"I can cordially indorse Ayer's Hair Vigor, as one of the best preparations for the hair. When I began using Ayer's Hair Vigor, all the front part of my head—about half of it—was bald. The use of only two bottles restored a natural growth, which still continues as in my youth. I tried several other dressings, but they all failed. Ayer's Hair Vigor is the best."—Mrs. J. C. CORRESPONDENCE

Mr. Editor:

I see by your last issue an article on the second coming of Christ signed by W. H. L. Permit me to pen a few lines for the purpose of correcting certain errors into which the writer of that article has fallen. He is correct when he says that a "time" in prophecy is a year; also when he says that a day represents a year. But he is in error when he says that the church represented by the woman, (Rev. 12,) went into the wilderness in 570 A. D. Nothing happened at that date to send the church into the wilderness. I can form no idea of what he means when he says that the church was "organized" in 1830, and "reorganized" in 1861. That looks like pure invention. The fact is, the church went into the wilderness when the two witnesses put on their sackcloth (Rev. 11, 3,) and that event took place when the Mahometans captured the holy city Jerusalem. That event was between 636 and 639. Therefore the 1260 years must end between 1896 and 1899. It was the Mahometan conquests that drove the church into the wilderness. Almost immediately the Mahometans must leave the city of Jerusalem, the two witnesses must be slain and the church must return from the wilderness.

W. H. L. is equally in error about the 1290 days, or years of Dan. 12, 11. That notable prophetic period did not begin in 570 and run out in 1860; for if it had the Turkish empire would then have broken up, Michael would have stood up to deliver Israel; the time of trouble would have wrecked the world and the first resurrection would have taken place. Now none of these things have taken place, therefore W. H. L.'s calculation is entirely wrong. I would call his attention to the fact that the 1290 days (years) began with the setting up of the "abomination that maketh desolate" and not with the flight of the church into the wilderness. That abomination was Mahometanism and was set up between 606 and 609 and therefore will expire between 1896 and 1899—just when the 1260 expire. Christ comes at the end of the 1260 and the 1290 days (years), therefore to fulfil the prophecy he must come before the end of 1899. But as his descent to the air takes place quite a while before he appears with all his saints, it is more than probable that two years will scarcely pass away without the calling of the saints into their "chambers" to escape the "indignation."—See Isa. 26, 20-21. The 1335 days (years) did not, as W. H. L. intimated begin in 570, but just when the 1290 began, and will run out in 1942 or about that time. No one can do more than guess what will then take place. It may be that the judging of the living nations will then be over and the triumphant reign of Christ be begun. It will be something good.

W. H. L. has run somewhat on the line of the late Dr. Cummings, of London. No one well acquainted with prophecy and Mahometan history could for a moment think of accepting his conclusions. Time has proved them all incorrect. W. H. L. is not sharp enough to write on prophecy. He thinks that Christ may come at the end of the 1335 days (years), because they who live to that time will be blessed. When Christ comes he is not going to bless all that are alive. He will then "smite the earth with a curse" and with the breath of his lips he will "slay the wicked." In conclusion, I would advise that people pay attention to what is taking place in the Turkish empire. The great tribulation is brought on by the downfall of that empire. There are forces now working that are likely to overthrow it in a few months. All civilized nations are desiring and looking for its break up. Plans are already laid to spring the mine and divide the ruins. Woe to the earth when the Turk leaves Constantinople for that is the third and last woe and it "cometh quickly."—Rev. 14, 14-19. The storm circle is now around the "Sultan's throne and nothing will be gained by shutting our eyes to the fact. The words of the master are appropriate, "what I say unto one I say unto all, watch." N. R. N.

To the Editor of The Review:

Amongst the items in the report presented by the chairman of the fire wardens at the last meeting of the County Council was one for twenty dollars paid for having the fire engine and hose cleaned and kept in repair during the year ninety-four. Shortly after the report was adopted a well-known citizen visited the engine building and found the fire engine and hose in a bad and useless state, and at the present time is said to be in no better order for working. Certainly this is a nice condition of affairs. I am further informed that no meeting of the fire wardens has been held for nearly three years. I wonder where the present chairman and secretary get their authority for remaining in office year in and year out when the law says they have to be elected annually. The appointment of fire wardens is an annual one and some new ones are put on every year. They are appointed to look after the fire department and to know how this part of the civic machinery is conducted, but they can never know unless the meetings of the fire wardens are held. There must be something wrong when one or two can run the fire department year after year and pay out the people's taxes for work that was never done. The truth is the fire engine was hauled out of the saw-dust yard in ninety-three all covered with saw-dust and salt water, and discovered in the same condition in ninety-five, and in the meantime the taxes are being paid out for having the engine kept in order. I would suggest that no stated amount be paid any person for looking after the fire-engine. When occasion requires it to be cleaned let the fire wardens see it done properly and pay for it, and I will venture to say it won't cost five dollars a year where now it costs twenty. The only difference will be that in one case the rate payers will be getting value for their five dollars, while at present the twenty dollars are paid out for nothing. Insurance rates are high enough now, but if the companies holding risks here find out how our fire department is run and the conditions the fire engine is in, the rates would soon be higher. Perhaps it would be in order for the fire-wardens to meet, even if it is the first time in three years.

Miss A. A. DOWNEY, Manotick, Ont.

Bathurst.

February 23, 1895.—The entertainment given by the pupils of the Grammar School here, ably assisted by the Bathurst Male Quartette, took place in the Masonic Hall last evening, and was a great success; the hall was crowded. The quartette, composed of Messrs. Pepper, Draper, Keary and Stout, sang "Bugle Horn," a medley, and "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." All were highly appreciated, especially the latter. Mr. James E. Keary's character song, "McCarthy's Widow," brought down the house. Mr. Pepper also sang a character song, "I Thought it was Mine," Mr. Draper, "Out on the Deep," and Mr. Stout "The Slave Ship." Misses Lillian McLean and Emma Stout's readings were of very high merit. Two tableaux, "Fortune Teller" and "Cinderella," were pleasing and striking representations. In the three dialogues "Curing the Borrowers," "The School," and "Only a Working Girl," the children took their several parts in very creditable manner. The last on the programme was "Good Night," chorus by the pupils; then followed God Save the Queen. Great credit is due to the principal, Mr. L. Hetherington; Miss Laura Meahan, teacher in the intermediate department, and Miss Emma Elhaton, teacher of the primary department, for the enjoyable evening spent. The proceeds amounted to $64.50, which is to be used towards furnishing a library for the Grammar School.

That the blood should perform its vital functions it is absolutely necessary it should not only be pure rich in life-giving elements. These results are best effected by the use of that well-known standard blood-purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

A fine of ten shillings has been imposed by the maritime authorities at North Shields upon Captain Gordon, commander of the Aberdeen steamer Crathie, which ran into and sank the North German Lloyd's steamer Elbe. The offence for which the fine was scored against Captain Gordon was that he navigated the Crathie by the north of the mid-channel in the Tyne in going up that river last October.

A Letter from a Boy on Politics.

Dear Editor,—I suppose I have no more right than a woman to say a word on politics, but I can't help it, whether anyone will listen to me or not. I went down to Buctouche two weeks ago to visit my uncle, and while there I learned something about politics and how the machine is run, and I would like to tell my friends something about it. While in Buctouche there was a crowd banquet given by the members of the B. of D. I found it out through my uncle, who is a prominent member. Asking him what B. of D. meant, he informed me that it stood for the Brotherhood of Desperation. I was somewhat puzzled and felt desirous of finding out more about such a peculiar order. I told him I had found out something about the M. of R. and wanted to know if the B. of D. was on the same basis. He promised to take me with him if I would keep all I saw a profound secret. The banquet was to take place at ten p. m. on Saturday, in their "corkus" room. The room was well lighted and all were punctually on hand. The chair was occupied by a brother from this end of the county who made me laugh by his salivic excretion, it reminded me so much of a little squirt-gun I used to play with before I got so big. I gave it to brother Bob for a Christmas present. I came near being excreted from the banquet hall as they told me with angry frowns that it was no place to laugh in, and then I said I was laughing at that fellow spitting all over the crowd. Uncle interfered and made peace. At the chairman's right hand was brother Ogee, while at his left was brother Bgee, and occupying the vice-chair was me brother Ptee. Up and down each side of the table were the lesser brothers. Let me describe it from a boy's standpoint. The clock strikes ten p. m., all their heads are bowed. Chairman groans, spits, groans again, all groan in unison. They then commence eating, first a slice of crowd, then a slice of crowd, then a slice of crowd for variety; everybody looks grave, the light had been turned down, all are as silent as the grave, the only noise to break the silence, munch, munch, crunch, crunch, munch, crunch, munch, crunch, silence; all heads are bowed, chairman groans, spits, groans, all groan in unison. All rise with glasses in hands, the chairman proposes the health of the most worshipful grand master of the B. of D., brother Winee. All the brothers responded by singing "For he's a jolly good fellow" to the tune of "Old Hundred." Unanimous groans—silence. Chairman speaks. He tells his listeners that they were assembled to consider the best means of defeating the present M. P. He said he believed whoever the candidate was that it would be best policy to run him as an independent, telling some friends who were Conservatives that the candidate was Tory at heart and thus gain their support; telling Liberal friends that he was Grit at heart and thus gain their support, and still be publicly independent so as to receive the support of all sorts and conditions of men. Let us pray for success. All groan. Brother Bgee speaks. He claimed the right of being the candidate. He claimed to be able to carry a large Conservative vote with him, then the Liberals could carry him right into the House of Commons. Sits. Groans. Brother Ogee said he was once a Tory and could carry the Tory votes that brother Bgee spoke of, and he was now a Grit, and could carry the Grit vote and between the two sides with all the independents he said he believed he could be elected. Sits. Groans. Brother Bgee and Ogee both seemed determined to run, and at last the chairman had a happy thought. He proposed that they would break the wishbone of a crow. Each was to wish to be a candidate and the one getting the shortest piece would have his wish. Agreed. The bone broke evenly in two pieces. The chairman believed that neither were intended by the fates to be the candidate, and as he was standing between them at the time, he believed he was intended for the candidate. Brother Ptee then wished to be heard. He believed he could whip the whole crowd as his brother had done before him. Before adjournment the chairman, brothers Ogee, Bgee and Ptee all announced their intention of being a candidate at the next election. Silence. Groans. Execut.
