Meadow Brook Tragedy
MONCTON, Oct. 9.—The preliminary examinations into the charge against John E. Sullivan was resumed in the police court this morning. The court room was crowded with people.

JOHN MCANN hotel keeper, St. John, sworn:—I reside in St. John City; I keep the Prince Rupert House, Dock St.; I often go out to solicit trade; I go out early in the morning.

The prisoner here stood up to be identified.

Q.—Did you ever see this man before?

A.—No, never to my knowledge.

Q.—You saw a gentleman on the 16th of September?

A.—I remember that date; I was at the depot; I met a gentleman who said good morning he said I am very cold; had been out all night on the streets; he said he was boarding at another house which was closed; he said he wanted breakfast and a wash; he had some steak for breakfast; he said I belong to Baltimore; I have a brother working at Moncton on the Railway; I intended going to see him said he, but he changed his mind; we referred to the Dutch case; he said they were all Catholics implicated in it; he said "I am a Protestant;" I said that had nothing to do with the case; he then paid me 25 cents, and rolled down his rock and said there is $400; I keep it there as I am afraid someone would steal it; I afterwards met him on Dock street and he said he was going to take the train and go back to Baltimore; he went to the Canada House to get his parcel but he could not get it. I next saw him on Friday morning on South Market wharf, he told me he had been robbed of all his money and only had 75 cts. in his pocket; he said he lost his money in the North end; I walked away; he looked dissipated; I never saw him after.

Q.—Did Mr. Ogler take breakfast with you Wednesday morning?

A.—Yes, he took breakfast after this man; Ogler was at the depot; he saw the man supposed to be Sullivan at his breakfast; Sullivan was speaking about getting away; when I first saw Sullivan on Wednesday morning he was under the influence of liquor; he had light striped pants and wore a soft hat and had black coat and vest; he had a heavy black moustache; he appeared to be a little bald; I was sitting about seven feet from him when he was eating his breakfast; I made the first remark; I said he must have been a stranger as he could get in anywhere; he said he was a stranger and had reached the city the day before.

Q.—Why did he change his mind about coming to Moncton?

A.—I don't know; he didn't tell me; he said he worked on the Railway in Baltimore.

Q.—Was it before you saw the money that you spoke of the Meadow Brook tragedy?

A.—Yes! I said isn't this a terrible affair; he said yes; he said they were all Catholics; I said it occurs as frequently as in other denominations.

Q.—Who waited on him?

A.—My wife waited on him; she came in and out occasionally.

Q.—Did you mention any name suspected of the crime?

A.—I might have but do not remember; after he finished his breakfast he came around the table and sat by my side.

Q.—How much change had he?

A.—I don't know; he had some silver and cents; after he paid me the money he rolled down his stocking and pulled out a crumpled pile of bills; he said, "there is $400 in that roll;" he said he was drinking and he was afraid he would lose them; he put the money in his pocket; when he was leaving he said he was going to Bangor; he did not mention Calais or Milltown; he said he wanted to get out as soon as possible; Ben Myrie was present when the stranger was at breakfast; my wife was also there.

Q.—Did you ask the stranger his name?

A.—I did not; I do not keep a register when he went to the Canada house he kicked the door, but could not get in and the train left him; after Ogler left we all separated, the stranger went towards Mill street.

Q.—Do you know Wm. Dunstan?

A.—Yes! I saw him at the exhibition.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with him regarding the Dutch tragedy?

A.—Yes! He said I heard you had a visit from Sullivan; I said "yes, the supposed Mr. Sullivan." I don't remember any further conversation.

A picture of Sullivan was shown the witness.

Q.—Did you see that man before?

A.—Yes! It was shown me by Mr. McLaren.

Q.—Does that look like the man who was at your house? Is it a representation?

A.—It resembles him some. I told McLaren that it resembled him.

Q.—Will you swear that you did not say to McLaren "That's he."

A.—I don't think I said that; I say it resembles him some.

Q.—Did he have a little turn of hair on his head like the prisoner?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he have a moustache like the prisoner's?

A.—No! his was not so large.

A hat similar to the one worn by the stranger in witness' house was placed on the prisoner's head.

Q.—Does the prisoner now look like the stranger who was at your house?

A.—No, he does not; the man there was taller and not so stout; my wife is positive that was the man; I'd know the man that was at my place if he was among ten thousand; he had a collar on.

Q.—If Mr. Ogler and your wife are positive Sullivan was the man, are you still positive that the prisoner was not the man?

A.—Yes, sir, I am positive.

To Mr. Smith—I have been living in my present place since May; my wife belongs to Bartibogue; when I met this stranger it was on the morning of the 16th this man's moustache was very black and then the stranger was not the build of that man; he had light pants on with light stripes; also a black split-tail coat.

Q.—Are you positive the prisoner is not the man?

A.—Yes, I am positive; I won't swear that the picture in court is a picture of the prisoner; the first impression I got that Sullivan was the man when Ogler said the man who was at my house went up on the train handcuffed.

To Mr. McCully—I don't know whether he gave me American silver or not.

Adjourned for noon recess.

A Brutal Murderer.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 10.—Dr. Carl F. Nitz, a German physician, vivisectioned his wife and then killed himself yesterday afternoon. The murder of the woman was done in the most cold blooded manner. As shown by notes that were found after his death, Nitz sat by the woman's side watching her die slowly and now and then to note the effect of another wound he would stab his knife into her again. He carefully noted all the symptoms of the woman's approaching death then shot and killed himself.
