CURED BY
Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

"Some time since, I had a severe attack of asthma, accompanied with a distressing cough and a general soreness of the joints and muscles. I consulted physicians and tried various remedies, but without getting any relief, until I despaired of ever being well again. Finally, I took Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and in a very short time, was entirely cured. I can, therefore, cordially and confidently commend this medicine to all."
—J. ROSKELLS, Victoria, Texas.

"My wife had a very troublesome cough. She used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and procured immediate relief."

Editor of The Review:

DEAR SIR.—If you will allow me a short space in your paper I would like to call the attention of the public to a matter in which they are interested to some extent at least.

Some few days ago an attempt was made by some of our merchants to induce all the merchants of Richibucto to close their places of business every evening at 8 o'clock, Saturday evening excepted. With one exception all the merchants promptly fell in with the idea and agreed to sign an agreement to close their shops as above stated.

If this system were once in force it would be no disadvantage to the customer and would be a great boon to the merchant. The customer knowing that the shops close at 8 o'clock would make it a point to have his or her shopping done before that hour and the merchant would have a chance to get a breath of fresh air before he retired for the night. Being confined in a shop until 10 o'clock p. m., night after night is not pleasant to say the least. We cannot see how any man can reasonably oppose the early closing of the shops. One thing is sure nobody is going to lose a cent by it. Wherein then lies the objection?

The early closing system is now in force in nearly every town of any importance and we do not see why it will not work to advantage in a place like Richibucto.

We trust that the general public as well as the merchants will take an interest in having the early closing system put in practise. At least let us give it a fair trial and if it does not work it is a very easy matter to return to the old style.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles.
SYMPTOMS—Moisture; intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, become very sore. SWAYNE'S Ointment stops the itching and bleeding, heals the tumors, and in most cases removes the tumors. At drugists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. July 5th.—Our community was much surprised on Tuesday morning to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. T. D. Holmden of this place. Although she had been in poor health for some time it was not thought she was in danger. Deceased was much respected by all who knew her and a large number of friends followed her remains to the Episcopal graveyard at Brown's Yard. Rev. F. W. Murray conducted the services. She leaves a husband, two sons, and three daughters, to mourn her loss.

Mr. John Jackson who has been seriously ill is recovering. Dr. Keith is in attendance.

Mrs. Harvey Cooke of Sackville is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Girvan. Mr. Cooke also paid a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Atkinson of Montmore spent a few days with Mrs. Atkinson's mother Mrs. John Morton of this place.

Mr. R. J. Beers had a fine steer badly hurt one day this week by some person or persons who seem to have been ill disposed. Last accounts the animal was improving a little.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morton are to be congratulated on the arrival of a son.

Reasonable Prospects.
One night last week in the moonlight pale, Two little potato bugs sat on the rail Of McAlmon's bridge, one was a male, The other his wife,
Says she I fear we are on the wrong trail,
Pon my life.

Then up from his seat Mr. Bug did get, Beseeching Mrs. Bug not to worry or fret Just patiently wait for a day or two yet, Then you will see
What a banquet sweet nature so kindly will set
With lodgings all free.

Why should you forget our traditions and lore,
How our ancestors feasted quite near here of yore,
Just up on the hill where Jane planted before,
Dear generous soul,
She just gave up the field to us in ninety-four,
And we ate it up whole.

And now blessings on her, she has planted a larger piece,
Providing scope for our family to grow and increase.
A few become millions all living in peace,
No poison or hoe,
Perhaps Robert's plough will go through once or twice
To make our food grow.

Then look to the right, o'er the doctor's new field,
Just imagine the glorious, great dinners 'twill yield
For the thousands of couples near by it concealed
The same as we are,
For the Doctor's great friendship for us bugs oft revealed
From way back far.

He is liberal in planting and skilful as well,
His scientific theories fairly puzzles farmer Bell.
Oft, oft, have I heard my great grandfather tell
Of the great Morrel field,
How the Doctor would come every week for a spell
To figure the yield.

How his patience and potatoes by them, bugs were abused,
While figuring the labor and the seed that was used,
But when counting the bugs ha at length got confused.
And gave up in despair,
But though he blessed them or cursed them, was angry or amused,
The bugs stayed right there.

JULY 3rd, 1895.—The closing examination of our school took place on Friday, the 28th ult., with a good attendance of scholars and fairly attended by visitors, but sorry to state no trustees.

Mr. M. Wathen, the teacher, put his pupils through the different exercises and they acquitted themselves remarkably, setting forth the fact more strongly that teachers like preachers should be appreciated and encouraged as they have a work to do which parents cannot do and it requires a great deal of tact to be a teacher, especially when there are so many junior classes as in this school. There was a marked improvement in the scholars who attended regularly.

After a liberal supply of candy was passed around, Mr. Wathen called on the visitors to address the school. Mrs. Wm. McNairn in a few well-chosen remarks, spoke in high terms of the advancement made by the scholars and clearly stated that too much praise could not be given to Mr. Wathen our indefatigable teacher for the effort put forth in bringing the scholars along so rapidly and wished them happy holidays. An address to the teacher and scholars was read by Mrs. A. Johnson to which Mr. Wathen responded, thanking her for the good words of encouragement which he hoped the scholars would benefit by, and was followed by a very beautifully rendered song entitled "God be with you," by Mrs. Jas. Johnson.

Few medicines have held their ground so successfully as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. During fifty years, it has been the most popular of all cough cures and the demand for it to-day is greater than ever before. Prompt to act and sure to cure.

Kent Junction.
JULY 8th, 1895.—Miss Hattie Morton, of Acadieville, was in town yesterday.

Mr. R. J. Morton, of the I. C. R., was here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. David Legooft spent a few days with his parents here.

Miss Meeta McMichael, of West Branch, has returned home after a pleasant visit with her friends here.

Miss Hattie B. Smith, of Smith's Mills, Cocagne, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. W. Morton.

Mr. J. F. R. McMichael has been appointed as Station Master at Coal Branch. Mr. A. B. Wilson has taken his place here.

KILLED HER LOVER.
Awful Deed of a Texas Young Lady.

Ramirena, Texas, July 4.—Yesterday on the witness stand, after a most rigid examination by the coroner, Miss Bessie Harris, the pretty daughter of a wealthy farmer, broke down and confessed that she had committed suicide, but there were several who did not accept this theory, and they suggested to the coroner that he subject Miss Harris to a severe examination, as it was known that the dead man was last seen in her company. She was put upon the stand yesterday, and requested to tell all she knew about the case. She said that Blackman, who was a well-to-do farmer, had been courting her for some time in opposition to the wishes of her parents. Her father and mother did not object to the young man on account of any of his habits, as he was industrious, sober and abundantly able to provide a comfortable home for their daughter. They maintained that she was too young, being scarcely eighteen years old, and they had hoped she would take a fancy to a relative living in another state, whose name she steadfastly refused to divulge.

Finding that they could not change her affection for Blackman by threats, they adopted a more certain method, and began a systematic attack upon her jealous nature. They told her that Blackman was simply making her ridiculous and that he was engaged to another girl. She gave him no chance to explain away the reports her parents had furnished of him, and did not even mention that she suspected him of infidelity.

At her father's suggestion, she requested Blackman that he give her a test of his love by letting her hang him, promising to let him down in time to save his life. Blackman was desperately in love with the girl, and he readily submitted to the test. On the night of the murder she took a long walk with him and turned him to a lonely spot where her father was in hiding with a rope. Excusing herself for a moment, she procured the rope, and returning, placed it about Blackman's neck. She says he had little fear of the result, as he felt she had not strength enough to pull him from the ground.

After the rope had been placed over the limb and drawn taut, her father appeared and he and the girl pulled Blackman from the ground and tied the rope. The poor fellow struggled terribly, and she would have cut him down, but her father mentioned the mythical young woman, and her heart hardened towards her lover, who was slowly strangling to death.

After the body became rigid she untied the rope and lowered the form to the ground. Even then she felt no pangs of remorse, but with the assistance of the father arranged the body and rope so that it would appear to have been a case of suicide.

Her confession caused a pronounced sensation, and there was talk of lynching the parents of the girl. This was averted by the promptness of the officials, who, immediately after her confession, placed them under arrest, and spirited them away. The girl has also been arrested on a charge of murder.

To prevent pale and delicate children from lapsing into chronic invalids later in life, they should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla together with plenty of wholesome food and out-door exercise. What they need to build up the system is good red blood.

Coatesville Notes.
July 9th.—Our boys who have been to camp in Sussex returned home on Saturday looking quite happy and soldierlike. They speak very highly of all connected with the late camp at Sussex and say they would be quite willing to go back for another twelve days.

The season for strawberries has closed the pick was far below that of last year. The crops (except hay on dry land) are looking well.

Some of our farmers are spending their Summer vacation in the bark peeling business but the cut will be far below that of last.

The ladies of this place intend holding a social sometime in the near future to raise funds to fence the church and provide lamps for the same. The church presents a very creditable appearance in its new coat of paint.

Each Girl Wore Court Plaster.

The young man who thinks he is going to come out ahead in any joke in which a girl of ordinary sharpness is involved is sure to find his mistake. It happened some time ago in a certain college that the dormitories of both the young lady and gentleman students opened in the same hall.

One evening near midnight one of the girls, who had slipped out of her room to enjoy a secret chat with one of the other girls, was hurrying to her room, and in the dark mistook the room, entering the room of one of the boys by mistake. He was standing by the gas jet, having just turned out the light, and when she found the match which she carried in her pocket and started to light the gas she stumbled against him. Of course she screamed and started for the door, but he was too quick for her, and holding her a moment actually bit her cheek in order that he might identify the young lady when next they met.

Of course her wrath knew no bounds, and when she finally reached her room she called an indignation meeting of the other girls and explained what the horrid fellow had presumed to do. She could never face him again and was not going to chapel in the morning. But then of course he would know who she was, and she appealed to the girls to help her out of the difficulty. They did.

The next morning when the girl students filed past the boys at devotional exercises in the chapel one wicked youth looked over the top of his testament only to see a procession of twelve girls, each having a strip of black court plaster on her left cheek. He has never yet discovered which girl he bit.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Weight of Young Pigs.
A pig at its birth should weigh about three pounds. At the end of the first month the weight should have increased to fifteen, and it should continue to grow until at the tenth month it has attained a weight of 300 pounds. That is, if it is kept so long, but the most profitable hog is the one marketed when seven or eight months old. The cost of pork is fifty per cent. greater if made in the tenth month than in the fifth month in the food consumed.
