Sir Walter Raleigh's Pipe.

Among the many anecdotes told of Raleigh's practices with his pipe may be mentioned that of his outwitting the Queen in a wager she laid with the gallant knight respecting the weight of the smoke which exhaled from a pipeful of tobacco. "I can assure your majesty," said Raleigh, "that I have so well experienced the nature of it that I can exactly tell even the weight of the smoke in any quantity I consume." "I doubt it much, Sir Walter," replied Elizabeth, thinking only how impossible it must be to catch the smoke and put it in a balance, "and will wager you 20 angels that you do not solve my doubt." Whereupon Raleigh drew forth a quantity of the weed, placed it in finely-adjusted scales, and, having ascertained its weight, commenced to smoke it, carefully preserving the ashes. These at the finish he weighed with great exactness.

Then would it dawn upon her majesty how the wager was to end. "Your majesty," said Raleigh, "cannot deny that the difference hath evaporated in smoke." "Truly I cannot," was her reply. Then, turning to those around her, who were eyeing with amusement the curious play on the pipe, she continued: "Many laborers in the fire have I heard of (alluding to alchemists) who turned their gold into smoke, but Sir Walter is the first who has turned smoke into gold."

The young man entered the professor's study in a businesslike way that seemed to indicate that he was on no idle errand. "I believe, sir," he said, "that you are noted as a philologist, and have written a good deal upon the subject of words and their derivations."

"I have given quite a little attention to that subject," returned the professor, looking at the young man over the tops of his glasses, "and I should be glad to enlighten you in any way that I can upon any little point that may puzzle you when I have leisure, but just now I am extremely busy and I trust you will pardon me if I—"

"Oh, I'm not going to throw any questions of that sort at you," interrupted the young man in an easy, off-hand manner. "I simply want you to write an article for me."

"Write an article for you?" exclaimed the professor.
"That's what I said. I'm the editor of a paper, and I want an article from your pen."

The professor was still further mystified, but he managed to suggest that he considered his time pretty valuable.

"Oh, that's all right," returned the young man. "I'll pay you your price if you will get me up a good article on 'Slang.'"

"Slang!" repeated the professor.
"Sure thing!" asserted the young man. "I want an article on the derivation and meaning of various slang words and phrases."

"A most interesting subject," said the professor, reflectively, "and fortunately I have given it considerable thought during my researches."

"Of course you have," exclaimed the young man, triumphantly. "All you old geezers do."

"I beg your pardon?" said the professor inquiringly.

"Oh, that just slipped out; let it go," exclaimed the young man. "You see I am just starting a new humorous weekly paper, and I—"

"Humorous?"

"Certainly. You don't take me for a scientist, do you?"

"But I couldn't treat the subject of slang humorously if I tried," protested the professor.

"Of course not," admitted the young man promptly. "But you can't help treating it humorously if you don't try. I'm a judge of humor, and I tell you there is nothing funnier in this world than a serious dissertation on 'slang' by a learned man. You go at it in just as solemn a way as you can and I'll pay you almost any price for it. I mean that my first number shall be a screacher."

Cancer Can Be Cured.

For six years I suffered from cancer, and got no relief until I used Burdock Blood Bitters. I used seven bottles faithfully when the cancer gradually dried up and finally disappeared. I am now entirely well and rejoice that by using B. B. B. I have escaped death either from the surgeon's knife or from the cancer itself.

His Love Grew Cool.

Gus de Smith—My engagement with Miss Nellie Chaffie is off.
Hostetter McGinnis—Well, did she break it off, or were you the cruel one?
Gus—Neither of us broke it off.
Hostetter—In the name of heaven, who did break it off?
Gus—Her rich uncle. He died and didn't leave her any of his money.

VICTOR A HOSPITAL

Appeal of Endowment Fund Promoters.

Fredericton's Fitting Jubilee Memorial—Completing of Victoria Hospital.

Everywhere throughout the Empire movements are on foot to commemorate the sixty years reign of our gracious Queen. The Victorian era has been the greatest in human history. In the field of discovery and invention, in the industrial arts generally, it has been an era of glorious triumphs. Our countrymen are everywhere proud of it. They are proud of what it has done for the betterment of the conditions of men. They are proud of what it has done in the name of humanity.

Our good Sovereign, recognizing the universal desire to celebrate the approaching Jubilee anniversary, has expressed a wish that any popular memorial in this behalf may be of a humane character. She has particularly commended public hospitals, in which, with adequate medical skill, the life and health of any, even the humblest citizen in the land may be a watchful care.

Victoria Hospital, Fredericton, founded 10 years ago in honor of Her Majesty's Golden Jubilee, has been ministering to the sick to the number of 110 persons annually. It has been the means of salvation of many a life. More than one-half of its patients have received treatment gratuitously. More than one-half of its free patients have come from places outside of Fredericton.

The number of applications for relief in the Hospital has been increasing so that its enlargement has become an absolute necessity. The board of Trustees have accordingly undertaken the construction of an addition to the building by which its capability will be more than doubled; and in order to defray the cost of the new building and provide a much needed endowment fund for the enlarged work of maintenance, a subscription list has been successfully opened.

This will afford to the friends of the afflicted, to the patriotic and public-spirited everywhere throughout the province, an opportunity to assist a worthy object, while doing honor to a worthy occasion.

The General Committee, appointed by the citizens of Fredericton to promote the Hospital Memorial Fund, has elected His Worship Mayor VanWart as permanent chairman, with Hon. A. F. Randolph (President of the Hospital Directors) as chairman of the General Subscription Committee, and W. T. Whitehead as treasurer. Either of these gentlemen will receive and gratefully acknowledge contributions to the fund. They will appreciate it, and it will expedite their labors, if all contributors will tender their aid without solicitation.

(Signed) WESLEY VANWART,
Chairman Gen. Com.
A. F. RANDOLPH,
Pres. Board of Directors.

"Biled Clothes" Startled Him.

A Glasgow professor visiting Canada with the British Association in 1894 went out to an Alberta ranch to see something of Northwest life. "I fixed him up as well as I could," the rancher relates, "but he complained after the first night, that he did not like sleeping with his clothes on. So I stretched a cowskin across the shack and told him, the second night, that he might undress if he liked. He took off most of his garments and put a long, white night dress on. My foreman, coming in in the early morning, while yet the gentleman was sleeping, and observing the white night dress, said, in a whisper: 'Rather sudden, eh?' 'What?' 'The death of the old man.' 'He's not dead; he's asleep.' 'Not dead? Then what's he wearin' them biled clothes for? Never saw a chap laid out in biled clothes afore, 'cept he were dead.'"

The Wonder of the Age.

DEAR SIRS,—I must honestly say that I have tried your valuable medicine B. B. B. for the disease called prairie itch, and have found this remedy to be the wonder of the age. I took only three bottles and to my great satisfaction was completely cured. I can highly recommend it to all who suffer from any skin disease or impurity of the blood.

HAROLD DIX,
Rat Portage, Ont.

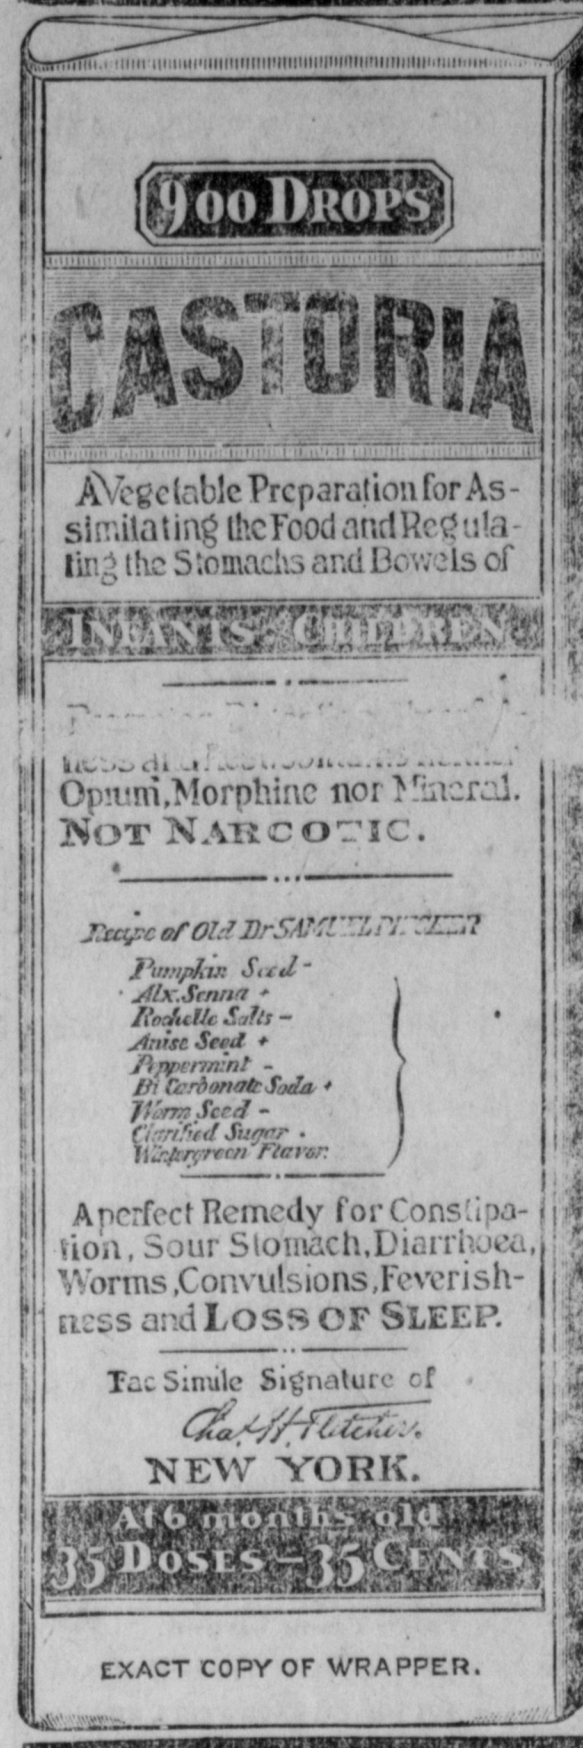

A lawsuit, said to be without precedent for its curious and apparently useless features, is on trial in Dutchess county, N. Y. Some time ago a man and his wife could not agree on a name for their infant son, and the mother decided to settle the question according to her wishes by having the child baptized one day while the father was absent. The father has now brought suit against the clergyman for damages.
