WORSE THAN WAR

Humiliating a Rival.

It is not a mooted question in Persia whether women dress for the eyes of men or those of women, as there only women see women, at parties. In her book, "Through Persia on a Sidesaddle." Miss Sykes, writing of the women of Teheran, the capital of Persia, confesses that even Mohammedan isolation dces not prevent women from being envious of other women, if they are liams' Pink Pills as a cure for rheumatism dressed better than themselves. She writes

I was told that many of the fine ladies would give large sums in the European shops of Teheran for any brocade of silk which struck their fancy and would invited their friends, flaunting the new toilet ostentatiously before them to fire their jealousy

Usually, however, one of the guests would pay her hostess out by buying some more of the same material and company to tea, and the cups would be handed round by a negress adorned in the rich silks with which the former hostess is arrayed.

Later on the slave would dance before the guests. The great lady, who had been invited to be mortified, would be both disappointed and humiliated The lady who had given the party would be pleased at vexing the rival.

Tortoise Shell.

The finest tortoise shell comes from the Indian archipelago and is shipped from Singapore, and much of it is obtained on the Florida coast of America. There are three rows of plates on the back, called "blades" by the fishermen. In the central row are five plates and in each of the others four plates, the latter containing the best material. Besides these, there are 25 small plates round the edges of the shell, known as "feet" or "noses."

The biggest turtle does not furnish more than 16 pounds of tortoise shell. Formerly the undershell was thrown away, being considered worthless, but at present it is very highly valued for its delicacy of coloring. Nowadays a very beautiful imitation of tortoise shell is made of cows' horns

Helen Irving's Tragic Beath.

The tragic story of the beautiful and talented Scottish woman, Helen Irving. is not, perhaps, well known, althoughit has been celebrated in song She had been for some time courted by two gentlemen whose names were Bell and Fleeming Bell told the girl that if he ever found her in Fleeming's company he would kill him She. however, had a strong regard for Fleeming and one day, while walking along the romantic banks of the Kirtle, she observed his rival on the other side of the river among the bushes

Conscious of the danger her lover was in, she passed between him and his enemy, who, firing, shot her dead. Fleeming crossed the river and killed the coward A heap of stones was raised on the place where the brave woman fell. and she was buried in the near churchyard Fleeming. overwhelmed with love , and grief. went abroad. but soon returned and. stretching himself on her grave. expired He was buried by her side.

A Lucky Hairdresser.

The old saying that a man may be a hero to every one but his valet is called to mind by an article in The filustrated London News on "Famous Masters of the Tonsorial Art. ' in which stories are told of Duplan, the hairdresser to Napoleon This astute man made himself so indispensable to the unfortunate Josephine and became so intimately acquainted with the emperor's affairs that he was retained in the service of the imperial family when Josephine was superseded by Marie Louise He cared for the hair of both the emperor and empress, being paid 4,000 francs a year for service to the former and 6,000 for arranging the coiffures of the latter Ultimately he was the recipient of about 40.000 francs a year, his demands being constantly increased because of Napoleon's restriction in refusing to allow the tonsorial artist to treat the hair of any other customer

Gazelle Hunting.

Gazelles in Nubia are hunted by a powerful breed of hounds, in build somewhat beavier than a greybound In spite of being far swifter than the hound, the gazelle falls a victim from the nervons habit of constantly stop ping to look back to see if it is pursued It also expends its strength by taking great bounds in an almost vertical di rection thereby not only losing time. but exhausting itself, so that it is over taken without difficulty -Harper's Weekly brakeman had to climb up to the top of the cars, no matter how fast the train was running, to use the cord or adjust it in case of mishap. An old engineer of the Erie road tells how the bell cord was invented:

Sometimes the conductor wished to stop a train between stations, but as there was no means of letting the engineer know his wishes except by sending word by a brakeman, who had to climb and scramble over a dozen freight cars before he could attract the engineer's attention, there was often a vexatious delay

"Pappy" Ayres, the pioneer Erie conductor, hit upon an expedient for signaling to the engineer He tied a stick of wood to a long rope, hung the stick in the engine cab and carried the rope over the car tops to the rear of the train. His plan was to pull the rope and rattle the stick when he wished the train stopped.

The engineer of Conductor Ayres' train was conservative-"sulky," the conductor called him-and did not see fit to recognize such an innovation.

"Why didn't you stop the train when I pulled that rope?" thundered the conductor after a flagrant refusal to notice the stick of wood signal.

" 'Cause no one told me to stop it." was the engineer's surly answer.

"Well, I tell you to stop it hereafter when I pull on that stick of wood." said the conductor. "If you don't"- He turned away muttering some sort of threat The very next run the conductor's vig orous pull on the rope was unheeded by the engineer. At the close of the day Conductor Ayres met the engineer with the words

'See here! I've stood all the nonsense I'm going to! Just come out here, and I'll give you a good licking!

There was fire in his eye, and the en gineer, noting it. turned mild at once.

'All right," he answered amiably 'I'm willing to wrastle with ye, an if ye can throw me I'll notice any signal, if 'tain't more'n a bumblebee's buzzin, pervided ye can harness him so's to buzz when ye want the train stopped.

A wrestling match followed, in which "Pappy" laid the engineer low The rope and stick worked to a charm after that and soon led to the introduction of the now universal bell and cord system of sig naling

The Sand Desert of India.

ENGLISH The sand ridges or dhoras of the Indian desert spring from low cross ridges or sad dles, like closed fingers from the knuckles of the back of the hand, but in reverse and parallel directions. That is to say, the ridges face both northeast and southwest SPAVIN covering a longitudinal distance of one to two miles, when they are again repeated in a similar formation Their cross slopes average two to one and are well covered with desert grasses and bushes, an occasional acacia or rohira tree breaking the monotony of the landscape. This peculiar LINIMENT formation ends abruptly at the sandstone cliffs of Sata, about 1,000 feet above sea level, which form a barrier to their farther extension eastward When seen for the first time from these heights, they have a confused, wavelike appearance, and it is only ultimately discovered that they form in plan parallel but tapering ridges. With the exception of the field rat, animal life is absent, and the old trade route is mostly indicated by the skeletons of camels which dot the track at short intervals .-- C. H. Croudace, in Engineering Magazine

Perils of a Painter's Trade.

In Judge Hall's police court the other day a unique defense was offered by a painter who had been brought to the station in a helpless state of intoxication. "I wasn't drunk, your honor," he persisted. "I was just dizzy, that's all. I'd been paintin a barber pole."-Chicago Record.
