Children Cry for Pitcher's Cactoria.

HOW SARDINES ARE CAUGHT.

Signs of Their Coming—The Bait—The Nets—The Process Pictured. It takes 25,000 or 30,000 men to catch the fish that go into sardine boxes in France alone. The fishermen are employed seven months a year, and one village alone has been known to sell 2,650,000 pounds of sardines and to salt as many more. The signs by which fishermen judge of the coming of sardines are floating bunches of algae, the odor from the sardines caught by fish of prey, and birds hovering over the sea. The terns dive straight, with wings close, and the cormorants kiss the water lightly with their bills when these fish are near the surface. It is then the bait is cast overboard. The bait is generally codfish roe, mostly from Norway, salted down in barrels for transportation, but soaked in water to make it heavy. It is cast overboard by the barrel—35,000 tons of Norway roe are used in the season. Countless schools of sardines are attracted by it. Curiously enough the fishermen all use gill nets from thirty to forty-five yards long and from nine to twelve yards deep. The bottoms are not leaded or otherwise weighted, and they are cast out so that the sardines, in their rushes to and fro for the bait fetch up in the nets and are drowned. When a net gets heavy it is pulled in, the fish are taken out and are cast into the hold. Up goes the sail, and away the boat starts for the shore, where the fish are cured. There was a time when 12,000 or even 30,000 sardines were taken in a trip by a single boat, but as in the Lake Erie and the North Atlantic coast fisheries the fish have decreased and nowadays rarely more than 6,000 fish are taken on a trip. For this fishing 20 foot boats are used with a sharp spear forward and a square stern. They are fast sailers but cranky. Two masts that lean back slightly and two large square lugger sails catch even slight puffs of air and send the boat a-zipping. At the shore, say from 6 to 10 in the morning, the boats arrive, coming in like a flock of birds to their roost at night, and are met where the water shallows by men and women dealers holding baskets that carry 500 fish each. The men roll up their trousers, the women their skirts, but many plunge in water up to their elbows if need be to get to the boats. When the baskets are loaded they are dipped to make the fish look fresh, and then they are taken ashore and salted. At the factories women dress them and the fish are spread side by side with their heads cut off in a thin layer of salt atop of flat rocks. This is the first drying. While the fish are lying on the rocks, huge boilers, filled with the finest olive oil, are placed over the fire and started to boil, when the fish are put in layers on wire screens or baskets and dipped into the oil. Then the fish are put in frames to drip. After dripping they are put in drying rooms and there exposed to the sea air till in proper condition.

How Social Success is Won. "I think," writes Ruth Ashmore, addressing a reply to a girl correspondent who asks how to become a social success, in August Ladies' Home Journal, "that you will be a social success, for you are pretty to talk with, and pleasant, too, to look upon, but you must remember every day and every hour of your life that social success is only obtained by continued thought of the value of little things. The little pleasures are really great ones, the little courtesies are keenly appreciated, and the little politenesses are those that will make you not only a lovable girl, but a lady. I think to be a social success you must be that. Reformers are prone to say that the finest name that can be given to you or to me is woman. Perhaps that is true. But it seems to me that you should also wish to be called a lady. You are a woman by birth, and a lady because of your tact and good manners. There is many a woman truthful and honest, but so lacking in tact that she cannot possibly be called a lady. If, therefore, you wish to have society approve of you you must be ladylike and tactful as well as womanly."

Vocabulary of One Word. "I shall never forget my first visit to Madrid," said a woman to the New York Sun man. "I was the only member of our party who knew any Spanish, and I knew but one word, that one being 'leche'—milk—but by means of gestures we managed to get along until breakfast was served. Then, as luck would have it, the maid brought my coffee without any milk, and also as luck would have it I promptly forgot the one word of Spanish that I knew, and which of all words was the one most wanted at that moment. This time neither gesture nor yelling were of any avail, so, at last, in desperation, I seized a piece of paper and a pencil and drew a picture of a cow. Whereupon the maid tripped off and came back with three tickets to the bull fight."

The Watchword. "Each for all and all for each" is the watchword of the hour. A noisier message has not gone out to the people since the angels sang the song of "Peace on earth and good will unto men!" "Each for all," then each shall be saved from the sins that do beset the soul, and also of self-seeking selfishness. "All for each" then no man shall be left to make the struggle alone and single handed, and if "All for each" then each and all shall enter into the larger, nobler service that brings the Kingdom of God in the hearts of the world.—G. L. PERIN, P. D.

Colours from Coal Tar. Coal tar, formerly considered a waste and a regular nuisance to gas workers, is now carefully saved and utilized as one of the most valuable color producers. The chemists have extracted from it sixteen shades of blue, sixteen shades of yellow, twelve shades of orange and nine of violet, besides shades of other colors too numerous to mention.

Editor Review:

While West last year the writer was very much struck by the heartiness and unanimity with which the people of Hamilton, Ont., turned out to honor their fellow townsman, who had won the leading prize at the lists in England. Mr. Hayhurst had, they said, done the town a most valuable service, and they felt, all and every one, under obligations to him. It is the opinion of the writer at least, that Mr. Forbes, who won at Ottawa, the Governor General's prize, has, if we take into account the relative size, importance and history of Richibucto in particular, as was done by Mr. Hayhurst for Hamilton. He would therefore suggest that some public recognition of this fact be made by our people. There is nothing that is more encouraging than generous and manly recognition of worth by the public, and nothing more discouraging and more calculated to repress efforts that have for their object the public welfare, than cold neglect. More than one man belonging to Kent has won distinction abroad, who found that the people among whom he was bred had never heard of him, or what he had done. Let not Mr. Forbes be added to that number. If we wish position in the world let us unite to assist by our suffrages the men who make the name of Kent well known by doing something in some degree out of the very common exploit of making a few dollars either at home or abroad.

To Willie Forbes. Here is health to Willie Forbes, Drink it down, See, our county quite absorbs His renown. To the boy on honor bent, To the capital who went From our dear old county Kent, From our town. Should the storm of battle burst On our land, Willie Forbes shall be the first In command. Man of steady hand and eye, Ready brain and courage high, May the foeman well defy With his hand. Then let us kindly greet Willie Forbes, Give him in the hall and street Kindly words. Let him see as best we can That each mother, maid and man, Feels the pride of race and clan Which he curls. C. C. C. Kingston, Sept. 7th, 1896.

Barnaby River Items. Sept. 7th.—Not seeing any notes from this vicinity for some time, I thought I would write these few lines to your valuable paper. Mr. Gratton left on Friday last to attend College at Antigonish, N. S. Mr. and Mrs. R. Woods, of Acadieville, are paying a visit to Mr. and Mrs. J. McGrath. Mr. J. F. Desmond, Asst. Frt. Agt. of Campbellton, paid a flying visit to his parents here on Saturday. Quite a number of our citizens attended the picnic at Rogersville on Saturday last. The farmers are near about done gathering in their rich harvests, everything considered the crops yielded remarkably well. Mr. J. O. Quilty took in the Railway Mens Picnic at New Mills a short time ago. We are having beautiful weather here at present. NON DE PLUME
