Antiquity of the Harp.

Mr. W. S. Macdonald, of Glasgow, in a recent lecture before the Highland Society of London, traced the history of the harp from the shadows of mythology to the present day. It is, he said, the first musical instrument on record and was the principal one of ancient and medieval times. All the skill and artistic genius of the Egyptians was lavished upon its design and decoration. The Druids first brought the tone and pitch of the harp to perfection. It attained the height of its favor in modern times in 1810, when Sebastian Erard, of London, brought it to the front rank of musical instruments. It has been inseparably connected with the traditions and lore of the Gaelic people from time immemorial.

"Several years ago, my blood was in bad condition, my system all run down, and my general health very much impaired. My hands were covered with large sores, discharging all the time. I had no strength nor energy and my feelings were miserable in the extreme. At last, I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla and soon noticed a change for the better. My appetite returned and with these results, I kept on taking the Sarsaparilla, till I had used six bottles, and my health was restored."—A. A. TOWNS, prop. Harris House, Thompson, N. Dak.

Kindergarten School.

The final examination of the Kindergarten Training School of Dartmouth, N. S., was held last week in the presence of many visitors. This institution was established several years ago, and is growing in popularity. The principal, Miss M. Hamilton, has been thoroughly trained for the method of teaching practised in such schools, and has a charming manner with the young. The manual work which the young pupils had done during the session was exhibited, and elicited the admiration of all present. The exercises were deeply interesting. The pupils manifested great activity in mind and body, and appeared to be very happy. Miss Jessie Nicholson, who has been under training for a teacher in the school for the last year, read an essay on the theory of the Kindergarten system of teaching, and illustrated its application, which was highly commended. Dr. A. H. McKay, superintendent of education, presented Miss Nicholson, who belongs to Charlottetown, N. B., with a diploma. The Acadian Recorder says, "that she is the fourth who has received the highest award since the school was organized." At the close of the proceedings speeches were made by the superintendent, Rev. F. Wilkinson and Rev. Mr. Stewart, of a very congratulatory character. It has been resolved by the authorities that the course in future shall be extended to two years instead of one as at present. It is considered that there is too much to learn to be comprised in one year. It is too great a tax on the pupil teacher to learn the theory and practise of the Kindergarten teaching in such a short time.

Willing to Work.

He was an unkempt-looking fellow, and he stopped at the suburban residence and asked for employment. It was spring, and the lady of the house was herself superintending the transplanting of the plants. The door of the greenhouse was open.

"Are you a gardener?" asked the woman.

"Ain't had much experience."

"Can you plant these bushes?"

"I'd hate to risk spoiling 'em, ma'am."

"Then what can you do?"

"Well, ma'am, if you'll give me one o' your husband's cigars," he replied meditatively, "I'll sit in the greenhouse and smoke out the insects that's eatin' up the leaves o' them rose bushes."

He—"I've been watching for a chance to kiss you for the last ten minutes."

She—"You must be near sighted."
