Blows Across The Atlantic.

QUEENSTOWN, Oct. 10.—Seldom has it been chronicled that a vessel has been blown across the Atlantic by adverse winds from Nova Scotia to Queenstown. Such has been the fate of the British barque Calcutta. A new vessel of 668 tons register, she was only twenty-five days out of the builder's hands, and left Parrsboro, N. S., on August 21, in ballast, for Greenland, to load copper ore for conveyance to New York. The vessel had actually arrived within 300 miles of her destination when strong adverse winds burst on her, and she being very light, in ballast, was driven before the gale. Everything that ingenuity could suggest was done to stiffen the vessel. All the spare spars were lowered into the hold, the life boats were sent down into the hold, and filled with water in order to increase the weight of the ballast, but all to no purpose. She drifted badly to the leeward. However, she was kept beating against the adverse winds in the hope of being able to reach some port on the North American coast until Sept. 14. When in about mid Atlantic she was thrown on her beam ends and narrowly escaped being capsized, the crew having been worn out. It was then decided to run the vessel before the wind and a course was shaped for the Irish coast. The wind afterwards blew with such force that all the canvass was taken in and the barque scudded under bare poles before the elements. The case of a vessel being blown across the Atlantic under similar circumstances is not unprecedented, but is certainly of very rare occurrence.

A QUEER BELIEF

The Place of Torment to Which Wicked Buddhists Are Consigned

The place of torment to which all wicked Buddhists are to be assigned on the day of final reckoning is a terrible place of punishment. The Buddhist hell is a sort of apartment house, divided into eight "easy stages." In the first the poor victim is compelled to walk for untold ages in his bare feet over hills thickly set with red-hot needles, pointed upward. In the second stage the skin is carefully filed or rasped from the body and irritating mixtures are applied. In the third stage the nails, hair and eyes are plucked out and the denuded body sawed and planed into all sorts of fantastic shapes.

The fourth stage is that of "sorrowful lamentations." In the fifth the left side of the body and the denuded head are carefully roasted, Yoma, the Buddhist Satan, superintending the work. In the sixth stage the arms are torn from the body and thrown into an immense vat among the eyes, nails and hair previously removed. Then in plain hearing of the sore-footed, blind, maimed, roasted and bleeding victim the whole horrid mass is pounded into jelly. In the seventh stage the other side of the victim and his feet are roasted brown and then comes the eighth and last stage, in which the candidate is thrown into the bottomless pit of perdition.

Fine Ridge Notes.

OCT. 12.—The recent rain storm has been a great drawback to farmers having potatoes still in the ground.

We are looking forward to an addition to society in the person of Mrs. Turner, of St. John. She will act in the capacity of housekeeper for our esteemed postmaster.

Mrs. John Jackson has been quite ill for the past week but is recovering.

Miss Emma Girvan who was expected home several weeks ago has not yet returned. She is nursing her sister, Mrs. S. Girvan, of Galloway, who is dangerously ill.

Mr. John R. Girvan made a business trip to Harcourt last Friday.

Messrs. Thompson and Morton went to Bass River on Tuesday to get repairs for their threshing mill. I hear they are at work again.

The annual school meeting was held in the school house last Saturday. It was well attended and everything passed off pleasantly.

PATRICK.

Two brilliant and intellectual Pennsylvania men engaged in a cabbage-eating match the other day, and between them they devoured 11 pounds of the delicious vegetable. It killed both. It is safe to say that the progress of the world will not be interfered with by the result.

Oscar Freymann, of Brooklyn, but a native of Russia, has been granted patents on a flying bicycle, which weighs only 85 pounds and with which he hopes to go to Europe in two days. The "flyers" are constructed of steel and silk, after the manner of bird's wings. Freymann may not have struck it, but some one will, sooner or later, and by and by we will be flying.

An intelligent foreigner is said to have expressed himself after the following fashion on the absurdities of the English language: "When I discovered that if I was quick I was fast, if I stood firm I was fast, if I spent too freely I was fast and that not to eat was to fast, I was discouraged; but when I came across the sentence: 'The first one won one one-dollar prize,' I was tempted to give up English and learn some other language."

He Cut His Throat

FREDERICTON, Oct. 10.—Sergeant Harris, of the R. R. C. I., committed suicide this morning at the Military Hospital. Harris had been drinking very heavily for some days past and during the last few days he has had delirium tremens off and on. A short time ago he had an altercation with some men in the school and it is said he lived in fear of having his stripes taken away.

This feeling together with liquor preyed upon his mind and it is thought caused the rash act. This morning about one o'clock Harris borrowed a small pen knife from the man watching at his bedside and before he could be prevented quick as a flash he cut his throat.

The cut was not very long as neither his windpipe nor jugular vein were severed. Surgeon McLearn was summoned and did all he could to relieve the unfortunate man but it was powerless as the patient was in such a state of health he could not stand the stab and at 5.45, about five hours after committing the deed, Harris died.

The Queen And The Pope

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The Queen and Pope have exchanged cordial letters upon the occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of Her Majesty's reign. The Pope after congratulating Her Majesty and sending his best wishes, thanked the Queen in grateful terms for the freedom of worship enjoyed by Roman Catholics throughout the British empire. The reply of Her Majesty was most cordial. She declared herself happy to repeat her former assurances of the perfect freedom of Catholics within her dominions and added that it was her pleasing duty to acknowledge their fidelity and loyalty.

Sudden Death of The Archbishop of Canterbury

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England and the Metropolitan (the Right Hon. and Most Rev. Edward White Benson, D. D., and Privy Councillor) died suddenly to-day while attending divine service in the church at Hawarden. The Archbishop was the guest of Mr. Gladstone, through whom he was appointed to the Archbishopric of Canterbury.

WEST INDIAN SERVANTS.

A Colony of Ten Thousand of Them in New York.

Every steamship from the West Indies brings to New York a group of negroes who have left the islands to seek service here. The colony of West India negroes in this city now numbers not far from 10,000, and the extent of the emigration is beginning to be felt by the white residents of the West Indies, who fear that "help" will soon be getting scarce.

Household servants in the West Indies are individually cheap, but it takes a large staff of servants to keep up an establishment there. Wages are small, but the work apportioned among many is light. The tales of to them fabulous wages, and of the delights of the great city, sent to the West India negroes by their friends in New York, are the talk of the house servants of every plantation, and unrest and the desire to share the good fortunes of their friends follow.

The West Indian emigrants find little difficulty in getting good places here. "Every West India negro, man or woman, can cook," any one who has lived in or visited the islands will declare, and as a rule, they make more desirable servants than the average of colored household helpers. Those who are here are always ready to help a new arrival to a place, and their mistresses are usually able to boast to other women of their help. Household service on the islands, where the family gets a good deal more of waiting upon than in "the States," makes the West Indian who is engaged as waitress and "upstairs girl" a revelation to a New York family, and, as for the cooks, how they can cook! The cook's hand is likely to be "a little too heavy" with the pepper box, but the American palate soon takes kindly to the highly seasoned dishes that she sends to the table. Their soups and "made dishes" of meats and their ways of cooking rice and other vegetables are worthy of imitation. One of the soups, in which pigeon peas, a West Indian variety, are used, is black and unappetizing in appearance, but a trial of it explains why it holds a high place of honor on the islands. The West Indian cook is, moreover economical.

Taken as a class, the West Indian servants do not do as much work as Europeans are credited with, and the mistress needs to exercise tact in her relations with them, but, if not superabundantly energetic, they are devoted and faithful and less migratory than the general run of household help, white or black.—New York Mail and Express.

Shabby.

The Detroit Free Press is well employed in holding up to contempt the men who insist upon monopolizing the family purse. Here is its latest effort, at which the reader may laugh or cry, as the mood takes him.

The train was about ten miles west of Ypsilanti when a man came into one of the cars with a bill in his hand, and called out:

"Can any one here change a ten-dollar bill for me?"

Several persons pulled out their pocketbooks, and one man said yes, he had two fives. But the stranger was still little better off, till another passenger produced five ones.

"I'll take 'em," said the stranger, "but shall want somebody to break a dollar for me."

"Will two halves do?" asked a woman.

"They will have to I suppose if I can't get four quarters. I'm sorry to make all this trouble, but you see how it is. The old woman has sort o' decided to stop off at Ypsilanti and visit her sister for three or four days, while I go to Detroit and back. Her sister may not be at home, and she'd feel a little queer without money. I thought I'd give her a quarter; but if I can't get it, why I shall have to let her have fifty cents, though I shall never see any of it back again."

"My wife is an awfully extravagant woman. She'll go down-town and run through a dollar in no time, and I have to keep a close rein on her."

It is too bad to say, but the man at last got a quarter, and the "old woman" had it tied up in a corner of her handkerchief as she got off at Ypsilanti.

Mice as Engineers.

Mice are good engineers. In digging holes for telegraph poles one of the workmen became greatly interested in watching the ingenuity and perseverance of a mouse which had fallen into one of the holes. It was 4 1/2 feet in depth and 20 inches in diameter. The first day the little prisoner spent in running round the bottom of the hole trying to find a means of escape. The second day he had got over his hysterics and settled down to steady business. He began systematically to dig a spiral groove round and round the inner surface of the hole with a uniform ascending grade. He worked night and day. As he got further from the bottom he dug little pockets where he could lie and rest. The interested witnesses kept it supplied with food. After a while the mouse struck a rock; he tried to get under, around and over the obstacle, but without success. He therefore reversed the spiral and finally reached the top.

Encouraging.

Her Father—Has my daughter ever offered you any encouragement?
Suitor—Oh, yes, sir! She said if I married her she'd work you for the rent.

A Distinction.

Irate Father—I don't want you to visit my house again, sir.
Young Man (affably)—It is not your house I visit, sir, but your daughter.

1st TIME PRIZE WON BY H. CASSIDY ON A MCCREADY
2nd TIME PRIZE WON BY F. GRAVES ON A MCCREADY

"In many respects Cassidy's ride is a remarkable performance. Unlike the riders who started from scratch, who alternated in making the pace, he had to ride practically unspaced the whole distance. The time would have been considered akin to marvellous if he had ridden the twenty miles over a free course, but the fact that he had to ride in a blinding cloud of dust, treading his way here and there through straggling bunches of riders, over a road honeycombed with ruts and holes, makes it a truly great achievement. Cassidy has quite a reputation as a track rider, and has beaten all the best men in the amateur ranks at one time or another during the season."—Toronto Globe
