PREFERENTIAL TRADE.

That the present year is likely to be one of the most important in the annals of the British Empire seems now almost certain. The Diamond Jubilee of our good esting reading, as disclosing the methods Queep, to which so much attention is being given, is really of small importance lers to obtain the expression of popular in comparison with several other events, whose significance has not yet been grasped fence of the Empire by adding to the mayal strength, is a bold notice to the world that the foeman of Britain will have to grapple with an empire covering onethird of the globe instead of three small islands of western Europe. The attitude taken by the Conservative party in England in relation to matters concerning Ireland, and the manner in which the overtures have been received by the moderate and really patriotic people of Ireland, show that there is at hand a solution of this long standing question that, while not endangering the integrity of the Empire, will place Ireland in a position she strongly desires. The fact that only twenty-six out of one hundred and eight of the Irish members refuse to be conciliated, shows that the innate gallantry of that most chivalrous people is strongly asserting itself The now evident fact that England holds, and has all along held the key to the situation in Europe, comes as a stunning piece of news to some of the would be wise men of the world, who have been loudly proclaiming that England, as a factor in Europe, had disappeared. At her, and her demand solely, backed up by an ultimatum, the Turk agrees to evacuate Thessaly-Germany and Russia while opposing states, unwillingly agree with the plans of Lord Salisbury, while the wishes of the French people are much more clearly voiced by England's premier than by their own Government. In view of all these facts the offer of Preferential trade by Canada to England conves as the king wave in a series of rollers that are bearing the good ship Britannia over many sunken rocks and freacherous sands. The enthusiastic reception given to the proposal by the British people is the best answer to ad verse criticism. To have touched the heart of the great Empire as has been done by Laurier in this case is a proof of ability that goes far to justify the favorable opinion of both parties. Better still, it is exactly in line with his strongest points of character and his distinguishing characteristics. No one knowing Hon Mr. Laurier, or having studied his career, tan claim for him the qualities necessary to shine as a man of affairs. On the other hand, not even his strongest opponent can deny to him the possession of a mind stinned to high ideals and grand sentiment. That Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. Mr. Foster would, if they had undertaken abled the farmers to complete the work of it. have produced a much more practicable and better working measure, seems almost sertain. The keen criticism to which they have subjected the bill and the knowledge of all the difficulties which they showed, proves beyond doubt that they actually were considering the introduction of some such a measure. This coupled with the often made declaration of the Conservative leaders in favor of Preferential trade, and the fact that they criticise the details while admitting the value of the principle, actually takes from the measure all semblance of purely partisan legislation. While the Conservatives can claim with justice that the wide experience and great knowledge of Sir Charles would have enabled him to produce a measure more statesmanlike and devoid of the manifest defects of the present bill, yet the Liberals can proudly point to the fact that their accession to power was marked by a distinctly Imperial Policy. Thus it becomes, taken all in all, a Lational instead of a party measure.

from the management by the Government of the Intercolonial Railway and other public works in the dominion, is that the general interests of the country will be sacrificed in many respects, to personal and party interests

The impression has long existed in the minds of many, who are disposed to take an independent view, that the great interprovincial highway was being operated, to a very considerable extent, in the interests and for the political advantage of the dominant party. The temptation and the opportunities in this direction were and are very great. It was therefore, perhaps, too much to expect that the investigations, recently made at the instance of the new Minister of Railways, should not reveal rather damaging facts in this direction. Mr. Blair made a statement in parliament last week on the authority, as he alleged, of the report of the special commissioner, that the divisional superintendents had given their services to party canvassers and had prepared lists of employees who were classified into Liberals and Conservatives-the former being marked "out" to indicate that they were He further stated that passes in large pumbers for Conservative voters had been ordered by an official from the heads of the department under the designation

"shingles" agreeably to a cypher previously agreed upon. The evidence of these facts when submitted to parliament, as we presume it will be, will prove interadepted by political leaders and wire pulopinion through the polls.

The question now arises-will any by the wars of the nation. The proposed | change in this respect be made under the federation of Australia means the birth of Liberal regime? Messers. Wm. and James McKinlev. have a crew of men at work; bunching the spool wood, manufactured in their mill, last winter. They report the cut as very satisfactory, and have made arrangements to ship the same per steamer, direct to Scotland.

Messers. James Kennedy, Ward Mc-Donald and James Martin, arrived home on Friday last, from the Miramichi. They had been employed on the Ritchie & Co lumber drives.

Mr. John Potter, Sr., accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. James Gregan, drove to Kingston on Friday.

The family of Mr. George Jardine, will shortly move from Kingston to this place. Mrs. Jardine spent the first part of last week in the Village, returning to Kingston Wednesday. We extend to Mrs. J. a hearty welcome.

Mr. Robinson, student in charge of the Presbyterian Church in this place preached on Sunday evening at McLeod's Mills, French River. At the close of the service a Sabbath School was organized with Mr. Jas. McCafferty as Superintendent, Mrs. James Atkinson, Mrs. John McLeod and Mr. Stephen Cameron, as teachers.

Mr. H. M. Ferguson, of Kingston, w. a in the Village on Wednesday, enroute to Black River.

Mr. Joshua Black, of Richibucto, spent Tuesday night with friends here. Driving to Richibucto Wednesday morning.

We are pleased to learn that the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Commissioner of Public Works, has at last decided to tear down the old wooden bridge, that at presentin its almost impassible state-now spans the Kouchibouguac River, at this place. A modern bridge of stone and steel will replace the old one. The people of this locality are very much indebted to Mr. C. Atkinson, for his kindness in pressing this matter on the department.

man nature. "The Cup" begat Mr. Storey's fearful hope of "a coup," and he very nearly succeeded in bringing it off. Since that time the party "whips' have marked the Ascot Thursday with a black mark and taken heed unto their forces.

By way of revenge it was the Ascot Friday - which nobody troubled to think about-that rained the Rosebery government in 1895. Men went away to see the racing, and on returning to town found, when dining at the club, that an ardent band of astute diplomatists had skillfully toppled over Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the war minister, on the comparatively insignificant question of cordite. It is a hard thing, after a "black" week in backing horses, for a poor legislator to find himself face to face with the terrors of a general election.-London Telegraph.

PAPER MONEY.

The Kinds of Currency That Are Used by Foreign Countries.

The Bank of England note is 5 inches by 8 in dimensions and is printed in black ink on Irish linen water lined paper, plain white, with ragged edges. The notes of the Banque de France are made of white water lined paper, print. ed in blue and black, with numerous mythological and allegorical pictures, and running in denomination from the 25 franc note to the 1,000 franc. South American currency, in most countries, is about the size and appearance of American bills, except that cinnamon brown and slate blue are the prevailing colors and that Spanish and Portuguese are the prevailing languages engraved on the face.

The German currency is rather artistic. The bills are printed in green and black. They run in denominations from 5 to 1,000 marks. These latter bills are printed on silk fiber paper.

The Chinese paper currency is in red, white and yellow, with gilt lettering and gorgeous little hand drawn devices. The bills, to the ordinary financier, might pass for washing bills, but they are worth good money in the Flowery Kingdom. Italian notes are of all sizes, shapes and colors. The smaller bills, 5 and 10 lire notes, are printed on white paper in pink, blue and carmine inks and ornamented with a finely engraved vignette of King Humbert.

The 100 ruble note of Russia is barred from top to bottom with all the colors of the rainbow, blended as when shown through a prism. In the center, in bold relief, stands a large, finely executed vignette of the Empress Catherine I. This is in black. The other engraving is not at all intricate or elaborate, but is well done in dark and light brown and black inks. The Australian bill is printed on light colored thick paper which shows none of the silk fiber marks or geometric lines used in American currency as a protection against counterfeiting.-Golden Days.

A Lively Koman Sauce.

Garum, the black green sauce of the Romans, was a species of universal condiment, but its principal use was for fish. The recipe is as follows: Let the cook take several fishes, it matters not much which, but mackerel are the best for the purpose. Let him take out their entrails and put them in vinegar and leave them there for ten days. Then let them be taken out and dried and powdered in a mortar with pepper, frumenty, roots of dandelion, mint, thyme, sage and a little ginger, and well mixed, after which the powder must be put in jars, together with honey, and left to ferment during several weeks. When ready for the table, it must be mixed with Falernian wine.-New York Post.

Rubinstein's Disillusions.

The posthumous "Souvenirs" of Rubinstein in the Vom Fels zum Meer contain some of the disillusions of a great musician. Rubinstein alludes to a concert organized by Pasdeloup, which he conducted in Paris, the programme consisting mainly of his own compositions. It was held at the Cirque, and some 4,000 people were present. Throughout Rubinstein was possessed with the conviction that the attention of the entire world was directed exclusively upon him. On reaching his hotel Rubinstein was met by an old friend, who expressed the greatest surprise at seeing him. "What!" exclaimed the frietel, "you in Paris! When did you arrive? One never hears a word about you nowadays. Are you thinking of giving any concerts in Paris?" Rubinstein was so much taken aback that he was speechless.
