Noble Thoughts for Young Men.

Nothing like independence and luck. Say, young man, there is one thing you can't do. You can't make a success of life unless you work. Better men than you have tried it and failed.

You can't loaf around street corners, saloons, smoke cigars, tell flow stories or sponge on someone else without making a failure of life.

You must learn a trade or get into some honest business, if you don't you will be a chronic loafer, despised by all, producing nothing, simply making yourself a burden to your parents or State.

There is no place in the world for loafers.

The ripe fruit is all at the top of the tree, and you must climb if you would have it.

If you wait for it to fall at your feet you will never get it.

Smarter men will jump up and pick it all.

Move, do something, no matter how small; it will be a starter.

Help yourself and others will help you.

There is no royal path to success; toil, energy and endurance are the requisites.

Wake up and see what you can do!

Fight your own battles.

Hoe your own row.

Ask no favors of any one and you'll succeed a thousand times better than one who is always beseeching some one's influence and patronage.

No one will ever help you as you help yourself, because no one will be so heartily interested in your affairs.

The first step will not be such a long one, perhaps; but carving your own way up the mountain you make each one lead to another, and stand firm while you chop out still another.

Men who have made fortunes are not those who have had $5,000 given them to start with, but boys who have started fair with a well-earned dollar or two.

Men who acquire fame have never been thrust into popularity by puffs begged or paid for, or given in friendly spirit.

They have outstretched their own hands and touched the public heart.

Men who win love do their own wooing and I never knew a man to fail so signally as one who induced his affectionate grandmother to speak a good word for him.

Whether you work for fame, for money or for anything else, work with your hands and heart and brain.

Say "I will," and some day you will conquer.

Never let any man have it to say "I have dragged you up."

Too many friends sometimes hurt a man more than none at all.

ABOUT THE TEETH.

Their Enamel Covering is the Hardest Tissue of the System.

A tooth in its normal condition consists of four different substances—enamel, cement, dentine and pulp. Enamel is the outer covering of the crown or exposed portion of the tooth, and by a wise provision of nature it is thickest where most subject to use and wear.

It is the hardest tissue of the human system, possesses of itself no sensibility, and contains not over four per cent. of animal matter. Yet it is an important fact, and one that should not be lost sight of in caring for the teeth, that this indispensable coat is almost entirely soluble in acids.

Cement is the bone-like covering of the roots and neck of the tooth, corresponding for the covered portion to the enamel, with which it blends and unites about the size of the gums, for the exposed part. Dentine forms the body of the tooth. It is not so hard as bone, consisting of parallel tubes about 4,500 to an inch in diameter, and more than a quarter of its composition consists of animal matter. It is somewhat sensitive, but the sensation is probably due to the nerves of the pulp.

The latter, commonly called "the nerve," is a mass of nerves and blood vessels, almost infinitesimal in size, connected and enveloped by a very delicate tissue. These nerves and blood vessels connect with the general system through a minute opening at the extremity of the root, with which exception the pulp is entirely surrounded by a wall of dentine.

In fact, the pulp is the germ of the body of the tooth, the dentine is formed from it and nourished by it; when the pulp—which is extremely sensitive, as most readers know—dies, the dentine loses its apparent sensitiveness, gradually changes color, and itself becomes dead.

WORTH KNOWING.

How a Silver Spoon May Become a Very Serviceable Laryngoscope.

Do you require, say for the examination of a case of sore throat, a means of brilliantly illuminating the interior of the mouth? If so; here is a method of procuring in a moment a very brilliant light just suited for that purpose. Hold a tablespoon behind a candle, the concave side towards the flame, and you will find that you have an excellent reflector, enabling you not only to concentrate the luminous rays, but to direct these with ease and precision to the part of the throat you desire to examine.

A silver spoon will also enable you to study the very spurious properties of curved mirrors. Hold the hollow side before your face, and in the concave mirror thus extemporized you will see your features, upside down. Turn the spoon round, and its opposite, constituting a convex mirror, will show your face, this time right side uppermost, but lengthened to abnormal proportions, narrow at top, but broad at bottom, and more of a caricature than a portrait. By turning the spoon horizontally, still with the convex side toward you, your features will be reproduced in a squat and swollen form, giving you a notion how you might look if you were hanged. The surface of a well-polished silver dish cover is a still better medium wherein to study these distorted reflections, many of which are irresistibly funny.

His Sweetheart and His Tailor.

The old story of changing envelopes by mistake was told in Washington a few days ago, only with variations. A young man, whose income is by no means sufficient to keep up his style of living, received a tailor's bill. He is engaged to a young lady, who is the happy possessor of a comfortable bank account. The young man's tailor sent him a bill with the remark written on it that it was long past due. When he received the bill he was engaged in writing a note to his fiancée and in some way had his attention called away as soon as it was finished. He returned to his desk, placed the tailor's bill instead of the note in an envelope and directed it on his typewriter, which fact was all that saved him. When he called she was very indignant, but he was quick-witted and began berating the tailor for sending her an account which he disputed in order to prejudice her against him, out of spite because the young man would not pay an unjust claim. The next morning the lover told the tailor all about the affair, paid the bill and the maker of clothes helped him out by sending the girl an apology, by which kindness he obtained an order for two suits of clothes.—Washington Post.

Carrier Pigeons in The Army.

The Russian military authorities have lately been giving special attention to the breeding and training of carrier pigeons for war purposes. Lieut. Biglow, the chief trainer of these aerial war messengers, a few days ago started twenty-eight pairs of carriers from Luga to St. Petersburg. Eight pairs reached their destination in forty-five minutes, four pairs in sixty-five minutes, and the remainders at intervals during the day. One bird only was missing, and had probably become the prey of a hawk. At a distance of fifty-nine versts (about forty miles) from Moscow thirty-four carrier pigeons were, on the same day, started singly on a homeward flight to the old capital. They all reached their destination safely, but the average time occupied was six hours. According to these experimental results it can scarcely be said that Lieut. Biglow's training is as yet an entire success. A regular pigeon post is to be established next year between Moscow and Nizhni-Novgorod during the All-Russian exhibition at the latter place.

A Slandered Insect.

An English physician declares that the earwig is a much misrepresented insect, inasmuch as it never makes a home for itself in the ear. Its favorite habitation is under inverted flower-pots and big stones, but there is no case on record to justify the dread or belief that earwigs enter the human ears. The creature's expanded wings resemble a human ear—hence, probably, its name.
