Dogs' Nerves Transplanted.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., November 12.—A successful operation was performed in the Butterworth Hospital, which, so far as known, has no parallel.

Six months ago, N. Graybiel, of Caledonia, badly mutilated the wrist of his right hand on a cut-off saw. The ulnar and median nerves were nearly severed, so that the hand was paralyzed. Finally Graybiel came here for treatment, and a daring operation was attempted.

Graybiel and a small, black Spanish dog were placed under anaesthetics, and the man's torn nerves cut off. Then two inches of sciatic nerve from the living dog was transplanted and attached to the two ends of the severed median nerve in Graybiel's wrist. The same process was gone through with on the ulnar nerve.

To-day Graybiel announced that he can move his hand freely and that full sensation has returned.

In a short time the hand will be as strong and active as ever. The dog was given morphine and died soon after the operation was completed.

CRIME OF SNORING.

Ancient and Modern Authorities Quoted in Proof of the Assertion That It is a Diabolical Offense.

A Boston judge has refused to grant a decree of divorce to a wife who sought separation from her husband because he snored. The decree may be based on sound law as it is written in Massachusetts, but it is contrary to the unwritten law of humanity.

It is not our intention to interfere with the domestic relations of any couple, says the Chicago News; on the other hand, we would have every home on this earth a haven of unlimited joy and unrestricted felicity. But against the crime of snoring we herewith enter a loud and earnest protest.

Snoring should be made a capital offense in every civilized country. The man who will deliberately lie prone on his back and roar through his nasal organs is an enemy of society and a menace to law and order. And the ancients so considered him. In his "Commentaries," the late Mr. Caesar says:

"I would rather a man would wallop the daylight out of me than snore in my neighborhood. I would have overcome the barbarians if I had not lost sleep by reason of one of my aides-de-camp sighing through his nose. If I had not been done up by Brutus and his gang I should have made a law which would have discouraged this form of relaxation."

Prof. Ebers, the well-known Egyptologist, says that the real cause of Cleopatra's early death was nervous prostration brought on by an attendant's snoring. Rather than spend any more sleepless nights she grabbed an asphyxiant near by and told it to start asphyxiant right away.

At St. Helena Napoleon told his doctor that Waterloo was lost by Grouchy falling asleep under a tree and snoring so loud he couldn't hear the guns at Waterloo. Napoleon had no sympathy with a person who would sleep with his nose open.

Other authorities could be quoted to prove that the habit of hurrahing through one's nose has not only disturbed great persons, but has made history and changed the world's map. That Boston man would better remain where he is; he is near a lenient judge.

The Way to Learning.

The well-known ignorance of some of the rural school teachers of long ago makes it a matter of surprise that so many boys who received no instruction but that these schools afforded went out into the world to become the great men many of them did become. The governor of an eastern state says that he well remembers one of his teachers, who used to say to the pupils:

"Come, come children; can't you set up a little more erecter?"

But this is not equal to the awful slaughter of the king's English of which a certain western teacher was guilty. Some one asked him if he had been to a lecture given a few nights before:

"No," he replied; "I didn't know of it in time. If I had known I would of went!"

The writer once heard a somewhat irritable teacher say to his pupils: "It does seem as if I can't learn you nothin'."

The county superintendent of schools in a western state says that he was once visiting a school when a reading class was called up to recite. A girl stood up to read and after reading a line or two she came to the word "saucer," whereupon she hesitated because she could not pronounce the word.

"What?" said the teacher, a big, burly fellow with an important and all-wise air, "you can't pronounce a little word like that? Well, spell the word and let someone else in the class pronounce it for you."

The girl spelled the word aloud, but no one in the class offered to "pronounce" it and the disgusted teacher said:

"Is it possible that I've got to pronounce that word myself? I'm ashamed of you. Well, now listen while I pronounce it, and don't you ever forget it. The word is sasser!"

This same teacher, who was really regarded as an excellent teacher, always rebuked his pupils for leaving the door ajar by saying:

"You go right straight back an' shew that there door shet."

It was but a year or two ago that the writer heard a rural school teacher say to a boy who did not know his lesson:

"Well, I'm plum ashamed of you. A body would think I hadn't taught you a thing this whole term. It's awful to be so ignorant!"

A Daniel to Judgment.

At a recent commencement of a certain law school several women were admitted to the bar.

Among them was one who created quite a stir when she walked across the platform, to receive her diploma. She wore the deepest mourning, a flowing crape veil nearly enveloped her figure, and she led a little child by the hand.

As the company were dispersing a masculine spectator commented upon this apparition to his wife, who was with him. The wife did not agree with him that it was a curious notion of the new lawyer: "I think it showed her acuteness," she asserted. "She made us all understand her story, by that somewhat theatrical appearance."

"She told us that she was a widow, left by her recent bereavement in pecuniary straits, and with a little boy to look after, as well as to support herself."

"I think she judged fairly of human nature, and that she stands in a fair way, both of proving a quick witted lawyer and of getting all the work that those who witnessed this scene can throw in her way."

Lumbering on the Ottawa

A LIFE OF GREAT HARDSHIP AND EXPOSURE.

River Drivers Often Waist Deep in Icy Waters—Pain-Racked Bodies the Frequent Outcome—Only the Most Robust Can Stand This Weary Round of Toil.

From the Ottawa Free Press.

Only those who have engaged in the arduous occupation of lumbering know how dearly earned is their livelihood, for among the many vocations of men that of lumberman ranks among the most dangerous and difficult. There is the heavy shanty labor from earliest dawn to evening star when the toiler for half the year is rescued from home and friends, and whose daily round is to eat and work and sleep, only getting an occasional glimpse of the outside world through a long looked for letter from some loved one far away.

Then the days lengthen, the frozen lake breaks up, and comes the driving of logs and hewn timber down the tortuous swift running stream, when necessity often calls the driver to wade body deep in the swift flowing, icy waters. None but the strong can engage in such heavy labor, only the most robust are able to stand the ten hours of daily toil, with but a mid-day hour's respite. Such, in brief, is the life of many thousands of laborers in the Ottawa valley.

ley, and among the many is Thos. Dobie, of 130 Head street, Chaudiere, who for twelve long years has wrought for the great lumber king, J. R. Booth, shantying in the snowy northern forests, and lifting three inch deal during the summer heats. It is not to be wondered at that in his long experience and great exposure he should contract a severe cold that in time took permanent lodging in the region of his loins and kidneys. Like many others he thought to work it off, but in vain. Soon the pains in the region of the kidneys became so intense that labor was a torture to him, and it was only the indomitable courage, born of a knowledge that others were dependent upon him, that urged him to pursue his weary round of daily toil. Every sudden movement of the body was as a thorny goad that made him wince beneath its sting. Added to this was an unusual and excessive sweating which necessitated frequent changes of clothing, and which weakened him to such an extent that his appetite was almost entirely gone and eventually but little food and much water was his daily fare. Many vain efforts were made by Mr. Dobie to free himself from the pains which had fastened themselves upon him, and one medicine after another was used, but without effect. Life became a burden and existence a thing almost undesirable. After many fruitless efforts he was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When three boxes were taken the change in his condition was marvellous, and his own words are "when I had taken six boxes I was a new man and consider the cure worth hundreds of dollars." Mr. Dobie, although completely cured, continues taking Pink Pills occasionally and is very enthusiastic in his praises of what the pills have done for him. Many of his fellow workmen seeing the great change wrought in him by these famous pills have been led to give them a trial for other ailments and are unanimous in pronouncing them superior to all other medicines.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and nerves, building them anew and thus driving disease from the system. There is no trouble due to either of these causes which Pink Pills will not cure, and in hundreds of cases they have restored patients to health after all other remedies had failed. Ask for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and take nothing else. The genuine are always enclosed in boxes the wrapper around which bears the full trade mark "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." May be had from all dealers or sent post paid on receipt of 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OLD WAR HORSE.

A Grand army Man Crosses Swords With Heart Disease and Wins a Glorious Victory with the aid of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart can not be over estimated, says H. M. Musselman, a well-known G. A. R. man of Weissport, Pa., and he continues: "My ailments were palpitation and fluttering of the heart. I used two bottles of your valuable cure and feel like a new man. I have taken bottles and bottles of other medicines without help. I introduce it to my friends at every opportunity possible. It is a great medicine. Inside of 30 minutes after the first dose I had relief." Sold by W. W. Short.
