

From the Terrors of Dyspepsia

Rev. E. R. Ryan, S. J., P. Q., When I commenced taking K. D. C. I had been suffering several years from dyspepsia. I tried several remedies which gave me little or no relief. I got relief almost as I commenced the K. D. C. and now I am well and feel like a new man. I can highly recommend K. D. C. to suffer from that terrible disease Dyspepsia.

Not only is K. D. C. a prompt reliever, but it cures indigestion. Try a free sample of K. D. C. Pills. K. D. C. Co., Ltd., New Glasgow, N. S. and 127 State Street, Boston, Mass.

Cures Summer Complaint.

DEAR SIR,—I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for twelve years when required, and think it is the best remedy to be had for all kinds of summer complaints. In our family it has never failed to cure any case.

Mrs. Benj Longley, Chatham, Ont.

Buried the Dead.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—It is the cemeteries that most accurately tell the story of the deaths during the heated period just closed. In most of the cemeteries there were what seemed endless funeral processions, some entering and others coming out. Naturally, many of the burials were of those whose deaths were due to other causes than heat, but the greatly increased average was no doubt from this cause.

Calvary cemetery has the greatest record of burial of any time in its history. No such long list of mourners ever reached its gates, and never, since it was first opened, 50 years ago, did grave diggers work as the regulars and the extra men called upon were forced to do. Over 100 extra men were employed, and all were kept at work at night in order to get the graves in readiness.

It was learned at the office of the cemetery yesterday that 1500 was a fair statement of the number of bodies that had been buried during the last ten days.

The average at this cemetery is usually 50 a day. At the height of the hot wave the figures are as follows: Wednesday, 156; Thursday, 169; Friday, 152. The average number of funerals in the chapel, which was only open from 1.30 to 3.30 in the afternoon, was 16 a day, but during the period of heat the number was from 73 to 80 daily.

So many were the persons over whom the la-t sad rites were performed that the priests called upon found it necessary to hold services over a dozen or more bodies at a time so that they might be buried before darkness set in.

At the Cemetery of the Evergreens the number of funerals doubled during the heated term. The usual average of burials was 15 a day, but during the torrid period the number had varied from 23 to 35. With one exception 35 funerals in one day was the highest reached during 25 years.

At Cypress Hills Cemetery the average rose about one-third during the prevalence of the hot wave. The usual average of burials per day is 10, but it has increased to a ratio varying from 15 to 20.

Information received at Greenwood cemetery shows that the wave of heat which was running the number of interments to a high mark in other cemeteries had not been so appreciable in its effect there. The usual average is from 16 to 20 a day, which was increased by the hot wave to about 45 a day.

Lutheran cemetery, at Middle Village, had an experience of increase in interments of about 25 more a day than usual, there being as many as 80 day after day, the highest number on any day being 84. For the 10 days which are here made the basis of calculation and comparison, the total was placed at nearly 800. For the week previous the number was about 250.

At Salem Field cemetery, Jamaica avenue and Market street, which is a Jewish burial ground, there were, according to information received there, only about eight burials for the whole week, there being few funerals there at any time. At many of the other minor cemeteries the increase in funerals was not very marked.

All the effete or waste matter of the system is removed by the perfect action of Laxa-Liver Pills. Thus they prevent as well as cure, Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Sallow Complexion, Jaundice, Dizziness, etc.

MARRIED.—A quiet wedding took place at the Pro-cathedral on Wednesday, August 12th. The contracting parties were James W. McIntyre of Richibucto, and Miss Elizabeth J. Duplacey of Chatham. Mr. Edward Duplacey was best man and Miss Minnie Maher assisted the bride. The wedding festivities were held at the home of the bride's parents, and after a substantial supper dancing was the order of the evening. The bride was dressed in ecru cashmere trimmed with lace and ribbon and looked charming. The newly wedded couple are to reside in Chatham. The bride was the recipient of many presents from friends in Chatham, Black Brook and Newcastle.—Chatham Herald.

West Branch Items.

As your correspondent—Rats has departed for parts unknown. I have decided to write a few notes, but my brains are so muddled that I fear they are not prove very interesting.

We have had our usual share of summer visitors. Miss Ramsay and sister from Buctouche, Mrs. D. Stevenson and son from Moncton. Mrs. T. Johnson son and daughter of Coatsville, Master Fred Joudry and Miss L. Joudry of Moncton. The latter young lady is visiting the Misses McMichael.

Mr. Robert Mundle has renovated and improved the Hannah homestead in various ways. It shows finely on the Hill.

Harvesting, and basket social are the topics this week. Mr. and Mrs. Robert McMurray of West Branch now residing at Newcastle N. B. went to Washburn Maine for a visit. They were only a short time there when their child, Richard Ira, aged 3 months and 19 days died August 9th after the short illness of 3 days. Jesus took their darling by the hand and led him to the Better Land.

DEW DROP.

THE IDOL INDUSTRY.

"FAKES" PROVIDED FOR EVERY MARKET IN THE WORLD.

How the Heathen Chinese Caters to the Curio Credulity of All Christendom—The Celestials Have a Keen Eye For the Main Chance.

The secrets of the "joss industry" are unfolded in a report by Consul Bedloe at Amoy in the State Department. "Amoy and Canton," Dr. Bedloe says, "are places which abound with curio dealers and hideous idols, called 'josses.' They are manufactured wholesale and retail, 'modern' and 'antiques,' orthodox or to order, as may be desired. 'I am sorry to be obliged to state that much of the joss business is fraud, pious and otherwise. The regulation joss is either a very fat and placid gentleman, with a large genus for looting, or a dignified, virtuous man, with a superabundant number of arms and hands. But these styles do not suit merchants who desired to astonish their folks at home. So, to please their customers, the Mongolian joss-maker, turns out an assorted lot of clay, hobgoblins warranted to freeze the blood of a small boy or produce hysterics in a nervous and dyspeptic girl. In this category comes the man with the tiger face and ferocious fangs, the so-called 'God of Hunger,' who is only an everyday, half-starved opium-smoker, and the 'Snake God,' who probably is a phase of delirium tremens. None of these belong to Chinese art. They are simply 'fakes' made for the markets of Christendom.

Joss making is very simple. The manufacturer's chief stock in trade consists of wooden or metal moulds. In these the wet clay is put into shape and allowed to dry. It is then touched up, dipped in molten glaze and allowed to cool. The average workman can turn out 100 a day. The clay is kaolin, running from red and gray to snow white, and costs about 1c per pound. The glaze is melted in a small charcoal furnace, similar to the old-fashioned soldering furnaces of retired plumbers. The wages of a good artist vary from 20c. to 40c. per day. The cost of a fair-sized image is about 3c. He sells it for 2c. to a native, and for as high as $5 to the credulous European or American tourist. The moulding, touching and retouching are the same in all the shops. The glazing varies indefinitely. It may be opaque of any color, transparent, but tinted with any shade desired or clear and colorless. The best work is made by painting the clay with heavy white paint and dipping in the glaze last described. In another kind of good work the clay is colored in caustic colors, kept in the heat until these have set, and then glaze as usual. The Chinese are very skillful in this field of labor, and with fine brushes will turn out josses that at first sight might be mistaken for cloisonne.

"Antiques are popular with the dealers, as they can be planted and dug up to order from any desired age or dynasty and bring a handsome profit. The simplest is the 'black joss.' It is made by painting a clay cast with a preparation of tar, bitumen, shellac or Ningpo varnish, wrapping in several thicknesses of paper and firing it in a kiln. According to the preparation and treatment, you can obtain a black-brown, red-black, blue-black or dark gray product. The color sets through, so that a fracture discloses a very clean and uniform surface. There is little or no vitrification in this treatment, which makes the case resemble a carving all the more. 'Touching' removes any irregularities or defects, and also adds the signs of decay which usually accompany the flight of years.

"Another and very different group of josses are those carved from wood and covered with gold and gay colors. Many of these are very ancient and are much more in demand than the pottery ware. They are carved with evident skill, and retain their brightness for years. The prices are according to size, workmanship, and amount of gold or other decorations covering them. The smallest made are but an inch high and bring a few cents. The largest are 10 to 12 feet high and cost $450 to $500 and upwards. In the larger sizes (say those of more than a foot high) the carving is admirable and the coloring lifelike and very artistic. There are four of these large-sized josses in the famous temples of Lam-po-do, at the entrance of Amoy harbor, and they produce as imposing an effect as any collection of statues in the galleries of Europe.

"Josses carved from stone are rare and dear. Great mandarins pay fabulous prices for small ones made from jade; those made of the pale-green and light-blue shades are much more valuable than the white, yellow or brown. Liu, the former Governor of Formosa, owns a joss about 8 inches high which is said to be fifteen centuries old and to be worth $10,000. Small ones of 1 to 2 inches high seldom cost less than $200 to $350.

"The difficulty of cutting the refractory stone is great and is the chief reason for its high price. "In Fuchau they make many josses out of streatite and selenite of various colors. These are rather neat and are very cheap. The softness of the stone allows the dealer to give a newly carved image the appearance of great antiquity by rubbing it with a little fine sand. An hour's work removes all shape lines and produces that effect which marks all ancient statues from the Sphinx in the ward."—Washington cor. of St. Louis Globe-Dem.

Some Elaborate Scissors.

Scissors are not the common ordinary steel affairs they used to be. Now their handles are incased in gold or delicately colored enamelling. One of these elaborate pairs of scissors may be bought with an individual scissor case. It consists of a pair of good sized scissors, with the handle incrustated in pink enamel. The scissors are tucked within a case of light pink kid, the edges of which are bound in silver. One case recently displayed in the window of a jewelry store is of dark-red Russian leather, fastened with a gold clasp. Within are six pairs of scissors of varying size, each pair resplendent with handles of repousse gold.

Current Notes.

"Doesn't it beat all how that woman, married four times, still attracts men?" "O no. The widow's might, you know?" Detroit Tribune.

"That lawyer wouldn't charge me anything for his services. I suppose he has an eye to business in the future." "Yes. It's as much a case of paying the way as it is of waving the pay."—Washington Star.
