Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God.—Isa. 41, 10.

Many Innocent are Victims.

Recently, on two succeeding Sundays, on a public platform in this city, Revs. ex-Chaplain McCabe, D. D., and ex-Chancellor Sims, D. D., two well-known American lecturers, discussed the Temperance question from entirely different standpoints, but both brought out that important fact, too much overlooked in our Prohibition agitation, that there are never victims of the drink traffic who never drink, than there are of the actual drinkers themselves.

Dr. McCabe gave some very pathetic incidents in his own personal experience. His father was a drinking man, and probably the most vivid remembrance of his life was, that at the early age of ten years he saw all that was in their humble home under seizure for debt, in consequence of that fact, and his hard-working and God-fearing mother sitting down with her elbows on the table, crying as though her heart would break at the immediate prospect of their home being thus broken up and the family being driven out into the world. His little effects of clothing were tied up in a small cotton handkerchief, and he was compelled to walk out and face the world, to enter into the battle of life as best he could, under such terribly disadvantageous circumstances, and for such terribly unjust reasons. His mother's gift was a small New Testament, with some leaves turned down and passages marked that might guide and encourage the practical orphan's pathway. From a distant hill he looked back on that broken up home, and on that broken hearted mother, with such feelings in regard to the drink traffic and those engaged in that dreadful business as have made him an earnest Prohibitionist ever since. For one victim of the drink traffic in that family who did drink there, were several whose cup of earthly bitterness was also great who never drank!

Dr. Sims, on the following Sunday, took quite another line of illustration, but the practical lesson pointed in the same direction. He had no such bitter boyhood experience. He referred to the important fact of the very able paper of Dr. Crothers recently, who states that, after years of study of the great question of Inebriety, he is convinced that eighty per cent. of all that unfortunate class now owe their misfortune to heredity, and the most prolific cause of all this is the moderate drinking habits of the fathers. From this cause thousands and tens of thousands constantly go out in life with unbalanced mental and physical organizations, and are thus handicapped in all their life-long battles, and thus become an easy prey to the allurements of drink and narcotics, and disease, and a score of evils that too often cause them to be wrecks and burdens on society.

It is just this way that many of our jails are being supplied with criminals, our hospitals with patients, our reformatories with inmates, and our asylums with victims—a veritable mill-stone of burden on the necks of all the tax-payers—and who but for these indirect curses of the drink traffic would never have found their way there at all. Surely a large class of this kind are far more to be blamed than pitied in their misfortune. A share of that blame, too, must rest on those who are consenting parties to the continued legal existence of a traffic well-known to be productive to just such results.

How can the innocent be properly protected against the crimes of the guilty by laws that continue to sanction and protect a tree that grows such fruit? Of what practical value are governments and laws unless they afford just such protection.

A report has been recently published of the Medical Superintendent of the Insane Asylum at Marseilles, France, in which he points out that, in consequence of the increase of the drinking habits of that locality the present asylum accommodation must needs be increased, and also the significant fact, that from the same cause hundreds of the school children there to-day are not capable of being educated. He raises the alarm that unless some change come many of the rising generation will be of the low intellectual level of many well-known idiotic children of the inhabitants among the Alps.

Coming nearer home, I am reminded of a fact mentioned to me some twenty years ago by the late Dr. W. R. Kimball, when he was Medical Superintendent of the Toronto Insane Asylum—at one time the only one in this Province where we now have no less than seven—"We have here," he said, "more inmates of the offspring of drinkers than we have of the drinkers themselves. You may make use of the fact as you like." He also related at the same time a painful incident of a man and his wife both being brought to that institution. "I suppose," he said, "you would class them both victims of the drink traffic, though she never drank at all. Her reason gave way under the burden of anxiety, disgrace, abuse and poverty, brought on by his drinking, and I think hers is the most hopeless case of the two."

The Prohibition movement is as necessary for the protection of the tens of thousands of innocent victims, against the thousands of drinkers. Can they possibly be protected in any other way? Many other ways have been tried and they have failed, as our present state of things surely demonstrates.

"The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge," applies as truly to the results of the drink traffic to-day as it did to the proverb of the land of Israel referred to by the prophet Ezekiel. The iniquities of the fathers are being visited on the children to the third and fourth generation. Many of them have not even impoverished their homes, or ill treated their families. Many of them probably, never once imagined that their convivial habits would prove such a terrible legacy to their posterity. One of the worst young inebriates that I have known of was the son of a much respected and wealthy father, a model citizen in the estimation of the community, and yet it seemed well enough understood that the poor fellow's downfall was the result of heredity, extending over two generations back of moderate drinking.

Drunkenness is not the only evil of drinking by any means. The foregoing facts have been mentioned in vain if they have not conveyed that idea. Our license laws might, possibly, be so framed and so rigidly enforced that actual drunkenness might be stamped out—a bare possibility but not probable—and even then such terrible evils as have just been referred to the cry of which surely goes up to heaven would not be averted. Moderate drinking as well as drunkenness, has its victims, direct and indirect.

Jesse N. Gregory, a longshoreman, shot and killed his wife Clara at 8.30 o'clock, Friday night, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jettie Martin, who lived in a tenement house at 423 Eighth Avenue, New York. Jealousy is said to have been the motive of the crime.

Louis Cyr's little daughter made her debut as a strong girl Sunday night in Montreal. She is seven years of age and weighs sixty-five pounds, yet she lifted two dumb-bells of 309 pounds, a 33-pound dumb-bell above her head, a 154-pound one with one hand and two weighing 89 pounds with one finger.

At the Joggins mines, on Wednesday, a man had his leg broken by a slide of clay in No. 2 pit. The injured man was 26 years of age and unmarried. On Thursday, Sylvain Babineau, a shiftman, slipped while putting on a roller in No. 2 slope and broke a bone in his leg. He is 40 years of age and has a wife and five children.

An unknown colored man died on the sidewalk at the corner of Columbus avenue and Berkeley street, Boston, Friday night. A doctor was called and he pronounced death due to pneumonia and exposure. The man was about 40 years old. The police found a large amount of clothing on him, including 3 coats, 4 vests 16 shirts and 3 suits of underclothing.

Alexander Simms, alias Britt Glen, alias Kid Charlie, a negro of Jacksonville, Fla., added another victim to his list of killed yesterday morning, besides wounding three others. Simms shot and killed a young colored boy named Napoleon Sticks, Saturday. The officers got on his track this morning and chased him about two miles. He opened fire with a pistol and policeman Miner was shot in the breast and killed almost instantly. Lieut. Miner's brother, who was shot in the left leg. Two negroes, who had joined in the chase after Simms, were shot in the hip, one it is thought fatally. Simms fired 17 shots and then surrendered.

His Lordship Bishop Sweeney has engaged passage on the Allan Line steamship Parisian, which leaves Halifax Saturday next for Liverpool. Bishop Cameron of Antigonish, and Bishop McDonald of Charlottetown, will be passengers on the same steamer, and all are going to Rome in fulfilment of their duty. Bishops are expected to visit the Eternal City very ten years, but fourteen years have passed since Bishop Sweeney last had audience with His Holiness the Pope, various causes having prevented him from making the visit sooner. Perhaps he may not be able to go now, either, as he is suffering from severe cold. Addressing the congregation in the Cathedral on Sunday, His Lordship the Bishop said he would not go away unless his health improved.

C. Spencer Millichamp, paying teller of the Bank of Toronto, committed suicide by shooting Saturday at 2.30 o'clock. The bank closed for business at 1 p. m., and the clerks engaged were engaged at their books when Hector Read, the receiving teller, heard a sound resembling a moan or stifled groan. Raising his eyes from his books he was horrified to see his fellow teller flourishing a revolver, while his face showed the inner desperation of his mind. "Don't," shouted Read as Millichamp's purpose flashed upon him. At the same time he rushed for the cage in which Millichamp stood in the hope of intercepting his arm in its mission of death. Millichamp raised his revolver to his head, and as Read reached the cage door a report rang out, and victim fell a lifeless heap.

Charles L. Farnum, the seventeen-year-old adopted son of Mrs. Sarah M. Farnum residing at No. 4 Columbus square, Boston, committed suicide Saturday night by shooting himself. Despondency caused by his mother learning that he had been stealing from her is supposed to have been the cause of the lad's act. On searching his room the following note, which he had left was found:

"Dear Mother,—I wish I could ask you to forgive me. I am not crazy, but sick of living. Louis Cohn will give you a pawn ticket on which you can get your watch. I took it.

Mrs. Farnum was nearly prostrated when she realized what the boy had done. She took him from the Little Wanderers' Home when he was quite young and has become greatly attached to him.

Samuel Allingham, a young lad 14 years of age, was arrested at St. John on Sunday night by Captain Jenkins and Detective Ring. The arrest was made on the strength of a telegram from Campbellton which stated that the boy had run away from that place with $132. When taken into custody part of the money was found on him. When questioned he told a straight story. He said he took the money from his brother-in-law, John Gilker, an engineer, and that he was prompted to do so by John Mullin and Joseph Gallant, two young men. He says they urged him to steal the money and go with them to the States. The boy had the run of Gilker's house and had no difficulty in getting at the money. He opened a box containing the money and took all it contained. He then came to this city on the Quebec express in company with Gallant and Mullin and says that both received some of the money from him. On learning this, steps were taken by the police to capture both of these young men, who had gone out on the 6 o'clock train. Officer Harrington, at McAdam was wired to, and he telegraphed back at midnight that he had both prisoners and they had some money on them. They were taken back to St. John yesterday afternoon.
