

The Psychology of a Jury in a Long Trial

Take twelve men from active life, confine them in a court room six hours a day, and expect them to observe closely remember and reason soundly on the evidence offered, with no guide except some general principles of law and equity.

They are untrained to discern the probable facts in a contested case, and understand the real from the apparent in the arguments of counsel. The confinement of the court room, its bad, vitiated atmosphere, with the changed diet of hotels in a long trial, make them still more unfit.

After the third or fourth day the judgment of an average juror dwindles into caprice and changeable whims. A certain number will become possessed with a dominant idea concerning the case, which will grow under any circumstances irrespective of all reason or judgment.

Another class becomes more and more indifferent to the merits of the case, as their physical condition deteriorates; their only interest is to reach the end of the trial; like the former class, they sit listless, neither seeing nor hearing anything with intelligence.

The Chain Complete.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. Aug. 16.—A local paper says the last link in the chain of evidence against Theodore Durant has been discovered. Mrs. Leake fifty years of age, and a member of the church, who lives across the street from Emmanuel church, has reported to the police that she saw Durant and Blanche Lamont enter the church at 4.10 on April 3rd, the day of Miss Lamont's disappearance.

She knew both Durant and Miss Lamont intimately and therefore cannot be mistaken as to their identity. On April 3rd Mrs. Leake sat at the window of her residence nearly all the afternoon looking for her daughter whom she expected to arrive from San Mateo.

At 4 o'clock she saw a couple coming up the street, one of them she instantly recognized as Durant. As the couple came nearer Mrs. Leake recognized the girl as Blanche Lamont. Miss Lamont wore a short school girl's dress, and carried a package of school books.

The dress and school books were afterwards found secreted in the church. When the couple reached the church they stopped for a moment. Durant opened the gate and passed through.

Mrs. Leake knew nothing detrimental to Durant. She had always considered him "Such an exemplary young man," but not withstanding the fact she thought it exceedingly imprudent for the girl to go into the church with him alone.

She imagined that they had some errand in the church and expected in a few minutes they would come out. She watched carefully but the gate did not open. There is only one entrance to Emmanuel church during the week, and that is by the side gate and rear door.

Mrs. Leake knew the young people would have to pass through the gate and she wanted to see them before she left the window. She watched a long time but household duties called her to another part of her flat and she was obliged to give up the vigil. Mrs. Leake's testimony completes the chain of evidence against Durant.

Three school girls saw Durant and Blanche Lamont on a Powell street car at 3.30 on the day that Miss Lamont disappeared. Attorney Quinan saw the couple a few minutes before 4 o'clock.

Now comes Mrs. Leake who says she saw Durant and Miss Lamont enter the church a few minutes later.

George King the organist had already testified that he entered the church about 5 o'clock and saw Durant coming down from the attic.

Durant's hair was disheveled, his face was red, he was panting for breath and was in a state of utter physical and mental collapse. In answer to inquiries he explained that he had been engaged arranging electric lights in the loft and been overcome by gas.

Hands and Ankles Raw.

For years I have been a great sufferer from itchy skin trouble and salt rheum. My hands and ankles were literally raw. The first application of Dr. Chase's Ointment allayed the burning, itching sensation. One box and a half entirely cured me. It is also instant relief for chilblains. Henry A. Gruesome Story.

A gruesome story comes from Philadelphia. The bark Serene, Capt. Hans Anderson, at that port from Ingtat, reports having discovered in April last in a small cave on the southwest coast of Greenland, the bodies of eighteen men.

The cave was situated in a wild and desolate part of the coast and the bodies were huddled together.

When Capt. Anderson made his report it was at first feared that the men belonged to the Peary exploring party, but as Peary is supposed to have been hundreds of miles north at the time the bodies were discovered, this opinion was soon abandoned.

It is now believed that the bodies are those of the crew of a fishing vessel, and it is thought improbable that they are those of the crew of the ill-fated schooner Ambrose H. Knight, which left Gloucester March 12, 1894, for the Iceland grounds and was never seen or heard of afterwards.

It is possible that the vessel was wrecked or disabled and was blown on the Greenland coast, the crew escaping to shore and seeking shelter in a cave, where they either starved or froze to death.

Did You Ever Think

That you cannot be well unless you have pure, rich blood? If you are weak, tired, languid and all run down, it is because your blood is impoverished and lacks vitality. These troubles may be overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure, rich, blood. It is, in truth the great blood purifier.

"Yes," remarked the telephone girl, as she gazed out at the waves and wondered what their number was. "I am connected with the best families of our city."

"You told me," said the weary collector, "to bring this bill first."

"Yes," replied the editor, "I meant the first time I had any money."
