WAS GETTING EVEN.

A WAITER GIVES A CUSTOMER A LESSON IN IMPORTUNING.

The Man Didn't Want Anything but Pork and Beans and What Went With It, but the Waiter Called His Attention to Everything in the Place.

"Pork and beans? Yes, sir. Anything else?" "No." The waiter in the Madison street restaurant filled the order with alacrity.

"This bread and butter goes with the pork and, doesn't it?" "Yes, sir." "And this glass of water?" "Certainly, sir."

The waiter stepped back, but returned presently to ask: "Wouldn't you like to have me bring you some of our boneless codfish? It's the best in the country."

"No. If I want anything else, I'll call for it." "Excuse me for saying so, my friend, but you look as if you might be needing some kind of game. Suppose you try our jacksnipe on toast."

"Great Scott! Don't you reckon I know what I want?" "Yes, sir. Our jacksnipe is fresh and good. Everybody needs to eat game once in awhile. Kind of tones up the system."

"I've told you I don't want any." "Yes, sir. Rabbits ain't good this time of year or we'd have some rabbit Squabs as about as good as wild game, though. Like to try a broiled squab on toast?"

"I'd like to eat my pork and beans in peace. Bring me some more water, will you?" "Yes, sir. Shan't I bring you some iced tea?"

"That's all right. Bring me that water, will you?" "Yes, sir." He went away and returned in an incredibly short space of time.

"Here's your water," he said, "but I think you'd find our iced coffee might be fine." The guest made no reply.

"When I want any iced coffee or anything else, I'll let you know." "Ever try any of our stewed mushrooms?"

"No, and I don't want to try any of your stewed mushrooms either." "You needn't be afraid of them, sir. They're all right. We guarantee them, and there ain't any better in the United States."

"I don't." "Some people, you know, are afraid of mushrooms. Ours are selected with great care. The man we get our mushrooms from is an expert. He raises 'em scientifically."

"Say, do you know you're a confounded nuisance?" "I hope not, sir. I'm only trying your own way of doing business on you."

"What do you mean?" "You run a barber shop on State street, don't you?" "Yes. What of that?" "You have the chair next to the front door, I think?"

"Well, I went to your shop last Saturday to get a shave. You shaved me. You tried to get me to have my hair cut. You told me I ought to have a shampoo. You said my hair needed singeing. You wanted to know if I hadn't better have some tonic or hay rum. You wanted to sell me a special shaving mug and brush. You bored me every minute you were shaving me, and I said to myself that if I ever got a chance at you I'd even up things. I didn't expect you quite so soon, though. Say, we're about even, ain't we?"

THE TROUBLE IN INDIA.

SIMLA, Oct. 28.—Official advices received here yesterday from Kharappa announce that a large foraging party of British troops yesterday captured the village of Rimadbang and recovered a quantity of supplies. On retiring the troops were hotly followed by the enemy to within a mile of the British camp. On the British side nine men, including Colonel Hadow, were wounded. The confidence of the insurgents tribesmen is increasing and they are offering a determined front in all directions. The British officers say the tribesmen excel in guerrilla warfare and are wonderful skirmishers. The enemy is fully supplied with ammunition and large reinforcements and joining the insurgent camp.

A despatch from Semphaga gives the official list of the killed and wounded at the storming at Daarga ridge as being 195 of which number 37 were killed. During the recent attack upon the tribesmen who had occupied the Daarga ridge, one of the pipers belonging to the Gordon Highlanders, who were leading the attack, was shot through both ankles, rendering it impossible for him to walk. His wounds did not, however, diminish his ardour, and sitting amid a hail of bullets he continued his piping, of unconcerned as though he was on parade. This is only one instance of the coolness and bravery displayed by the Highlanders which have called forth the encomiums of the commanders.

Which requires a constitutional remedy. It cannot be cured by local applications. Hood's Sarsaparilla is wonderfully successful in curing catarrh because it eradicates from the blood the scrofulous taints which cause it. Sufferers with catarrh find a cure in Hood's Sarsaparilla, even after other remedies utterly fail.

Hood's Pills are prompt, efficient, always reliable, easy to take, easy to operate. A man employed at the sewage farm at Batchworth in Hertfordshire asserts that quite recently, when working on his farm, he has often seen an old blind rat carrying a piece of stick in its mouth, with two other younger rats leading it about with one end of the stick also in their mouths.

THE VALUE OF LEGS.

BENEFITS OF CORRECT WALKING AS AN AID TO GOOD HEALTH.

Few people appreciate as they should the advantage of having legs. It is true that many have awakened to the fact that legs are good for working the pedals on a wheel, and others think them serviceable in whirling their bodies two by two over the polished surface of a ball-room floor in the early morning hours, when they had better be sleeping. But how many there are who do not appreciate the blessing of having two sound legs to walk on, and who do not realize that, having them, they are independent of circumstances!

Young or old, rich or poor, in good weather or in bad, in the city or in the country, over rough roads or smooth, or no roads at all, they can take themselves out, they can spur up the circulation to its work of supplying new fuel to the boiler of the body and removing its ashes; they can expand the lungs with fresh, pure air, and blow out the seeds of disease that only ask to be let alone to take root and bear deadly fruit; they can clear the brain, brushing away the cobwebs of disappointment, doubt and melancholy, filling their place with the iridescent tints of content and healthful hope.

Here we have a machine that is always ready for use, chainless, with self-lubricating and dust proof bearings, close tread-changeable gear, absolutely puncture-proof tires, and an anatomical saddle superior to any in the market.

Perhaps the reason why so few appreciate the treasure they possess in their legs is because so few know how to use them. The walker should step briskly, with head erect, shoulders back and arms swinging, breathing deeply with closed mouth. Strolling is better than nothing, for even that takes us into pure, open air; but there is nothing like a good swinging gait for putting life into one.

Quick walking is good at any time except just after a hearty meal, but best of all in the forenoon or at bed time. For students the evening walk is invaluable. If hard study must be continued late into the evening, sleep will be much more certain and refreshing if the mind is cleared and soothed by a brisk turn of five or ten minutes. Such a turn is useful, too, if drowsiness comes before the task is finished; it tones up the tired brain cells and freshens the jaded memory.—Youth's Companion.

John Pollard, who lost heavily by the Windsor (N. S.) fire and who went raving mad, left for Mount Hope asylum Friday morning. Pollard, when leaving the station, cried frantically, "Don't shoot me." He went crazy after hearing the shots fired by Sentry Hanson at Jackson, the Halifax man who was attempting burglary.

AGAINST PROFESSIONAL ETHICS.

Newspaper men will enjoy the keen thrust of William Henry Siviter, in Life, at the highly-conservative medical gentlemen who so abhor advertising—in the advertising columns:

"By the way, doctor," said the enterprising reporter, after he had secured from the eminent physician a full account of a successful and skillful operation which the latter had performed, "I believe it is not considered professional for physicians and surgeons to advertise in the newspapers." "Oh, dear, no!" replied the practitioner. "Such a method of obtaining publicity is an egregious violation of the ethics of the medical profession. A reputable physician can not advertise. He would immediately lose caste if he did. Only quacks advertise."

"That was my impression," replied the newspaper man, who thereupon went away and wrote an interesting account of the operation from the facts which the eminent surgeon had detailed to him. He told how the patient had been in a railway accident, and was taken out of the wreck with forty-six compound fractures, besides innumerable bruises of a less important character. He told how a new "lubber heart" had been made and fitted into the place of the natural organ, which had been lost in the excitement, and how the artificial heart was doing all the work which could reasonably be expected of any sort of heart. He explained the ingenious mechanism which supplied artificial respiration while the patient's lungs were in the repair shop, and very properly alluded to the job, as a whole, as the most remarkable series of surgical operations in the whole history of the art of medicine and surgery, and concluded his succinct and valuable account with this paragraph:

"It would give us the greatest pleasure to mention the name of the eminent physician who has wrought such marvelous reconstruction of a human being whose condition seemed beyond hope, and who would have been really beyond hope in the hands of any one else; but the stern mandate of professional ethics holds the writer's hand. Newspaper publicity is extremely offensive to the medical profession, for its members are not allowed to advertise, under severe penalties. It is with deep regret, therefore, that the skillful surgeon's name is omitted, and that he is thus deprived of the honor to which he is entitled; but we bow to the well-settled principle of the ethics of the profession."

It is understood that when the medical gentleman read this, he remarked that he would like an opportunity to treat the reporter as the railway wreck had treated his patient.

A fossil skeleton, apparently that of an unknown animal larger than a rhinoceros, has been found at a depth of 500 feet in a coal mine at Kymi, in the eastern part of the Island of Euboea. It is regarded as belonging to the Miocene period.

A detailed official account has been issued of the discoveries made by Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt, acting for the Egyptian exploration fund, of the Lonia Ilikon or "Sayings of Our Lord" and other papyri at Oxyrhynchus. It includes particulars of a considerable fragment of the Fourth Book of Thucydides, which is of interest only second to the Logia. It is by far the oldest text known, dating from the first century, and disproves the allegations which have been commonly accepted that the text has been greatly corrupted.

THE BRITISH WIN.

SIMLA, Oct. 29.—The British forces under Gen. Sir. William Lockhart captured the Semphaga Pass at 11.15 o'clock this morning. General Hazel, in command of the second brigade, led the advance upon the position, which was one of the strongest descriptions. The casualties among the British officers already reported are Captain Debats of the artillery who succumbed to wounds received during the engagement, and Major Handford Flood, of the West Surrey Regiment, who is among the wounded. The British force will halt tonight in the Mustura Valley and will attack Arhanga to-morrow.

FAIRLY STAGGERED.

Mr Samuel Humphries, retired carriage manufacturer, Strath ry, Ont., says: "For a long time I have had kidney troubles and pain in the back. I could not straighten up and often had to sit down until the pain and weakness went away. I have taken one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and must say they are a great kidney medicine because they have entirely removed all pain from my back, curing the urinary difficulties and benefiting my general health in a remarkable degree."

A big delegation from the counties of Soulanges and Vaudreuil waited on the premier at Ottawa on Thursday complaining of the manner in which the patronage was distributed in the counties of Vaudreuil and Soulanges. The principal complaint was in regard to the Soulanges canal. They maintained that Mr. Schreiber, Deputy Minister of Railways, and his staff along the canal only employed Conservatives. They also complained that men were brought from the Maritime Provinces. Sir Wilfrid Laurier assured the delegation that their representations would be looked into and made right.
