SILVER AND GOLD.

One of the hard things to answer in the contention of the "silverites" is that gold has appreciated or increased in value rather than silver has depreciated. We may not believe this contention; we may be, as probably most Canadians are, opposed to the silver plank of the Democratic party, but still it is hard to find a short, sharp and conclusive answer to this proposition.

Where is the flaw in this argument? And yet if the argument is sound, does it not follow that silver is a truer and more just standard of value than gold?

Silver has become relatively more plentiful in the world than gold. But silver has not increased more rapidly than the currency requirements of the world have increased. Trade and commerce, industry, production, manufactures have developed among the nations in quite a rapid ratio as has the output of the silver mines.

Let us admit that Bryan becomes president and a free coinage law is passed on the basis of 16 ounces of silver to one of gold, and that in consequence the gold disappears from circulation, why need this bring ruin and desolation in its train? Even if we admit (what is denied) that the currency would be depreciated so that the American dollar would be worth little more than half of the Canadian dollar, need that cause the wide-spread ruin that has been predicted?

As for the talk of "repudiation," is it not largely a bugbear? All existing foreign debts will have to be paid in gold or its equivalent. This will include all insurance policies on which the premiums are paid according to the gold standard.

We are far from being convinced of the soundness of the silver platform, but none the less it is not so utterly senseless that something may not be said in its favor.

THE TIDE OF CRIME.

The Ontario Inspector of Prisons, in his report for 1895 struggles with the question of education and crime. But he is obviously puzzled by the statistics before him. For instance, in 1869 there were in the province of Ontario 5,655 commitments for crime. In 1877 the grim total had swelled to 13,481 and the figures have since fallen to 9,380 though the population has largely increased.

The fact is that while the educational status of Ontario is much higher than in Quebec there is also in proportion to population much more serious crime in the larger than in the smaller province. It is therefore difficult to account for the figures on educational grounds. We are reluctant to give a political turn to these statistics, but Quebec has been mainly under Tory rule, while Ontario has followed Grit leadership.

We do not share in the cry of French domination that is being raised in certain quarters against the Laurier government. The construction of the cabinet shows ten Protestants, every one of whom has a portfolio—Mowat, Cartwright, Muloch, Paterson, Blair, Fielding, Borden, Davies, Joly and Fisher. There are five Catholics—Laurier, Scott, Tarte, and Fitzpatrick with portfolios, and but two of them, the premier and Mr. Tarte, are French speaking.

Montreal Witness and the Templar of Toronto, trusted exponents of the temperance and prohibition elements in the country are indignant to find the Liberal press of the country distinctly "hedging" on the prohibition question since their party came into power. They were ready enough before the election to promise a plebiscite and a prohibitory law (if the people wanted it) but now they can find reasons as plentiful as blackberries why the plebiscite should be postponed and why prohibition is not needed.

Nansen has been at length really heard from, having arrived in Norway. He is only 36 years old—the age of Bryan, the great silverite. He did not reach the pole, but claims to have come within 261 miles of it, thus lowering the record by four degrees. Some man will yet probably get to the pole though it is doubtful whether it will be worth the cost and peril.

Parliament meets to-day at Ottawa, and a Conservative caucus is called for this morning at which the leadership of the party and the policy to be pursued during the session will be definitely settled. Sir Charles has acted prudently in giving his followers a free hand as to the choice of another leader, but there are no present indications of a new choice. It remains to be seen whether the Liberal example of last session will lead to a policy of obstruction being adopted.

Present indications are that His Excellency's new ministers will give him but a short speech to deliver at the opening, with few government measures to promise. With so many new members, a brand new government and new opposition measures can surely be dispensed with, for once. A question which will arise in the breasts of some unpeevish members will be whether they will receive a full sessional indemnity of $1000 or only the $10 per diem allowance for sessions of less than 30 days. They have a sure thing on mileage in any case.

The attempt of the Conservatives to recapture North Grey, Ont., and the joint counties of Queens and Sunbury, against two such champions as Hon. Messrs. Paterson and Blair will be warmly applauded by the opposition if it should succeed, and not otherwise. The Liberal majorities at the general election in June were not large—32 in Grey and 179 in Queens, but the change of power and patronage to that side reduces Conservative chances now.

The official palace cars are not without their uses. They furnished accommodation for the late ministers and a text for many homilies on extravagance by the Liberal opposition. Now the new ministers and their families have the accommodation and the other fellows the text. But the palace cars are kept busy!

K D C the Great Spring Remedy

All accounts seem to agree that the Manitoba wheat crop of this year will fall much short of last year's 30,000,000 bushels. The manager of Ogilvie's mills estimates a crop of 15,000,000, and Hon. Mr. Sifton, who is in Ottawa, thinks the falling off from last year's crop will not be more than one-third. That would leave 20,000,000 bushels.

Bicycles in England.

No more important topics occupy the editorial space in the columns of the English cycle publications than the invasion of Britain by the American manufacturers. Every week the papers comment either favourably or adversely on the product of some United States maker who has introduced into England a consignment of his wares, and it must be said their opinion has of late changed from a bitter antagonism to extreme favouritism.

Hitherto the English cycling press has been solely dependent upon English manufacturers for its advertising support; in other words for its very existence; but appearances seem to indicate that in the near future American manufacturers, who are notoriously larger advertisers than the English, will form no inconsiderable portion of its clientele, and this prospect, has doubtless been responsible for the columns of unstinted praise with which the firms from the other side, who have this year made their entry into our markets, have been greeted, but it does not redound to the credit of the English cycling press that it is so, nor is it at all gracious thing to gratuitously administer a slap on the face to their previous sole supporters in a fatuous attempt to please the new-comers, as some of our contemporaries have done.

When South American Kidney Cure is called into question, unlike pills, powders and medicines of that kind, it immediately dissolves the uric acid and hardened substances that constitute this disease, and the system rid of these a cure is soon effected. Mr. D. J. Locke, Sherbrooke, Quebec, says he spent over $100 in treatment for a complicated case of kidney disease, but received no relief. After taking a few doses of South American Kidney Cure he felt wonderfully helped, and to quote his own words: "I have now taken four bottles and consider myself completely cured."

HYPNOTIC EXPERIMENT.

A Professor Who May Yet be a Home-cide

Prof. Boone, a well-known hypnotist, of Indianapolis, Ind., put J. J. Wyatt under his mysterious influence, and announced that he would bury his subject and revive him next Friday, after an interment of three days. Wyatt had previously consented to the arrangements and the burial took place at Fairview Park last night at 10.30, a tube being passed down to where he lay. He was buried four feet under the ground, and a guard placed at the grave. Shortly before noon to-day Wyatt came out from under the influence and, realizing his situation, began to scream like a wild man. He was hurriedly dug up and it was some time before he could be cooled down. He protested against a second interment, but Prof. Boone soon got him under control, and Wyatt was again put down in the earth. The experiment is attracting much attention.

A man was once saved, by a very poor boy, from drowning. After his restoration he said to him:—"What can I do for you, my boy?" "Speak a kind word to me sometimes," replied the boy, the tears gushing from his eyes; "I ain't got a mother like some of them."

A kind word! Think of it. This man had it in his power to give that boy money, clothes, playthings, but the little fellow craved nothing so much as a kind word now and then. If the man had ever so little heart, the boy must certainly have had the wish granted. A kind word! You have many such spoken to you daily, and you don't think much of their value; but that poor boy in the village, at whom everybody laughs, would think that he had found a treasure if someone spoke a kind word to him.

Why Do We Apologize for Laughing? Did you ever notice how people will apologize for laughing? Let anyone relate how at a certain place, and upon a certain occasion, their mirthful nerves were tickled by some circumstance or unique combination of circumstances, and nine times out of ten he will say, "I laughed, or I had to laugh—I couldn't help it."

"I laughed," says the independent man of business. "I couldn't help it." "I laughed," says the jolly matron. "I couldn't help it." "I had to laugh," says the giggling school girl. "I couldn't help it, you know." Rare indeed, is the person who will say, "I laughed," and let it go at that. It would seem sometimes, that "laughed" and "couldn't help it" are wedded and inseparable.—Boston Globe.

The Christian should so walk and talk, that no wicked man can remain for an hour without feeling ashamed of himself.

A Triple Alliance.

That Has Won in Every Conflict—The Three Great South American Remedies Never Fail in the Cure of Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, and the Worst Forms of Indigestion.

The Three great South American Remedies have been called into conflict with many a desperate enemy, but the case has yet to be recorded where they have not come out the victor. If we take South American Rheumatic Cure, the story of the patients who have been cured by it reads like a fairy tale. Mr. D. Dessnecis, of Peterboro, suffered terribly from rheumatism, that he was blistered by doctors ten different times, in as many different places with the hope of driving the disease from his system. His hands were drawn out of shape and his fingers almost destroyed. His left leg had to be encased in a plaster of Paris cast for months. One week after using South American Rheumatic Cure, this patient was like a new man and in a short time completely cured.

When South American Kidney Cure is called into question, unlike pills, powders and medicines of that kind, it immediately dissolves the uric acid and hardened substances that constitute this disease, and the system rid of these a cure is soon effected. Mr. D. J. Locke, Sherbrooke, Quebec, says he spent over $100 in treatment for a complicated case of kidney disease, but received no relief. After taking a few doses of South American Kidney Cure he felt wonderfully helped, and to quote his own words: "I have now taken four bottles and consider myself completely cured."

The worst forms of indigestion were cured by the use of South American Nerve. It acts on the nerve centres located at the base of the brain, from which come all the roots, troubles and disorders of the stomach. Mrs. H. Stableton, Wingham, Ont., says: "I had been troubled for a number of years with nervous debility, indigestion and dyspepsia; and had been treated by a number of the best physicians in Canada and England. I was advised to try South American Nerve, and must say if I had not done so I would not have been alive to-day. I will never be without it."
