Be strong, and of good courage; dread not nor be dismayed .- Chron. 22, 13. In the day when I cried thou answerdest and strengthenedst me with strength in my soul.-Ps. 138, 3.

W. C. T. U .- The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held last night in their rooms on Canterbury street. The treasurers report showed that the total receipts for the year were: From membership, $151.64; relief, $178.87; Charlotte street coffee room, $3,520.48; Canterbury street coffee room, $3,664.10. The expenses amounted to $7,386.41; the balance on hand being about $88. The relief fund distributed about 45 loads of coal sent three people to their homes, and assisted several deserving families. The report of the Little Girls' Home showed that during the past year seven little girls have been taken from the street into the Home and are being educated and taught house keeping. The report also stated that their thanks were due to Mr. W. W. Turnbull for its last two quarters' rent. The meeting closed with a short musical programme. -St. John paper.

Sir Leonard Tilley. On Temperance Sunday in the St. John Carmarthen St. Methodist Church, Sir Leonard Tilley presided. He gave an interesting address. He referred to the move in the question of temperance taken half a century ago. He had been a temperance worker for fifty-seven years, and knew of the great things done for the furtherance of the cause in that time. What would have been done if the same sympathy had been shown previous to that? The efforts of Christians had brought about many changes. He looked for the time when Prohibition would be the law of the land. The books in use in the public schools were doing a mighty work among the young. The speaker here gave some figures to show what an increase there had been in the membership of the juvenile temperance bodies. There were total abstinence societies in common with all Sabbathschools. He suggested a meeting of the superintendents and teachers of these schools to discuss the matter of bringing the children closer together. The young should be taught that the responsibilities in this direction would soon devolve upon them. Sir Leonard said he would like to see an exhibition given Canada of the results of alcohol on the human system. The number of people whose death could be traced to its use, the multitude of weeping mothers, sisters and children who saw their loved ones thus go down to the grave the criminals who started out in their line of wrong doing because of the use of strong drink, the millions which rum cost the country, and the immense quantity of liquor consumed should be set before the people. If this was done a prohibitory law would have to be enacted within year .- St. John Sun.

Railroad disasters and robberies of railroad trains occur so frequently, defalcation of bank officers and employees, and clerks in almost all departments of trade constantly going astray, demand now more than at any time in the past a closer scrutiny of those who are to be trusted with either public or private interests. Public corporations have a way of protecting themselves-and of enforcing their demands. The source of much of the corruption and dishonesty of the times is the drink habit, superinduced, doubtless, in a great measare, by the mania for speculation and the losses thereby incurred. Sober men are the demand of the times. This demand is realized even in high places—as high as Wall Street, New York. The National Bank of the Republic has taken a forward step to protect its interests by notifying clerks that drinking during business hours will not be tolerated, and that habitual drinking will be sufficient cause for dismissal from service. Let such orders be enforced everywhere, and the business of the country would be much more satisfactorily conducted.-Ex.

Carle at School.

Ted was to go to school and Carlo was to stay at home. As they sat upon the steps, Ted's arm around Carlo's neck, and Carlo's head upon Ted's bosom, it was hard to tell which was the more unhappy, for Carlo evidently understood matters as well as Ted. They had never been separated before. Ted begged hard for Carlo to go to school, too.

"I'll pay for him myself, mamma," out of my own bank."

miling.

"Why, mamma, he knows a great deal already, and he undertstands everything you say," said Ted eagerly.

Carlo thumped his tail eagerly upon the floor to show he did understand.

"He can't go, my little boy," answered mamma. "He would only be in the

And so the little friends parted-Ted to go to school, and Carlo to lie upon the doormat, one ear up, listening for the eturn of his master. Carlo was a wise little dog, and he soon observed that Ted came back every day a short while after the big town whistle blew for twelve v'clock. One morning his longing to be with Ted overcame his fear of disobeving. So when the whistle blew he trotted away to the school house, and met Ted at the door. Every day after that found him waiting at the door when school was dismissed. One day, the teacher hearing a noise at the door, went and opened it, to find a little dog shivering upon the steps, for it was bitter cold. Of course it was Carlo, who had grown too impatient to wait for the blowing of the whistle. The teacher patted him and invited him in to get warm. When Carlo entered the schoolroom he was about to bound to Ted's side, but at a shake of his head, seated himself by the fire, alert to see what he could do. When the door accidentally flew open he sprang and closed it, as he had been taught to do at home. When a book fell to the floor he picked it up in his mouth and gave it to the teacher. He gathered scraps of paper under the desks and laid them neatly in a corner; and when a stray cat got among the lunch baskets in the closet, he seized and shook her till she was glad to get away, returning quietly to his seat by the fire every time.

The teacher declared it was a pleasure to have him in the room, he behaved so beautifully, and made himself so useful, at which praise Ted could hardly keep still for joy. Later in the day when the teacher was singing with the children, she heard Carlo barking furiously in the next room, where he had rushed in great excitement.

"It is another cat," she cried and ran to

It almost took her breath away when she found Carlo standing in the middle of the room, barking over a pile of burning

Some one had dropped a burning match upon the paper, and but for Carlo's keen sense of smell in detecting the burning, the best land in the County, over 100 acres and his intelligence in barking to tell the danger, the room would have soon been on fire. You may be sure Carlo was patted and petted by everybody. After that he was admitted to the schoolroom every day and was called the new pupil. He learned to join the children in many of their kindergarten plays and games, and nobody was as happy as Ted.

"Didn't I tell you Carlo could learn ?" he said, proudly, to his mamma, when the wonderful story was told at home. - M. | tion. E. Saffold, in S. S. Times.

The Jeweler's Carat.

The carat is a standard used by the jewelers to express both weight and fineness. When it is used as a weight it is equal to four grains, or the 120th part of an ounce troy. In determining the fineness of precious metals, twenty-four carats is considered the highest standard of purity. According to this standard an eighteencarat gold ring contains three parts of gold and one of some base metal.
