AN INCURABLE CURED.

AFTER TREATMENT IN CANADA'S BEST HOSPITAL HAD FAILED.

One of the Most Remarkable Cases on Record—Ten Years of Intense Suffering From Acute Rheumatism—The Whole Body Contracted and Out of Shape in Every Limb—Again Restored to Active Life.

From the Newmarket Advertiser

We suppose there is not a resident of Newmarket who does not know Mr. J. A. Moffatt, who does not know of his years of suffering and who has not heard of his release from a life of helplessness and pain through the medium of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Indeed we doubt if in the annals of medicine there is a more remarkable restoration than has been accomplished in Mr. Moffatt's case, and he deems it his duty to mankind to make the facts known through the columns of the Advertiser.

Ten years ago Mr. Moffatt was working in the Newmarket Hat Factory. Through the influence of the damp room, and possibly some carelessness in regard to his health, he was attacked with a severe cold which eventually settled in his limbs. For some years he was an almost constant sufferer from rheumatic pains and spent much money in treatment for the trouble, but with no result beyond an occasional temporary release from pain. Finally to make matters worse he was attacked with malaria and rheumatic fever. He was then forced to go to the Toronto general hospital when it was found that he was afflicted with torticollis (wry neck). During the first six months in the hospital he was under the treatment of the staff electrician, but the powers of electricity entirely failed, and after a consultation of physicians it was deemed advisable to perform an operation. Six weeks later a second operation was performed. The operations proved successful only in so far as they afforded temporary relief. He remained in the hospital from November, 1890, till January, 1892, and with all the modern remedies and appliances known to the staff of that well equipped institution no permanent relief could be obtained. He was then advised to go home, partly in the hope that the change might prove beneficial, but instead he continually grew worse, and in March, 1892, was again forced to take to his bed, and those who knew of his condition did not believe he had long to live. At this time every joint in his body was swollen and distorted, and he suffered the most excruciating agony. If a person walked across his bedroom it intensified the pain as though he was being pierced and torn with knives, and if touched he would scream aloud with agony. In this state of hopeless suffering he remained bedfast for eighteen months, all the while using all manner of medicines from which relief might be hoped for. Then he was put under the treatment of a celebrated Toronto specialist, but with no better result. After this last experiment failed, he determined to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, at the same time discontinuing all other treatment. At the end of three months there was a very noticeable improvement in his condition, and so much so that his mother thought he could be lifted outside. He was still so weak, however, that he was only able to remain up a few minutes as before. When taken back to bed he felt a sudden tingling sensation going up from his toes and through his joints and spine. The next morning when he awoke the pain had left the body and lodged in the arms, and then for some weeks the pain flitted from place to place in the arms and then disappeared, and he has not had a particle of pain since. All this time he was taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and slowly but surely regaining his strength. Then an invalid's chair was procured, and he was wheeled out, eventually he was able to wheel himself about. The continued use of the Pink Pills constantly added to his strength, and then the chair was discarded for crutches, and then the crutches for a cane. At this time (Sept. 1895) Mr. Moffatt had so far recovered that he was a frequent contributor to the columns of the Advertiser and procuring a horse and buggy he was engaged as local reporter for the paper. The once utterly helpless invalid is now able to go about, and to get in and out of his buggy without any assistance, and is at his post of duty whenever called upon.

Thus we find that after years of suffering and helplessness Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved successful after all other remedies and the best of medical treatment had utterly failed. With such marvellous cures as this to its credit it is no wonder that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the most popular medicine with all classes throughout the land, and this case certainly justifies the claim put forth on its behalf that it "cures when other medicines fail."

THE NEW STATION BREAKDOWN!
Where once was marshy bog and fen,
And scarce ever stepped the feet of men,
Where tangled briars grew strong below,
The Sumacs hung with crimson glow,
And Bar-berry bushes among the trees,
Shook their scarlet clusters to the breeze,
And throughout the wood a tangled vine,
In festoons hung the wild woodbine,
A limpid brook ran through the place,
That earlier settlers still might trace,
Its course along to the pond below,
That shadowed the trees in sunsets glow
Around and all along this spot,
Primeval life is now forgot.

No more is woodland life and song,
Nor comes the herd the path along,
Nor drifts the snows at Winter's dawn,
Nor robs the trees at Spring's first morn.
But by the Bridge of Granite cast,
Where go the trains still first and last,
The station stands high up the grade,
Pillared and carved, stanch and staid,
And through its doors the passengers go
The tide of traffic flows down below,
Its doors swing in, its doors swing out,
The crier tells the trains about.

But through its doors the tide by day,
Goes back and forth without delay,
And people pause to smile and say,
"Tis the grandest Station fashioned to-day."

While all about the sunlight glows,
And up the sloping bank one goes,
Either in or out to wait the train,
To be ticketed over the road again.

And when a hundred years are gone,
Who'll stop to think across the lawn,
Of those who passed in early life
To the Station's door, from the city's strife.

Not made by man a Stationed way,
Awaits for all, nor brooks delay,
And all alike both rich and poor,
Pass on each day both old and young,
From every land and every tongue,
And friend meets friend on that other side,
Who have loved, and loving there abide,
And through the great Station are kindly led,
By a loving hand, it is fondly said.
No more returns from that Stationed way,
From death to life from night to day,
A final home by each is shared,
A home for every one prepared,
Who through that Station pass along,
From the busy world, and its busy throng.

A Remarkable Cure.—J. W. Jennison, Gifford—Spent between $200 and $300 in consulting Doctors; tried Dixon's and all other treatments but got no benefit. One box of Chase's Catarrh Cure did me more good than all other remedies, in fact I consider myself cured, and with a 25 cent box at that.

A Curious Record.
Susan Ashley was buried at Westfield, Mass., Saturday, so quietly that few people knew about the plain little funeral. Yet when she was born there, forty years ago, the news was sent out that a daughter had been born to the Ashleys, one of the richest and most influential families in Massachusetts. Her mother died, leaving her $5,000,000. She married J. C. White, once United States minister to Brazil, and spent the honeymoon in Europe, living in luxury, and being presented to the Queen. Then husband and wife became estranged and separated, she resuming her maiden name and going to Chicago with her daughter. Her fortune was swept away by bad investments, and to make a living the ex-society leader opened a shop on Madison street and hung out the sign, "Lady Barber." It was a successful enterprise, although Miss Ashley's relatives were properly scandalized. Her daughter Florence still carries on the business and shaves all comers. White, the husband, still lives in Chicago. The story of this woman's life, as detailed in the American press, is a curious instance of the ups and downs of life.

A Bright Tar
Some men in a public house were inventing stories to pass the time away. They had all had a turn at it except an old sailor, who had remained silent all the time until pressed by the others to spin a yarn. He began:
"I was once in a dreadful storm. All the provisions were washed overboard. I was very ill and ate nothing for four days, at the end of that time I began to feel hungry, and the steward gave me beef chicken, port wine and eggs."
"But you said all the provisions were washed overboard. Where did the beef come from?"
"From the bullocks" (bulwarks) said the old sailor.
"And where did you get the chickens from?"
"From the hatch."
"And the port wine?"
"From the port hole."
"And the eggs?"
"Eggs," said the sailor. "I didn't say eggs, did I?"
"Oh, yes, you did," said the men, "We have caught you now."
The old sailor thought he was caught, and had to consider. At last he said:
"Oh, yes, I did have eggs. The captain ordered the nip to lay to and he gave me one."

Sir Frederick Napier Broome, K. C. M. G., died on Thursday in London. He was born in Canada in 1842 and emigrated to New Zealand in 1857. In 1869 he came to England. He was appointed governor of West Australia in 1882 and held the office seven years. He was afterwards governor of Trinidad. Sir Frederick was a contributor to magazines and published two volumes of verse.
