WAITING.

GEORGE HENRY DAUGHERTY.

A smile of golden glory rests upon The far-off reaches in these farewell days.
Dim-lined in tinted grey of early dawn, Thin-veiled at eventide in purple haze.
No blighting spell has touched the waiting earth, Dark is her robe, and jeweled by the dew Still green the banks of brooklets where in mirth
The zephyr rioted the long days through.
The south winds linger with a soft caress, Lifting some mystic spirit come to tell Her bounteous wealth of yield from field and press,
At His command who doeth all things well.

The south winds linger yet with kisses warm,
On glebe, and upland, valley, dell, and down, Fainting within the breath that will transform Earth's woodland chaplet to a golden crown.

INORDINATE NOVEL READING.

Inordinate novel reading comes in for severe condemnation at the hands of the editor of the Homiletic Review. He says that three things are "easily demonstrable" in this connection. The first is that the intellect is being weakened, the insatiable novel reader losing the power to grapple with the great truths that underlie the realities of life. The second is that true feeling is deadened, the principle enunciated by Bishop Butler and recalled by Henry Rogers being applicable here, namely, that passive impressions by being repeated grow weaker, and the heart is made worse, not better, by the luxury of sympathy and mere benevolent feeling separated from action. The third thing demonstrable is that inordinate reading of even the best novels must destroy all taste for the other and more solid reading that is essential for every intelligent man or woman, and so, in the end, all taste for real right life.

Continuing, the Review (July) finds a close connection between this inordinate love of novels on the one hand, and, on the other, sensational journalism, political corruption, and moral and religious laxity.
It says:

"1. The exclusive attention to fiction seems to have deadened, if not almost destroyed, the public sense of fact, of reality, of truth. This appears in all departments of thought and life. The demand for sensational reports in place of actual news has almost revolutionized journalism.
The historical novel is everywhere being pushed into the place of genuine history.
The wildest and most baseless speculation is palmed off and accepted as real science.
The press groans under the publication of critical and theological vagaries that are expected to be accepted in place of scientific theology and the Word of God. The sense of the reality in the principles that underlie conscience and society and government has been in many cases lost out.
Indeed, it sometimes seems as though the age had got round again to the skeptical question of Pilate, 'What is truth?' All this is but the natural result of the pushing of all truth out of the range of intellectual vision by means of all sorts of fictitious productions.

"2. A further effect is to be seen in the immense change that has taken place in the conduct of mankind in the various departments of life. Corruption in politics and laxity in religion are instances in point. If there is no basis of reality, why should men live as though there were?
Multitudes have answered this question to suit their natural desires and are living accordingly. The change has been almost revolutionary. The world has almost lost all sense of truth and right, and of ideal character and conduct, and all sense of responsibility as well.

"Where is to be found the remedy?
We would suggest that it must be found in getting back again to the solid basis of truth. . . . There must somehow be brought about the restoration of the sense of truth and reality in this age, if society is not to be permanently wrecked."

THE "SMITHY'S" DAUGHTER.

Attacked by That Most Insidious of Harbours—Kidney Disease—Gets Good Health Back by Using South American Kidney Cure—A Kidney Specific.

Theophile Gadois, of Annapolis, writes:
"My daughter was a great sufferer from kidney disease. Medical men did their best for her and we tried all the remedies at command, and not until South American Kidney Cure was tried did she get any benefit. Three doses brought great relief. Two or three bottles completely cured her—not a sign of pain or distress of any kind left. It is truly a wonder worker. Sold by W. W. Short.

GRENIER SENTENCED.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—In the Court of Queen's Bench this morning W. A. Grenier was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by Judge Warteke for libelling the Hon. J. I. Tarte, Minister of Public Works. His counsel made a second attempt to stay the proceedings by presenting a motion for the arrest of judgment, which was rejected by the court and sentence was at once imposed. Grenier must in addition furnish security to keep the peace for two years.

ENGLISH INNKEEPERS.

Said to Be Mainly Bores Who Treat Patrons as Intruders.

If your pocketbook allows or fate or the desire to see the country compels you to remain in England, there are parts where you can ride on your wheel with great satisfaction and at great expense. Nothing could be more beautiful than the midlands, lovelier than the counties that surround London, but westward go no farther than Bristol or Truro, northward than Chester, avoiding Manchester—that is, unless you mean to go still farther north into Scotland, which at times will repay your enterprise. The southwest is largely to be avoided. Cornwall and Devon have the worst roads in civilized Europe—in fact, the roads and inns explain that the country is not and never has been civilized. In the inns you are often treated as an intruder, and sometimes cheated in a fashion that would bring a blush to the cheek of a Swiss landlord, for the emptiness of the larder the bill makes up in lavishness. There is hardly anything to eat save cream, but for that and salt bacon and ancient eggs you are asked to pay as much as for a good dinner at the Cafe Royal. The inn-keepers are mainly bores.

As for the roads, they go straight to the top of all the hills, as uncompromisingly as the roads of Bohemia, then drop down the other side and are unridable in both directions. When not climbing precipitately, they lie buried at the bottom of a ditch. They are shadeless and uninteresting, rarely approaching the seacoast or passing near anything that is worth looking at, and yet we know Englishmen who are profoundly impressed with the belief that they are the best in England, and therefore in the world. The roads, inns and innkeepers of Scotland are in every way better, but the fact that the average Briton spends his holiday on the continent when he can prove not only that he wants to get there, but also that he is driven from his own country by the shortsightedness of the people who keep its inns and look after its roads.—Mr. and Mrs. Pennell in Fortnightly Review.

ANCIENT MEDICAL METHODS.

The Manner of Doctors' Consultations in the Fourteenth Century.

Coming to Mondeville's exposition of the method of holding a discussion, we find his description almost a story of what might take place today. "First," he says, "we should inquire into the nature of the disease, examining carefully and feeling, because the diagnosis is made by touching with the hand and observing with the eye. All the consultants engage in turn in the examination.
Then, if the case demands it, they make a new examination all together, pointing out to one another the symptoms of disease and the special or remarkable features either in the patient or the disease. Then one of them, the highest in rank, says to the patient, 'Sir, we perceive very clearly what is the matter with you, and you ought to have full confidence in us and be glad that there are so many of us here and such doctors—enough for a king—and to believe that the youngest of us is competent to prescribe and carry on your treatment and bring it to a good result.' Then he interrogates the patient about the circumstances of his attack. 'Sir, do not be displeased or take it ill, but when did your illness begin?' following this with many other questions, the answers to which are recorded as indications furnished by the patient.

"When all the questions called for by the case have been asked, the consultants retire to another room, where they will be alone, for in all consultations the masters dispute with one another in order the better to discuss the truth, and sometimes they come to a pass in the heat of discussion which would cause strangers witnessing their proceedings to suppose there were discord and strife among them. This is sometimes the case."—"Fourteenth Century Doctors," by M. E. Nicolson, in Popular Science Monthly.

Mozart's Method.

Mozart's method of composition was such as could only have been pursued by a child of genius. He would rise early, eat a hearty breakfast and then stroll for several hours in a forest near his home, where, inspired by nature's beauties, heavenly melodies came trooping through his brain. Repairing to his cottage, he would summon his wife, a very witty woman, and bid her tell him stories. He would then mount his high stool and proceed to commit these inspirations to paper, his wife telling him jokes and funny stories while he wrote. These he enjoyed immensely, frequently interrupting her with hearty bursts of laughter and sometimes even falling from the stool and rolling on the floor. But amid all this hilarity and uproar the flow of music which was to move the world went steadily on. His productions were wrought without the least thought or study, but came almost unbidden "direct from heaven." Like Shakespeare, he was purely the creature of inspiration, a genius of the highest order.—C. C. Hicatt in Housekeeper.

Remote Ancestry.

"It has long been supposed," says The Outlook, "that the most startling genealogical claim is that of the negus of Abyssinia, who insists that his descendant has been in a straight line from the union of Solomon with the queen of Sheba, but some one has discovered a noble family in France, the counts of Noe, who not only claim Noah as their remote ancestor, but show on their family blazon that veteran seaman in the ark."

Laying Bricks.

A bricklayer can lay about 1,500 or 1,600 bricks in a day of 10 hours where the joints are left rough, about 1,000 per day when both faces have to be worked fair and not more than 500 a day when carefully jointed and faced with picked bricks of a uniform color.

Two Agonizing DiseasesQuickly Banished by Paine's Celery Compound.Two Thankful Letters that Should Be Read By Suffering Men and Women.

For the effectual banishment of rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia, Paine's Celery Compound is without doubt the best medicine that human science has ever produced. This marvellous remedy, devised by Professor Edward Phelps, M. D., one of the ablest physicians that ever lived has won the hearty praise of millions of people for the wondrous cures it has wrought in all lands. It is only a medicine with such a record of cures that can attain a world-wide reputation. It has saved men, women and children, many of whom had been given up by the doctors.
It does its work quickly and well; it eradicates every trace of disease; it builds up fortifies and makes active every mortal whose limbs have been crippled and deformed by rheumatism, and drives away the terrors of neuralgia.

To-day the ablest doctors are freely prescribing Paine's Celery Compound for tortured rheumatic and neuralgic people.
The thankful letters received each year from the cured in every section of Canada would, if published in book form, make a large and interesting volume.

The following letters will surely inspire all rheumatic and neuralgic sufferers with a new and lively hope of a better and happier life, Mrs. F. McMann, of Thorold Ont., says:

"I think it my duty to let you know what Paine's Celery Compound has done for my husband. For two years he suffered very much with rheumatism in the back, and became so bad that he could not bend, stoop, or sit in a chair at table, and I was obliged to take his meals to him while he lay in bed. He was treated by various physicians, but received no benefit until he used Paine's Celery Compound.
The first bottle gave him relief, and after he had used six bottles he was quite free from the rheumatism. He was troubled with piles for fourteen years, and found great relief from the Compound. He says he feels like a new man just now. We think there is no medicine like Paine's Celery Compound."

Mrs. A. Acheson, of Montreal, says:
"Two years ago I suffered intensely from neuralgia in the head, face and shoulders. I was in a terrible condition, and often so tortured that I could not rest or sleep. I became very weak and feeble, had giddy and faint spells, and often could not attempt to go out on the street. My appetite became poor and digestion very weak. At night, while in bed, I often had oppressive and smothering feelings; my whole nervous system was run down and very weak.

"I had been under the care of a medical man and used various medicines, but no relief came to me from these sources. I fortunately heard of your Paine's Celery Compound; I decided to give it a trial, and I bless the day I commenced with it.
I used it for several months, and now feel as well as I ever did. All my pains have been vanished, I sleep and eat well, and find myself a new woman. I heartily recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who are in need of an honest and true curing medicine."

Mrs. Bridewell—I am glad I wasn't born in France. Just think of having your husband selected for you by somebody else!

Mrs. Oldham—I know, but there's the consolation of having somebody to blame it on to.
