ANATOMY OF THE YAWN.

A Neglected Branch of Science—The Yawn Real and Artificial.

The anatomy of the yawn is a branch of science that has been neglected. A yawn is either natural or artificial. Among the natural are the things called "gapes," which are not true yawns at all, and must be carefully distinguished from them. The artificial article has a number of purposes. Sometimes it is assumed as a hint to the visitor who stays too long, or the man who talks politics in the presence of women, or talks shop, or tells an old story, or makes himself a general nuisance. Women have a habit of yawning in the face of the male individual who talks enthusiastically to them about other women. This is one of the most artificial of yawns. It has not even the pretense of reality about it. The most essential difference between the real yawn and the assumed one is that the former is contagious and the latter is not. One has only to indulge in this physical act unwittingly in a street car to see it pass up one side and down the other. The majority of those who follow the first example do it without knowing where the initiative came from, or that they are following it. On the other hand, an artificial yawn begins and ends with the person who perpetrates it. It has none of the subtle initiative of the real article. Next to being able to understand a yawn, the most important social accomplishment is to be able to stifle one. This can be done only after long practice. Where this art has not been attained to, the best thing to do is not to apologize. Such an explanation is an insult to the intelligence of the person spoken to. A real, soul-felt yawn must be lived down; it cannot be explained away. Say nothing and your neighbor may obviate all trouble by imitating you. In that case one transgression offsets the other.—New York Evening Sun.

How Treaties Are Made.

"The treaty-making power is given to the president, in connection with the Senate, by the Constitution," writes Ex-President Harrison in his "This Country of Ours" article in Ladies' Home Journal. "The initiative—the negotiations with foreign Governments leading up to an agreement, and the framing of the articles of the treaty—is with the Executive. The Senate has no part in the matter until the president communicates the treaty to it, and asks its concurrence. It may then, however, either concur or reject, or concur with amendments.  When the executive has agreed with any foreign power upon a treaty, and it has been duly signed by the Plenipotentiaries for their respective Governments, it is sent to the Senate for its concurrence, and is considered there in secret session. Whatever may be said as to the wisdom or necessity of secret sessions for other purposes it is manifestly necessary that the terms of treaties, and the discussion of them, should in many cases be kept in the confidence of those charged with concluding them, until they are concluded. **

"Though all the attempts in the Constitutional convention to give the House of Representatives a part in the making of treaties failed, it is still true that many important treaty stipulations depend for their execution upon the action of the House. If a treaty stipulates for the payment of money by the United States, the money cannot be taken from the Treasury without an appropriation. It may be said that as a treaty is a part of the 'supreme law of the land,' it is the duty of congress to appropriate the money necessary to carry it into effect; and that in the making of the appropriation the House has no right to consider the question of the value or propriety of the treaty. But, all the same, if the appropriation is not made the treaty fails.  Usually appropriations to carry out a treaty have been given freely by the House; but there is power to withhold them, and so to defeat the treaty. As to treaties involving our revenue laws, the House—having by the Constitution the sole power to originate revenue bills—has claimed the right to act upon a consideration of the wisdom or unwisdom of the treaty."

Human Beasts of Burden.

I have seen a good many human beasts of burden here, but the one I saw on Broadway this afternoon takes the medal. She was a tall, straight Italian and she walked rapidly along, much to the surprise of all who looked upon the load she carried. On her head was an immense bundle of wood, pieces of lumber, barrel staves and other odds and ends. With her right hand she steadied the burden. In her left she carried a heavy box, filled with blocks of wood. Thus both hands were completely occupied. But that was not all her load. Before she put the bundle on her head and picked up the box with her left hand she had caught the end of her stout apron in her teeth. The loop that was made by this operation she had filled full of sticks and boards. So handicapped she passed on.—New York letter in Pittsburg Dispatch.

One of Lincoln's Jokes.

This is a brand-new Lincoln story, and true, like all of this series. President Lincoln reached Meade Station, near Petersburg, soon after a serious battle in which about 2,000 Confederates were made prisoners. Gen. Meade was on the president's left and Col. George D. Ruggles on his right. On their way to headquarters they rode to a point where they could see the large assemblage of prisoners. With the prisoners were many colored servants and laborers. "Mr. Lincoln," said Gen. Meade, "I guess Ruggles did not overestimate the number of men captured." Mr. Lincoln checked his horse, deliberately surveyed the field full of Gordon's disarmed men and the contrabands, and said: "Yes, general the number is there in black and white."—Chicago Times-Herald.

The gift is not the payment of a tax, but the joyful handing over to God of that which is his own.

Impoverished blood causes that tired feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, enriches, vitalizes the blood and gives vigor and vitality.

A Clever New Brunswicker.

Among the invited guests and speakers at a meeting of the London (Eng.) Obstetrical Society, held on May 6th, was Dr. J. Clarence Webster of Edinburgh University. Dr. Webster has had the good fortune on the eve of his return to Canada to obtain another high honor. At the last meeting of the Royal College of Physicians he received from the president a fifty-guinea prize for original research. This is the second time that Dr. Webster has won the same prize, and he is the only competitor who has won it twice. The prize goes to the graduate of the college who presents the best thesis based on original investigation. Dr. Webster's theme was Human Embryology. His former prize thesis was published, the society having voted a sum of money for that purpose. It is likely that the same will be done this time.

TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM.

The pains of Rheumatism are removed, and the disease driven from the system by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, the conqueror of thousands of the severest cases.

Mrs. J. M. Monkman, of Arkwright, Ont., says:—I took inflammatory rheumatism in February, 1894, and doctoring for it some weeks, but found I was getting worse. All my joints were swollen very much and I was not able to leave my bed, and could neither sleep nor rest. Hearing from a neighbor that she got your Burdock Blood Bitters for her daughter, who had the same disease and it cured her, I purchased a bottle, and after taking about the half found myself recovering, and after continuing it for some time I recovered, but when the cold weather set in this winter I found it returning again. So I commenced to take the B. B. B. again, when I found, after taking it about a week that all pain and swelling of the joints had disappeared and I consider myself entirely cured.

CARD

To the Electors of the County of Kent: GENTLEMEN.—The Dissolution of Parliament again imposes upon you the duty of electing a representative at Ottawa, and the Electoral Writs summon you to the discharge of that duty on the 23rd of June next.

Permit me to thank you, heartily, for the confidence you reposed in me on the 6th of December, 1892.

The mandate you then so generously confided to me, I return to you, unsullied. I have regarded it as a public trust, and have faithfully endeavored, within the measure of my ability, to discharge the obligations it laid upon me.

Believing that my experience of the last four years may be of some benefit to the Constituency in the future, I respectfully solicit a renewal of your confidence. I submit for your approval that Policy—truly national—which has advanced the credit of Canada, fostered native industries, conserved the home market for our agriculturists and manufacturers, increased our Foreign Trade, and engendered that spirit of union without which national greatness is impossible.

I favor: Preferential Trade within the bounds of the Empire; A Fast Atlantic Service; The Development of Agriculture; An Efficient National Defence; The Encouragement of Immigration; The Admission of Newfoundland into this Confederation, and Justice to minorities whether in Quebec or Manitoba.

I support Remedial Legislation because with Sir Leonard Tilley, "I look at it as a solemn compact between the Parliament of Canada and the people of Manitoba."

It is the decision of the highest Court in the Empire.

It is a constitutional guarantee of the rights of Provincial minorities—Protestant as well as Catholic—and the highest patriotism inspires and compels respect for the letter and spirit of the Constitution.

I confidently, await your enlightened and unprejudiced approval of the moderate attitude I have taken on this question.

I will attempt, at public meetings to discuss the political issues of the day, and endeavor to see as many of you, personally, as possible.

Again soliciting your support, I am, Gentlemen, Your Obedient Servant, GEORGE V. MCINERNEY.
Richibucto, N. B., May 12th 1896.

The good that Dr. Agnew's Cure for the heart has done finds a ringing echo in the hearts of thousands in Canada who have used this medicine. There are some diseases where prompt action is not absolutely necessary to avert quick disaster. This is not the case with heart affections of any kind. Whether this be chronic or sympathetic, or partakes of a more startling character, he is a foolish one who will hesitate to apply an immediate remedy. This remedy will never fail to relieve in 30 minutes, no matter how long standing or distressing the trouble may be. If you have heart disease and wish to live, you have only to use this great cure.
