the Electric Conveyor. A few years ago the idea of loading a ship with 2,500 tons of flour in 24 hours by means of two small motors would have been looked upon as absurd. This was done the other day in Tacoma. Two thousand tons of cargo have frequently been loaded or unloaded in a day by steam power, but the important factor in the record breaking achievement at Tacoma was that the conveyer was worked by electricity. With the apparatus which has been designed for this purpose flour and grain can be loaded -Arbor Day was celebrated in the at any stage of the tide and independ usual, manner in an the schools through- ently of the weather. If it should rain, a canvas is quickly spread from the door of the warehouse to the ship's hatch. With the system of loading ordinarily used 18 men are required to do the work of one electric conveyer, with which the bags are delivered into a ship's hold at the rate of 2,500 to 2,700 pounds a minute, or 75 tons an hour. When extra speed is desired, two conveyers are employed. This was done when the record of 2,500 tons in 24 hours was made.

The electric conveyer is 40 feet long. It is moved at will on two wheels in the center. A two horsepower motor supplies the power, the current being taken from the nearest electric wires. The sacks are placed on a revolving belt of rubber, which passes over 12 wheels attached to the side of the apparatus. The rollers are placed close enough together, and the belt revolves at sufficient speed to carry all the weight in flour or grain that can be placed upon it. The conveyer works as well when placed at an angle of 44 degrees as when on a level. -- Pittsburg Dispatch.

What Is a Sailing Ship?

The average landsman may be surprised to hear that there is doubt as to what constitutes a sailing ship in the eye of the law. This question was raised in London the other day before a divisional court of admiralty. Mr. Commissioner Kerr held that a barge which had a jury sail up to assist the rowers was a sailing vessel and held her in fault for a collision which occurred in Barking creek between her and a sailing mill flew off the pullies on Saturday and barge, on the ground that she could and ought to have kept out of the way. OVER THE WHARF. - Tuesday about noon, while Mr. John McNulty, of St. Nicholas River, and Mr. Robt. Little, of Kingston, were driving down the public wharf with a carcass of beef in a truckwaggon, the horse shied and backed the waggon over the wharf. The men leaped from the waggon and prevented the horse from going over. 1 crowd soon collected and assisted in raising the waggon, but the contents, consisting of a number of small pieces of beef, several sheets, a robe, and butcher's tools, etc., went into the water, but were afterwards recovered. Mr. McNulty narrowly escaped being thrown into the water.

necessary to decide this point because the appellants' barge, having a motive power of two knots, could be kept out of the way by porting, and so dismissed the appeal with costs. "Mad Death" For Wolves. A young cattleman of Wyoming has hit upon a remarkable scheme for exteris contained in a small vial of yellowish brown liquid. His mode of extermination is to trap a wolf or coyote alive and inject three drops of the poisonous fluid beneath the skin. This operation he repeats three times in 12 hours, and then releases the animal, green eyed, with dilated pupils, frothing at the mouth and raving mad. It lives from 30 to 40 hours after being liberated, but, like a dog with hydrophobia, it bites everything it meets, and every other wolf bitten becomes inoculated, and in this way the poison spreads, and death follows at a rapid rate. The Big Horn basin papers have published reports brought in from the range of the death rate among the coyotes being enormous from a new disease never before heard of, and the inventor claims it in his "mad death' wiping out the tribe.-San Francisco Argonaut.

The Snow Melting Chinook.

In the northwestern states a peculiarly warm, dry wind, called the chinook, which has a wonderful power of "eating up" snow, occasionally prevails, and a remarkable visitation of this wind occurred in Oregon and Washington last -Dress buying has commenced in December. Professor Ward, writing in Science, calls attention to the close resemblance between the chinook winds of the Cascade and Rocky mountain regions and the celebrated fœhn winds of the Alps. Both blow down from the mountain ranges, and both produce effects in the sudden liquefaction of snow that are almost marvelous. There is no mystery about them, although they require particular conditions of atmospheric pressure, combined with certain effects arising from the position of the mountains with respect to the isothermal lines, or lines of equal temperature.

A Solemn Ass. An English provincial paper recently printed the following paragraph: "We are informed by the American press that Governor Leedy of the state of Kansas is a drunkard. When it is remembered that teetotalism prevails in Kansas, the nonchalance with which cates a low standard of public opinion in the States." Americans need hardly be reminded that the solemn ass who wrote this misread the paragraph on which he comments. It was stated that -Chief Tom Joseph, of Big Cove, has returned from his official visit to Ottawa. He was in town yesterday and to several interviews gave an interesting aud somewhat amusing account of his trip. He contrasts his reception by Mr. Laurier with that given him some years ago by Sir John A. McDonald very much to the disparagement of the former. Mr. Laurier merely shook hands with him and refered him to the clubs of the Indian Department while the Governor gave him an interview of over an hour and accompanied him to and registered him at one of the leading hotels in Ottawa.

The Vienna Opera.

Most things are regulated by law in Germany, including the matter of recalls for the actors and singers at the state subventional theaters and opera houses. The Imperial opera at Vienna has just issued a new regulation, permitting no more than three recalls after the close of acts except in the case of first nights and special engagements of foreign artists. This regulation was made to put an end to the misunderstandings and jealousies caused by the olaque.
