Concerning Untrained Writers.

There seems to be concerted effort on the part of older and experienced authors to advise young and inexperienced writers of the true dignity, importance, rights, and perils of authorship, and to dissuade lame, halt, and blind beginners from trying to join the procession of elect immortals. Somewhat in line with a part of another article appearing in these columns are the following observations by Mr. C. D. Warner, in the July Harper's:

"The temptations to write in these days are very many. Paper is wonderfully cheap. Facilities for publication were never so great. An immense capital is invested in the publication business, which must be kept active. Magazines, newspapers, occasional sheets of all degrees of extravagance in matter and of eccentricity in appearance, multiply every day. Sheets fall from the presses and are blown about like snowflakes for number. And the presses must be kept going. They are hungry dragons calling always for food. What wonder if the supply is equal to the demand, when the demand is not for quality but for quantity, or, what is influential with the writers, that the demand seems to be for quantity! Under this pressure writing is become a business trade. There would be less objection to consider it a trade if those proposing to enter it felt the necessity of fitting themselves for it as they would do for any other trade. But they do not. The witness of this is the number who are daily preparing manuscripts of all sorts without knowing the rudiments of the art. This is a reading public, never was another like it, and it is strange, that among the many who read, so few know the use of the simplest tools of literary composition. It would be a revelation to those who regard editors as non-encouragers of young talent if they could see the manuscripts offered to editors and publishers. They are often ungrammatical, the words are not correctly spelled, they exhibit total ignorance of the rules of composition, and commonly they convey commonplace thoughts in a vulgar style. And the senders of them think that they are rejected on account of some personal whim of the editor. There is an impression that there is a royal and easy road to authorship, that there be none to learning. It is sometimes admitted by those intending authorship that they do not know what to write about, and they ask advice as to what they had better read in order to enable them to enter the writing-market. That they are void of all capacity to write well does not occur to them, or that the production of anything worthy the name of literature requires a special gift and a hard apprenticeship.

"Are there not natural writers as well as natural bone-setters? Yes, probably, tho both flourish best in an uncultivated community. The mistake is not in being born with a literary or with a scientific gift, but in relying upon that without serious and pains-taking cultivation of that gift. The United States-to-day must present a singular spectacle to a supervising angel who is familiar with the literary development and production of the past. Probably in a like area was never so much writing done for publication and probably never so little that in proportion to the mass could on any standard of criticism be accepted as a contribution to the literature of the world. This is due to the general misapprehension that everybody ought to write—the schoolgirl who is fond of sentimental poetry, the lad who has read about the prices that authors receive, the society woman who has become weary of the inanity of her set, the man who has failed in everything he has undertaken and has a distaste for manual labor. The truth is everybody ought to try to know something, or learn to enjoy literature, to take into his life the great ideas of all time, and to keep silent for a number of years to come. What is wanted in this country, in this era of its development, is not writers, but discriminating readers."

Its Fame Spreading.

A New Remedy in General Use in Manitoba and the Northwest.

Winnipeg, July 27.—The effects of the regular wave of sickness which sweeps over this portion of the Dominion in the spring noticeable in the increasing amount of the druggist's sales. There has been quite a run on the kidney remedy known so well under the name of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The recovery from disease of Mr. Arthur Coley of Somerset, through their use an account of which appeared in the papers gave a considerable impetus to the sale, and the remedy has become indispensable in many Manitoba households, its fame having penetrated into the remotest parts of the province and North West Territories.

"Are these your clothes or mine?" asked the athletic man of his wife.

"Look in the hip pocket," was the reply. "If it's smelling salts they're mine; if it's brandy they're yours."

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. KINCHLOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
