A respectable grandchild of the criminal couple recently sued the doctor for damages, and obtained them, the court holding that scientific research is no excuse for causing pain and discomfort to an innocent person by deaming his grandmother.

Bill and Polly.

By D. B. Lucas, D. D.

Quite one-half (perhaps more) of all the liquor drunk in Canada is drunk by men who do not desire it.

It is not so much the love of the liquor as it is love for companionship.

The treating system is one continued assault on the social element in man's nature.

God evidently never intended that man should be a hermit. Indeed, right at the very start He saw that it was not good for man to be alone. I regard solitary confinement as the worst form of human punishment.

The social element is one of the chief ingredients in that mysterious compound—MAN.

Every power man possesses may be perverted. The very tongue wherewith we should bless God is employed to blaspheme His name.

When love of companionship is seized upon and turned into a means whereby its possessor is injured, it is like the overpowering of the gunner by an assailing enemy, reversing it and making it hurl its deadly missiles on its owners.

I have seen, when a boy, a lot of men, at a logging-bee or a corn-husking, chip in their mite, and send off to the low tavern at the "Four Corners" for a quart or half gallon of whiskey, and I have seen a man swallow "a horn" of it, making, as the liquid coursed its way down his throat, as horrible a grimace as I ever saw a boy make when his mother, after throwing him on his back, and holding his nose, had choked down his throat a dose of castor-oil.

Why did he make the grimace? Because what he was drinking was nasty. (There is no other proper word.) The taste is unnatural to the human palate.

Then, if it was nasty, why did the fool drink it? Because there was another fool also holding a horn and saying "Well, Joe, old fellow, here's long life to you, may no old house ever fall down on you, or any rattlesnake ever bite you; may you live to see your great-great grandchildren settled all over the country. Boys join me in singing,

"For he's a jolly good fellow,
For he's a jolly good fellow,
For he's a jolly good fellow,
Which nobody can deny."

Three cheers and a tiger for Cap'n Joe.—Hip, hip, hurrah! and down she goes," and the grimace, for the stuff cuts its way through the skin of the mouth and throat till the tender nerves cry out—so the grimace.

Nothing could have been done along this line if the social element had not been brought into play. There has been the starting point towards destruction for untold thousands. It looks very foolish to those of us who are not in it, but to multitudes of young men, and older ones for that matter, especially when they have got well within the whirl of such companionship it looks as if life could not be properly or pleasantly filled up without this kind of hilarity.

A man's companionship constitutes his world; outside of the social ring which curves around him he sees in the dim distance another, or other worlds, for which he has no strong desires.

The taste of intoxicants for months, ay, sometimes for years, he does not relish, but his companions, his friends, his associates, he loves as he loves his life. They are his social world.

A man in your town waked early one day and said to his wife,

"Polly! I say, Polly!"

"What, Bill?"

"I've got to go to Townton to-day."

Polly's heart jumped into her throat, Polly's tears came into her eyes. That's queer, isn't it?

Polly soon has the breakfast ready.

At the table she started two or three times to speak, but stopped short.

At last she managed to say, "Did you say, you had to go to Townton to-day, Bill?"

"Yeh—yeh—yass."

"Well, Bill, what you goin' to Townton for?"

"Why, I want to see a man there on a little business."

Poor Polly hasn't hit it yet. Try again. With a desperate effort she says, "I say Bill, I want you to make me a promise, will you do it? there's a good fellow, for I know if you will, you'll keep it."

"Why yes; what is it, old girl?"

"Well, I want you to promise me that you won't drink any to-day."

"Drink! Well I never see such a woman as you are. You're everlastingly frettin' your gizzard about somethin' or other. Drink! Whatever put that into your head? Drink! I'm not goin' down there to drink."

"Well, Bill, you needn't get mad about it. You know how it was the last time you were down to Townton."

A VALUABLE ENDORSEMENT.

H. B. Short, of Digby, the well known Steamship & Express Agent, Testifies to the Merits of the Hawker Standard Remedies—Restored to Perfect Health.

Whoever has visited the town of Digby, N. S., in recent years has met or heard of H. B. Short, the popular agent of the Bay of Fundy S. S. Co., and the Dominion Express Co. The position he occupies brings him into contact with all travellers and makes him in a sense a public man.

Mr. Short has added his testimony to that of a host of other well known people regarding the great merits of the Hawker standard remedies.

"Last winter," he writes, "I had a very severe attack of grippe. It left me very much run down and suffering from an irritating and severe cough. I took a bottle of Hawker's balsam of tolu and wild cherry, and a short course of Hawker's liver pills. The cough soon left me, and the heavy tired feeling also gradually disappeared. Afterwards I took two bottles of Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic, which as a health renewer and invigorator I can heartily recommend to any one requiring such a remedy."

It is needless to say that there are thousands in need of this great remedy, and other thousands to whom Hawker's balsam would prove a priceless boon. These remedies are sold by all druggists and dealers, the pills at 25cts. per box, the balsam in 25 and 50ct. bottles, and the tonic at 50cts. per bottle or six bottles for $2.50. They are manufactured only by the Hawker Medicine Co., (Ltd.) St. John, N. B., and New York City.

Cycling is one of the amusements at the National Institute for the Blind in France. A species of home trainer is used, the wheels of which are so arranged that the actual speed is indicated on a dial, so that races are held, and some of the inmates have established records. The machines also give audible signals at various speeds.

Not so many years ago every boy who could read knew the name of "Oliver Optic" and read his books as fast as they appeared, and that was with surprising rapidity. This gentleman, whose real name is William T. Adams, is about starting on a voyage around the world, with a view to collecting material for a new series of thrilling literature for lads.

A foot race from Marathon to Athens, twenty-six miles, probably in memory of Phidippides, will be one of the features of the Olympic games, which begin on April 5 and continue till April 15. Eight hundred German gymnastic societies are going to enter the games.

MARCH 16th,

DEAR SIR,—My family have received great benefits from the use of the PELEE ISLAND GRAPE JUICE during the past four years. It is the best tonic and sedative for debility, nervousness and weak lungs we have ever tried. It is much cheaper and pleasanter than medicines. I would not be without it in the house.
