In moving the House into supply Hon. Mr. Tweedie referred to the regrettable illness of the Promier, and the position he occupied as acting leader, and then went the position of the government. When he stated that the expenditure for the past year had exceeded the revenue by $3,000, or as might be claimed by the opposition, $8,000, he felt that he was not making a statement that would give concern to any reasonable business man Last year the receipts from territorial revenue had been estimated at $165,000, whereas only $143,000 was realized. He desired to say openly and plainly that the province stood in a better position today financially than it ever had before. Its bonds were selling for more than they had ever before sold. Turning to the estimated expenditures for 1896 it would be seen that while the estimate for the administration of justice was $14,400, the actual outlay was $12,705.14. Upon agriculture the estimate was $24,150, while the actual expenditure was $22,888.46. This was owing to the fact that only $2, 000 of bonds for importation of horses were retired instead of $4,000, and the sinking fund was now all paid up. The expenditure was also decreased by the fact that no importation of cattle had been made last year as was intended. For the Boys' Industrial Home $1,500 had been paid instead of the $500 estimated. Consingencies had been estimated at $13,000, while the actual outlay was $14,041. The estimate of $188,914.48 upon education had been slightly exceeded, the actual figures being $191,638.21. The excess over the estimate had been applied to the common schools. The expense for elections had been placed at $6,000, and the amount paid was $5,844.87. The estimate for executive government was $28,-420, which had been exceeded by $720 .-08. That increase was fully accounted for by increased salaries paid in the board of works. For fisheries protection $1 .-200 had been asked, of which $939.66 was expended. The allowance under the free grants act, $2,000, had been exceeded by $48.50. For game protection $2.000 had been voted, of which $1,971.43 was

The budget debate was continued by Hon. Mr Emmerson, who spoke for three hours.
