was dreadful simple, and the other one was simply dreadful."

Consumption Conquered.

A F. E. ISLAND LADY RESTORED TO HEALTH.

Attacked with a hacking cough, loss of Appetite and General Feeling of Lassitude—Pink Pills Restored Her Health After Doctors Failed.

From the Charlottetown Patriot.

Times without number have we read of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but generally the testimonials telling the tale had laid the scene in some of the other provinces. This time, however, the matter is brought directly home, and the testimony comes from a much respected and Christian woman. Mrs. Sarah Strickland, now residing in the suburbs of Charlottetown, has been married many years, and blessed with a large family and although never enjoying a robust constitution had, until a year ago, been in comparatively good health. About that time she began to feel "run down," her blood became thin and a general feeling of lassitude took possession of both her mind and body. Her family and friends viewed with alarm the gradual development of her illness, and when a cough—at first incipient, but afterwards almost constant, especially at nights,—set in, doctors were summoned and everything that loving, tender care and medical skill could do was resorted to in order to save the affectionate wife and mother, whose days appeared to be numbered. Her appetite was almost completely gone. Food was partaken of without relish, and Mrs. Strickland was unable to do even the ordinary, lighter work of the household. She became greatly emaciated and in order to partake of even the most dainty nourishment a stimulant had at first to be administered. While this gloom hung over the home and the mother sorrowfully thought of how soon she would have to say farewell to her young family, she was induced by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Though utterly discouraged, and almost disgusted with medicine she yielded more in a friendly way than in a hopeful spirit. After using the pills for a short time a gleam of hope, a wish to get well again took possession of her and the treatment was cheerfully continued. It was no false feeling but a genuine effort nature was making to re-assert itself, and before many boxes were used the family were joking their mother on her appetite, her disappearing cough and the fright she had given them. The use of the Pink Pills was continued for some time longer and now Mrs. Strickland's elastic step and general, excellent health, would lead you to imagine that you were gazing upon a different woman, not one who had been snatched from the very jaws of death. She was never in better health and spirits, and no matter what others say she is firm in her belief that Pink Pills saved her life and restored her to her wonted health and strength.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an unfailing cure for all troubles resulting from poverty of the blood or shattered nerves, and where given a fair trial they never fail in cases like that above related. Sold by all dealers, or sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y. See that the registered trade mark is on all packages.

Miss Maggie Melody, of Hamilton, used Dr. Agnew's Celebrated Catarrhal Powder, on Recommendation of Rev. Father Hinchey, and Found it a Grand Remedy for Influenza.

Having himself benefited by the use of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, Rev. Father Hinchey, of St. Joseph's Church, Hamilton, Ont., followed the counsel of good book, and carried the good news to others. One of his parishioners, Miss Maggie Melody, had been a sufferer from influenza. Father Hinchey knew how much good his remedy had done in case of cold in the head with himself and recommended it to Miss Melody for her case, who, over her own signature has written: "I have used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder for influenza and found it a great remedy. In fact it gave me relief almost at once. I can with pleasure highly recommend it to all who are suffering from this malady."

One short puff of the breath through the Blower, supplied with each bottle of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, diffuses this Powder over the surface of the nasal passages. Painless and delightful to use, it relieves in ten minutes and permanently cures catarrh, hay fever, colds, headache, sore throat, tonsillitis and deafness. 60 cents. Sold at W. W. Short.
