

HORN-FLY VS. POTATO BUG.

The horn-fly like the potato bug has come to stay. Intelligent farmers do not smear the potato leaves with filthy greasy mixtures to keep off the bugs, no, they use something to kill them, so with the horn-fly, the sensible up-to-date farmer does not cover his cattle with kerosene or axle grease, because he knows these things will not kill a single fly while they taint the milk and injure the health of the animal, but they do use Shives' Insect Powder which kills the flies and is harmless to the animals. Be sure you get from your merchant or druggist genuine Shives' Powder, it is cheap and sure. It kills the flies every time. Sold only in cans with dredger attached. Look for the name on the label. Sample can 25c. 3 cans 50c. Post Paid.

FIRST IN THE ESTIMATION OF CANADIAN WOMEN.

DIAMOND DYES THE WORLD'S LEADERS.

The women of Canada many years ago selected the Diamond Dyes as the standard dyes for home dyeing. This selection has proved a wise one. The quality of the Diamond Dyes has never deteriorated they still stand first as the brightest, fastest and strongest colors, and never fail to do what what is promised for them.

Many inexperienced buyers are put to great loss and inconvenience by using the crude and imitation dyes.

If every buyer insisted upon having the Diamond, profit and pleasure would result from the dyeing operation. Beware of imitations; ask for the Diamond Dyes, take; no other.

PROVERBS FROM GRIT

Talk is Cheaper.—Mr. Verbose—"Silence is golden." Miss Caustique—"I suppose that is why you give us so little of it."

The Reason Why.—"Editors never send my poems back." "That's easily explained. No doubt you forget to enclose stamps."

Good For The Audience.—Clara—"I'm getting uneasy about my sore throat." Mand—"Oh, it's nothing serious." Clara—"But I am afraid it will prevent my talking at the opera to-night."

Irony.—Guffies—"Say, conductor, you ain't running this car on time this morning." Conductor—"Guess not. What do you suppose the rails are for?"

Not his Business.—Goodum—"Do you expect to fill a drunkard's grave?" Old Soak—"Not much, (hic) sh too hard work. Wash matter why er blooming sheeton?"

Trials of an Artist.—D'Auber—"Well, I sold my picture for what it was worth." Smeerer—"That was rough on you. How are you going to keep the wolf from the door."

Unaccountable. Trollicar—"What's the trouble between you and Snarler? He was abusing you like a pick-pocket yesterday." Gaffick—"Was he though? That's strange. I never did the fellow a good turn in my life."

On Good Authority.—Tommy—"Ma, I thought you said it was wrong to fight?" Mother—"Yes, my son. Fighting is very wicked." Tommy—"No it ain't. I heard the preacher read out of the Bible this morning: 'H't his eye, Peter, be not afraid.'"

A True Friend of Labour.—O'Hara—"It's the foine politician O'Toole is. It really do one good to shake hands wid him." Flannagan—"It do indeed, especially at election times. He always lays a two dollar bill in the workin' man's fist then."

Thoughtful Husband.—Wife (preparing to retire)—"What on earth are you doing?" Husband (turning his pockets inside out)—"Trying to set your mind at rest so that you will get a good night's sleep. I want to show you that there is nothing in my pockets."

At Sir Hogger's Dinner Party.—Chappie—"Ah, you hear old man? Awfully mixed crowd, isn't it? There are actually a couple of tailors heah, by Jove." Cholley—"You don't tell me, that's just splendid, you know! Shall get oah host to give me an introduction to one of them and go wound to-morrow and ordah a new suit."

A Wise Suggestion.

The young man had married the rich man's daughter, and wasn't killing himself with work to support her. One day the father called him up to call him down.

"Look here," he said emphatically, "why don't you go to work?"

"I don't have to," the son-in-law replied, with brazen effrontery.

"Well, you will have to."

"Because sir, I can't live always to support you."

"But you will leave us something?"

"Not much, I won't. There won't be anything to leave."

The son-in-law was alarmed.

"Great Jupiter," he exclaimed, "you don't mean to tell me that you have nothing?"

"That's about the size of it."

The son-in-law devoted himself to profound thought for several seconds.

"I have a suggestion to offer," he said, in a business-like manner.

"What is it?" asked the old gen.

"Well, I suggest that you take out, say, $100,000 life insurance on yourself to save wear and tear on my mind."

Napoleonic Economy.

"It seems to me," said a friend of the bank president, "that your cashier is most too extravagant for safety."

"How?" inquired the president, looking up over his spectacles.

"Well, he's building two or three new houses; he is buying unimproved real estate; he owns a lot of railroad stock, and is interested in various schemes."

"That's economy, my dear sir," explained the president.

"Economy, nothing," protested the friend. "His salary is only $2,500, isn't it?"

"That's all."

"Well, how the dickens can he spend $10,000 or more every year?"

The president took off his glasses and wiped them carefully.

"Um-er," he replied, "only by the most careful economy, my boy. It takes an economist, I tell you, to do that. Now, if he were getting $10,000 a year and saved $2,500 for investment, there wouldn't be anything at all in it, but to do it the other way is Napoleonic, my boy, Napoleonic."

The Day After Christmas.

Visitor.—Well, Willy, did you have a good time yesterday?

Willy (in disgust).—No; I ain't half as sick as I was last Christmas.

The Light-Headed Youth.

The clock struck 11 and the young man rose to go. "Is it possible I have been here so long?" he murmured apologetically.

"Oh, do you look at it in that way?" suggested the young lady with sudden coolness.

"Such a waste of time," he continued, stumbling madly on to destruction.

"Sir! if you—"

"Of your time, my dear miss," he gasped on the brink, and was saved from going over.

"Don't mention it," she said sweetly, and they parted as friends, but he realized that it was a narrow escape.

What She Will Say.

"You think you're wonderfully good," said Mr. Scapegrace to his wife, "but what will you say when you meet me in Heaven?"

"Well," she responded, "I'll say: 'How did you manage to get here?'"

Not Unknelled.

First quidnunc—"Did the town authorities take any appropriate action on the death of Scroggs the millionaire?"

Second quidnunc—"Yes; they had the fire-bell rung while the funeral was going on."
