GEORGE W. JARDINE,

FORMING A CLUB.

They talked of travel, art and books,
Gave politics some rubs,
Of music spoke and drifted last
To the theme of woman's clubs.
"I've joined my sixth," she said, with pride.
"Each seemed so good a choice."
And on the word he courage took
His treasured hope to voice.
"Oh, Phyllis, dear—forgive the name—
But will you make it seven
And join a club I know about?
Its charter comes from heaven,
Its fee is drafts on Cupid's bank,
Its dues are kisses sweet,
Its membership is limited,
But not its times to meet."

"Already half the number's got.
A single smile from you
Will fill the list and found for aye
This happy club of two.
Nay, sweet, look up! You think you'll join?
Oh, bliss that crowns my life!
You shall be all the officers
And be, besides—my wife!"

A GREAT PROBLEM.

The Missing Link Between Inorganic and Organic Life.

One great life problem remains which the doctrine of evolution does not touch. The origin of species, genera, orders and classes of beings through endless transmutations is in a sense explained, but what of the first term of this long series? Whence came that primordial organism whose transmuted descendants make up the existing faunas and floras of the globe?

There was a time, soon after the doctrine of evolution gained a hearing, when the answer to that question seemed to some scientists of authority to have been given by experiment. Occurring to a former belief and repeating some earlier experiments, the director of the museum of natural history Rouen, M. F. A. Pouchet, reached the conclusion that organic beings are spontaneously generated about us constantly in the familiar processes of putrefaction, which were known to be due to the agency of microscopic bacteria. But in 1862 Louis Pasteur proved that this seeming spontaneous generation is in reality due to the existence of germs in the air. Notwithstanding the conclusiveness of these experiments, the claims of Pouchet were revived in England ten years later by Professor Bastian, but then the experiments of John Tyndall, fully corroborating the results of Pasteur, gave a final quietus to the claim of "spontaneous generation" as hitherto formulated.

There for the moment the matter rests. But the end is not yet. Fauna and flora are here, and, thanks to Lamarck and Wallace and Darwin, their development, through the operation of those "secondary causes" which we call laws of nature, has been proximally explained. The lowest forms of life have been linked with the highest in unbroken chains of descent. Meantime, through the efforts of chemists and biologists, the gap between the inorganic and the organic worlds, which once seemed almost infinite, has been constantly narrowed. Already philosophy can throw a bridge across that gap. But inductive science, which builds its own bridges, has not yet spanned the chasm. small though it appear. Until it shall have done so the bridge of organic evolution is not quite complete, yet even as it stands today it is the most stupendous scientific structure of our century.
—Henry Smith Williams, M. D., in Harper's Magazine.

Copper Tempered by Mound Builders.

Ed A. Schloth has received from a friend in Savannah, Ills., a long and small spearhead, a small knife, an awl and a needle taken from one of the prehistoric mounds near that city. The tools are all of tempered copper, and when suspended by a thread ring like steel. They have been hammered out and tempered, and after having been buried in a mound for no one knows how long still retain their temper. The mound builders, who had disappeared from the face of the earth before Columbus discovered this country, knew how to temper copper, an art which no man on earth has now, although many have endeavored for years to discover the process. Such specimens are found in but few of the mounds opened, the implements found being generally of stone. Mr. Schloth has a fine collection of relics of mound builders and of the aborigines of this coast and values these tempered copper articles above them all.—Portland Oregonian.

An Undeveloped Idea.

Some years ago, according to the Boston Transcript, an inventor who had devised a new sleeping car took his plans to Mr. Pullman. The latter, after looking over them, said: "There is an idea there. I will give you $100,000 cash for your patents." The inventor was a poor man, and he would not accept the terms. He said that if the idea was worth $100,000 to Pullman it was worth millions to him. The car was built and proved a financial failure, and it is believed that even to this day the inventor does not know where the "idea" was whose presence Mr. Pullman discerned in the working plans.

The Bloody Meadow.

Tewkesbury, where a famous battle was fought during the war of the roses, is in Gloucestershire, at the confluence of the Avon and the Severn and 180 miles from London. The battle was fought on the Bloody meadow, just outside the modern town, and, according to local tradition, one night in every year on the anniversary of the conflict the adherents of the white and red roses meet and fight the battle over again.

Among the Vosges peasant children born at the new moon are supposed to have tongues better hung than others, while those born at the last quarter have better reasoning powers. A daughter born during the waxing moon is always precocious.

A doctor asserts that the growth of children takes place entirely when they are asleep.

NO FEAR OF STARVATION.

GOVERNMENT HAS ARRANGED FOR FOOD SUPPLY FOR DAWSON CITY.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7.—The Free Press publishes the following to-night: Those who have friends in the Yukon have no occasion to be alarmed for their safety during the winter, so far as the food supply is concerned. The Mounted Police are taking in a large quantity of provisions in anticipation of a shortage at Dawson City, and will reach that place before the end of January. The police are establishing depots at regular intervals along the route from Dyea, and any stragglers on the road who run out of provisions and are unable to travel will doubtless find succor at these places. These posts will also be used as relay stations for mail carriers and government officials. It was decided before Major Walsh and party set out to take a supply of provisions, but the matter was kept quiet in order to prevent poorly equipped people from rushing in at an unfavorable time. The government does not intend to allow any one to starve at Dawson this winter. A regular mail service will be maintained hereafter. The transport service will be in charge of Mr. McGregor, of Brandon.

This Tells Where Health May Be Found,

And that is more important than making money. If your blood is impure, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for you. It cures scrofula, salt rheum, rheumatism, catarrh and all other diseases originating in or promoted by impure blood and low state of the system.

Hood's Pills are easy to take, easy to operate. Cure indigestion, headache.

ALLEGED CUBAN HORRORS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—A despatch to the Herald from Madrid says: A storm of indignation has been provoked here by news of tortures inflicted by the Cuban rebels upon the inhabitants of Guisa, women and children being bound and burned alive. The details are given by the Imparcial, a paper by no means favorable to the present government policy, and the news is now officially confirmed. One of the ministers says that, as far as is known at present, the only crime the unfortunate creatures have been guilty of is that they favored the acceptance of autonomy.

CHARGE OF DARGAI RIDGE.

Bulldogs, hark! Did your courage fail?
Bulldogs, hark! Did your glory pale?
What of the slander that says, "Decayed
And gone to the dogs," since the Light Brigade?
For the blood and bone that humbled
Nap
Twas there again, boys, in Dargai Cap.

Did ye hear the swish of the flying shot?
The roll of the drum and the rattle pot?
The music that rose clear o'er that yell,
And thrilled through the ranks and stirred up hell!
Come, Highland laddie—head up—and
step forth,
A crown of glory—"cock o' the North!"

You cock o' the North, ay, pipe away,
With both stumps gone and you won the day!
You may lean your back against comrades now,
They'll moisten your lips and they'll kiss
your brow;
For they fought like men, and a man may weep
When he lays a man to his last long sleep.

Bulldogs who sleep on the Dargai Ridge,
Fall in, quick march, and over the bridge,
The pipers ahead, and the same old air
To pipe you to heaven and veterans there;
And you'll tell the bullies who humbled
Nap
The glorious story of Dargai Cap,

TRAINING THE CHILDREN.

"John," said Mrs. Wisely to her liege lord the other evening, "I want to have a very frank talk with you. Do you realize that the boys are old enough now to observe and are beginning to form their characters?"

"Of course I do. Great boys."
"Yes, and we want them to be great men. They naturally look up to you, John, more than to anybody else. For their sakes you must be careful in what you do and say. You fell over a chair the other day and used some very improper language. I heard Willie repeat it when he stubbed his toe in the back yard."

"The little rascal! He didn't!" chuckled the father.
"Yes, John, and they pretend to smoke cigars and pour drinks from an imaginary decanter. Can't you set them a better example?"

"Say, little one, I heard Amy playing keep house one afternoon lately. When callers were announced she sent out word that she was not at home. When she did consent to receive any one she combed them down to beat the band before they were admitted. One was an old frump, another was an intolerable bore, and a third better a good deal be at home cleaning house or looking after her children. You couldn't have done it better yourself."

"I see what you mean, sir. No use of rubbing it in. But wait, dear," in a softer voice. "Let's both do better. It's for their sakes, you know."

"I'll go you," and they shook hands.
As John left that evening he slipped up on the front steps and made the air blue. Around the corner he lit his cigar. Mrs. Wisely had some animated gossip with a neighbor. And yet the children seem to thrive."—Detroit Free Press.

A RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

BATHURST, Dec. 10.—What might have been a serious accident occurred on the Gulf Shore railway yesterday afternoon. As the accommodation train from Tracadie was nearing Caraqueet the van or combined passenger and express car left the track and rolled down a steep embankment into the ditch on its side. Fortunately there were not many passengers on the train at the time of the accident and only three received injuries, viz.: Fred Young broken wrist; Con. J. Melvin, slightly injured, and W. R. Welch, slightly injured about the head.
G. E. Day, of St. John, was a passenger on the wrecked car but escaped uninjured. Cause of accident unknown, but it is thought it was a broken wheel.

Catarrh, like scrofula, is a disease of the blood and may be cured by purifying the blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

TURKEY-GREECE TREATY.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The text of the definite treaty of peace between Turkey and Greece, which will be published to-day contains about 2,000 words, including two protocols referring respectively to the commercial convention and consular immunities. The treaty amplifies the preliminary police terms, all the points of which have already been published.

SHOCKED AND FRIGH TENED

Weak, nervous people having heart troubles are easily shocked and frightened. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills fortify the nerves, restore regular action to the heart, and cure every form of heart or nerve trouble. Miss Gladys McMillan, Toronto, says: "Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cured me of nervousness and palpitation. I was so nervous that the least noise would startle me; but am now perfectly well."
