A JOKER'S FAME.

Some Interesting Reminiscences of the Famous Humorist, Sydney Smith. Sydney Smith was a political reformer and one of the foremost men of letters of his time, but he is remembered chiefly as a humorist who could enliven a dinner table with his wit. Like other wise men who have a talent for making people laugh, he was jealous of his reputation for good sense.

When he reprinted his essays from the Edinburgh Review, his object, given in his own words, was "to show, if I could, that I had not passed my life merely in making jokes, but that I had made use of whatever little powers of pleasantry I might be endowed with to discountenance bad and to encourage liberal and wise principles." In this object he failed. His public services and wisdom have been forgotten. His jokes a are remembered.

His account of Dame Partington, who lived upon the beach at Sidmouth and who was seen during a violent storm trundling her mop, squeezing out the sea water and vigorously pushing away the Atlantic ocean, is a household story which every one knows. The circum stances in which it was told and the effect produced by it have passed out of mind.

It was at the end of a long agitation for political reform in England when the house of lords had thrown out the great measure of Lord John Russell which had been carried through th commons. Sydney Smith, the politica parson who had been advocating Lil eral principles and reform measures fe many years, told this story at a polit cal meeting in Taunton, at which speeches were made protesting again: the action of the lords. It caught th public fancy, and within a week every body in England was laughing over i Mrs. Partington's mop battle with t. tempest tossed Atlantic portrayed t! lords' futile struggle with English pu! lic opinion. Some years ago a chart purporting to show where the treasure was hidden come into the possession of a woman in Maine, and the result was that she got some money together, hired a schooner on the Pacific coast, and with a small party went to the island about a year ago One of the men in her party was Harris, who is referred to above as having just arrived here on the Imperieuse.

When they reached the island they found Harford there all alone and nearly dead of his privations. He. too, had gone there to search for the treasure, having induced a vessel to land him on the desolate coast, nearly a year earlier. His supplies had become exhausted and he would soon have died if succor had not reached him.

He told the party that he had found the treasure, and that its enormous value fully justified the reports concerning it; that the map they had was entirely misleading, that he alone possessed the clew that had enabled him to find the wealth.

- 400-TRAGEDY NEAR HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, Nov. 8.- An awful affair happened in Dartmouth at an early hour Sunday morning, by which two people were hurried to death and the owner of the house so injured that he lies in a precarious condition. George Tullock and his family retired to rest Saturday night as usual. Some hours after a hired man sleeping in the house smelled smoke and discovered the house on fire. He gave he alarm, but before the inmates could be aroused the place was so full of smoke and the flames had so cut off exit that it was impossible to get out. Mrs. Tullock, wife of the owner of the house, made her escape, and Tullock reached the door, but remembering that his wife's sister and infant daughter were still within, he rushed back to save them. He was too late. Miss Walker, a sister of Mrs. Tullock, had also thought of the child. She went to save it, but after finding it, fell in a faint on the floor, with the child in her arms. Had it not been for this attempt at the child's rescue Tullock might have saved the child, but when he reached its bed it was gone. The devouring element rapidly licked up the house and in a few minutes the young woman and the child were cremated. Tullock had a narrow escape and fell insensible at a window, from which position the neighbors rescued him almost dead. Miss Walker had intended going to Boston Saturday night, but was prevailed upon to stay over for a week, aud thus met her death.

SUED THE PRINCE OF WALES.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE BEFORE THI LORD MAYOR'S COURT IN LONDON.

LONDON, Nov. 4-There was an extraordinary case heard before the lord mayor's court to-day, when a man named Hinde sued the Prince of Wales to recover paid him by the late Under Sheriff Croll, who was the liquidator of the United Kingdom Telegraph company. The plaintiff declared the money belonged to a certain Mr. Allan, of whose estate he was the ocean beat Mrs. Partington." During the 60 years which precede the Victorian reign Sydney Smith w almost the only prominent English clergyman who was interested in r form movements, and in his writin for the Edinburgh Review he succeed by his wit in presenting the dullest an gument with freshness and force. W with him was the vehicle which carrie good sense and wisdom. He has been his grave 60 years, and his reputation that of a clerical joker.

He expected that a tablet would erected to his memory in St. Paul's c: thedral, London, where as canon | was a favorite preacher at the close his life. There is no memorial tabl there, nor is there one at either Fost. or Combe-Florey, the two parish where most of his work was done. H jokes have survived not only his wri ings, but his services as a reformer wi loved religious toleration and politic: liberty as the breath of his life.

What his career proves is that wit one of the most powerful weapons the world. Without it he would have exerted very much less influence as writer or a preacher in politics. Wit it his name has been handed down a one of the great Englishmen of h time.

Ranch Life.

It is so difficult to imagine a your American voluntarily choosing a rand as a start in life that it is hardly wort while trying to do so. As a rule h either thinks of the country as the place where market vegetables come from and Thanksgiving turkeys are raised or else it represents to him a large and expensive establishment at Lakewoor or some such place, with a casino an bowling alley and poio team attached And as for the most part the American lices not play polo nor hunt nor shoo cor fish with any real, genuine en thusiasm, the latter view he takes is scarcely more alluring than the former Down deep in his heart he knows that he would much rather be trying to run an electric railway or a bank or build ing bridges or losing money in Wall street than to be doing any of those things. But the young Englishman is ntirely different. He has always known and enjoyed outdoor sports. It is the life he likes best, and he imagines that cauch life is, first and foremost, a sporting life. -Abbe Carter Goodloe in Scribner's.
