

DR. WOOD'S Norway Pine Syrup. Rich in the lung-healing virtues of the Pine combined with the soothing and expectorant properties of other pectoral herbs and barks. A PERFECT CURE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

Kent Junction. Feb. 21.—Mr. Gordon Livingston, of Harcourt was here on Wednesday. A pleasant children's art was given on Friday evening...

We were pleased to see Mr. B. McLeod here on Wednesday. Mrs. Cameron of Bay Du Vin spent Saturday at the depot House.

Selkirk Murray, son of councillor Murray of Main River, spent Sunday with his cousin J. W. Morton.

Jasper Humphrey Esq. of Harcourt spent Monday here. A Dana Esq. of Harcourt was also here on Monday, returning home on evening train.

We were pleased to see councillor McKee of McKee's Mill, who was here this week visiting his son Mr. J. McKee of the I. C. R. while here Mr. McKee was entertained by Mr. & Mrs. J. W. Morton.

Mrs. Allanach of Main River came up by K. N. R. on Monday, to visit her friend, Miss Wellwood. To day Mrs. Allanach accompanied by Miss Wellwood proceeded to Rogersville by morning train, and will spend a few days with Mrs. D. J. Buckley of that place.

Our young people are quite delighted to hear that the Richibucto A. D. C. will perform in Harcourt next week I have no doubt a hearty welcome will be accorded them in that Drama-loving town.

Phillips. PHYSICIANS OF CORNWALL, ONT. RECOMMEND DR. AGNEW'S CURE FOR THE HEART.

Mr. Geo. Crites, a Government Official, Used the Remedy and is Cured.

George Crites, Esq., Customs officer, Cornwall, Ont.

"I have been troubled with severe heart complaint for several years. The slightest excitement proved very fatiguing and necessitated taking rest, so that I was utterly incapacitated for business. I was under a doctor's care for over six months and not receiving the benefit I had hoped for and hearing much of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, I asked my physician about taking it, which he advised me to do. The use of the remedy brought results I had scarcely dared to hope for and I am now able to attend to business, and do most heartily recommend this remedy to all who suffer from heart complaint. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, relieves in 20 minutes and thus has been the means of saving thousands of lives. Sold by W. W. Short.

To CORRESPONDENTS—J. M. S. Thanks for the article. We think its publication would have a bad effect under present circumstances.

THE MILKY SEA. Mystifying Spectacle Witnessed by Sailors in the Pacific. In 1616 the expedition to the East Indies under Martin Pring, when in the tropical Pacific, had one night what was to the members of that expedition a very mystifying spectacle, says Blackwood's Magazine. They beheld the sea all about them pale and white, resembling a vast cheese vat, so that one might have imagined "the Ship to have been sailing in Whey instead of Salt Water, it carried such a milky appearance along with it. The Air and Skie at the same time look'd White and Hazy, without doubt, doubt the effect of the reflections from the Surface of the Water so dispos'd and colour'd."

In February, 1881, Mr. Daniel Pidgeon, a very acute observer, witnessed the phenomenon of this "milky sea" of the Pacific, when he says: "The whole ocean from the ship to the visible horizon looked exactly as if it were covered with snow. The snowy surface evidently reflected the light of the sky, for Venus, being very bright, threw a distinguishable line of radiance across it, while the phosphorescent crest of waves was now and then seen breaking above the layer of shining matter which overlaid the water." He convinced himself that the appearance was due to a thin layer of mist, produced where the sea surface happens to be considerably cooler than the moist atmosphere above it, so that the air in immediate contact with the water is chilled below the dew point and becomes misty, while the air above remains transparent.

It would be interesting to know whether the same explanation will apply to all displays of the "milky sea," or whether the effect should sometimes be attributed solely to phosphorescent animals and plants, and, if not, whether in any case those sources of light contribute to illuminate the sea from below. Unique Way of Taking Stock. Mr. John Mouat, of Winnipeg, sends us the following: Apropos of your sea-gouge article on "Stock-taking" in The Grocer of 20th ult., reminds me of how an old shopkeeper in a country town in Scotland took his stock and struck his balance. When the time came he started off thus: "Noo, lads, steek the door, and let's get our stock-takin' over before onybodie comes in to bother us."

With a business-like air he began looking over the shelving, with the remark: "Well, there's as muckle stock there as will pay McDonald & Co.," eyeing each row of shelves in succession. "And there's as muckle there as will square Fraser & Co., and as muckle there as will square Cameron & Co., and they twa or three shelves there will cover the few wee accounts due and a' the rest's my ain. Noo, boys, come up and haec your supper wi me." If some of our merchants would even take their stock in this off-hand way, it would be much better than none at all.—Canadian Grocer.

On the Care of Rings. It is never wise to wet rings that have stones in them. Of course all rings need to be cleaned from time to time, and diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires will stand washing with soap. Turquoise and seed pearls will change color if subjected to any such treatment. The majority of pearl rings have not the full, round, perfect pearl, which alone will stand wetting. Almost all pearls have at least a tiny pin prick somewhere on their surface, and this, like a spot of decay in a tooth, will admit substances which will damage them. It is, therefore, usual to take off one's rings when washing the hands. This is how many valuable jewels are lost. An old-fashioned but excellent preventive of forgetfulness on such occasions is to put the ring in your mouth, or at least between your lips. Then you will remember to slip it on your finger after drying your hands.

Not Alone the Culprit. "Jedge, yoh bonah," said the defendant, "I ain't got much ter say foh merself." "It doesn't look as if you could have," "I done had de tubkey an' I didn't buy 'im, but I has 'stenuatin' circumstances ter offah in de consideration ob dis here case." "What are they?" "De fact dat dis here tubkey didn't know no bettah dan ter be peramb'lating 'roun' right undah mah nose jes' between Thanksivin' an' Christmas. Ef I was obercome, Jedge, by de excitement ob de moment, I's willin' ter b'ah de consequences. But hit do seem ter me dat sunin' oroter be did 'mout de criminal neglect on de part ob de tubkey."—Washington Star.

The Man With the Iron Skull. A Mexican was condemned to death for stealing a can of kerosene. He was taken out by a party of soldiers, received a volley of bullets at close range and was left for dead. As soon as the soldiers had gone he sprang to his feet and walked to the City of Mexico, many miles away, where he entered a hospital. The doctors found three rifle bullets imbedded in his skull, but he was not fatally injured. Now the authorities of the town which ordered him executed want him back in order to shoot him again. But he objects.—Buffalo Express.

A Curious Instrument. A country lad who attended church once a month used to hear, almost every time he went, an old song in which occurred the line, "I will guide thee with mine eye." The last two words sounded to him as "my nye," and for many years he supposed a "nye" to be some kind of instrument with which people were guided, and, from similarity of sound, perhaps related to the knife family.
