WEAK, FAINT FEELINGS.

Serious Conditions that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can Readily Cure.

One of the indications of serious heart trouble is the sensation of weakness or faintness that comes on at times.

Sometimes it is simply a dizzy feeling that passes off, or it may be a state of unconsciousness with hands and feet cold and countenance ghastly pale.

These symptoms indicate a weakened heart. They are unmistakable evidences of the engine of life breaking down.

Now there's only one reliable remedy for restoring strength and vitality to weakened hearts and relieving all the distressing symptoms. It is Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

The case of Mrs. A. Stratton, Fredericton, N.B., amply proves this. Here is her statement:

"I suffered very much from an impoverished condition of the blood, coupled with extreme nervousness. A dizzy sensation on arising quickly or coming down stairs, often troubled me, and my breath was so short that I could not walk up stairs. The least exertion caused my heart to flutter and palpitate violently, and I sometimes felt a smothering sensation on going to sleep.

I doctored back and forth for my weakness, but I got no relief from any medicine until I tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I can say that they helped me wonderfully. Sometimes my face and arms would swell and puff, but all these troubles speedily yielded to the restoring influences of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am now strong and well. I did not use them long until I regained the blessing of healthful, refreshing sleep and it will always be a pleasure to me to recommend them to others."

A PRIEST WILL CHALLENGE.

Word comes from St. John's Nfld., that the next challenge for the American's Cup will probably be a Roman Catholic priest. Undoubtedly by the unvarying failures which have met the efforts of all his predecessors, the Rev. P. J. O'Brien, rector of St. Patrick's church, St. John's Nfld., expects to restore to British soil the famous cup, the blue ribbon trophy of yachting, which the gallant American captured in 1851. Father O'Brien's confidence is based on the fact that he has discovered a new principle of marine architecture which will be utilized in building the challenger and which he confidently believes will eventually revolutionize the existing methods of constructing fast and safe vessels of all types, both sailing and steam. Father O'Brien has built several boats and his theories have been well tested. One yacht built by him is in use in the West Indies, and it is said to be something like a flying Dutchman alongside the ordinary style of yachts.

TREATMENT OF NOSE BLEED.

Epliatixis, or "nose bleed" is an affliction to which some individuals are prone. As it is frequently merely an effort on the part of nature to relieve the system of a surplus amount of blood, it should not be checked unless the hemorrhage becomes excessive. One of the first measures to be employed for that means is the elevation of the head and arms. Next press the upper lip firmly against the base of the nose or nostrils. Snuffing up the fine salt, tannin or powdered alum is effective, or a solution may be made of either and syringed into the nasal cavity, likewise common lemon juice or vinegar, remembering to have the patient keep his mouth open to permit the escape of the fluid. Do not allow him to bend over a basin. Application of ice-cold compresses to the back of the neck and the bridge of the nose are useful, and rendered more so by employing a very hot foot bath at the same time.

Mrs. E. W. Henck, daughter of Mr. Angus Doherty, Red Head, has made her home in Maryland, U. S., where her husband is engaged in agriculture, and is also a musician of considerable ability. When Mrs. Henck was home on a visit, about a year ago, she had with her two bright intelligent boys. The little fellows soon acquired a knowledge of the Gaelic language, and took it with them to their Maryland home, where they still keep it up and are a wonder to those around them.—Baddeck Telephone.

AGRICULTURE

PREPARE SMALL FRUITS FOR WINTER.

The fruit grower must be a willing worker, and to be successful he must be a pusher and ever ready to take time by the forelock. He must be in advance, rather than behind with the work. The mulch for the strawberries and compost for raspberries, blackberries, currants, gooseberries and Lucretia dewberries should now be ready near the garden. As soon as the ground is frozen hard enough to bear up the horses and wagon put the mulch on the strawberry bed. Spread evenly and thickly enough to give good shape to the plants. Do not undertake to cover deep enough to prevent freezing, for if this is done the wet snows will pack the mulch and smother the plants. Good judgment is required here.

Straw of any kind, corn stalks, with or without the blades, leaves, evergreen boughs, swamp grass or any coarse material that is free of seed will answer. This mulch should be left on the ground until all danger of freezing is over. Just before the crowns open, the mulch should be raked off the plants to the space between the rows. If the soil is light and loamy the mulch may be parted over the plants and left in that way to prevent the earth from being splashed upon the fruit.

For other lines of small fruit, compost is preferred to strawed mulch, as the latter invites mice which will gnaw the canes and in jure the plants. The compost may be scattered broadcast over the entire surface as the condition of the ground demands, or be placed around the hills. In either case the compost should be worked into the soil by means of a shallow cultivator as early as the ground is in condition for work. To do a perfect job the surface should be worked until thoroughly fined. Working should be repeated at intervals of six and eight days until raspberries and blackberries are turning red. Small fruits cannot be successfully grown without thorough cultivation. When the grower becomes experienced, the work in the small garden will be considered more of a pleasure than a task.

"Do not try to whip a young horse into submission," says a writer in the Rural Home. "He does not know what you want him to do, and if the whip is used too freely, the consequence will likely be a wild or baulky horse. Use more kindness and less whip, it is easier for both horse and master. A good way to break a colt is to drive him into a stall, get a good halter and walk in by him, speak kindly and in a few minutes you will be able to slip the halter over his head. Lead him around every day for two or three days, then put a bridle on, and after he gets used to the bit, put harness on. Be sure your harness fits well. Give him a little time to wonder what those strange feeling straps are for, and to find they will not hurt him, then hitch to a light cart, and with the exception of being awkward, he will pull like an old horse. Always be sure your collar fits; then there will be no sore shoulders. Do not overload, and there will be no baulking. Always stop at the foot of a hill when you have a heavy load, then a minute at the top; this gives the horses time to recover their breath and they will pull better. Think how you would like to be hurried up a long hill, drawing a heavy load, and someone shouting and whipping you. In fact, put yourself in the horse's place; you would not like it of course; neither does the horse. Why should blows and curses play so large a part in the handling of horses, when they are so amenable to kindness and so ready to receive gentle instruction?"

SORROW ON THE SEA.

CAPT. HARE, H. M. S. "EURYDICE"

"I stood on the shore of the beautiful sea, As the billows were roaming wild and free; Onward they came with unfailing force, Then backward turned in their restless course;

Ever and ever sounded their roar Foaming and dashing against the shore; Ever and ever they rose and fell, With heaving and sighing and mighty swell,

And deep seemed calling aloud to deep, Lest the murmuring waves should drop to sleep; In summer and winter, by night and by day,

Thro' cloud and sunshine holding their way; Oh! when shall the ocean's troubled breast Calmly and quickly sink into rest?

Oh! when shall the waves' wild murmuring cease, And the mighty waters be hushed into peace!

"It cannot be quiet—it cannot rest, There must be heaving on ocean's breast. The tide must ebb and the tide must flow, Whilst the changing seasons come and go. Still from the depths of that hidden store There are treasures tossed up along the shore;

Tossed by the billows—then seized again—Carried away by the rushing main. O strangely glorious and beautiful sea! Sounding for ever mysteriously, Why are thy billows still rolling on? With their wild and sad and musical tone? Why is there never repose for thee? Why slumberest thou not, Oh, mighty sea!

"Then the ocean's voice I seemed to hear, Mournfully, solemnly, sounding near, Like a wail sent up from the caves below, Fraught with dark memories of human woe,

Telling of loved ones buried there, Of the dying shriek, of the dying prayer: Telling of hearts still watching in vain For those who shall never come again; Of the widow's groan, the orphan's cry, And the mother's speechless agony. Oh, no, the ocean can never rest With such secrets hidden within its breast. There is sorrow written upon the sea, And dark and stormy its waves must be; It cannot be quiet, it cannot sleep, That dark, relentless, and stormy deep.

"But a day will come—a blessed day, When earthly sorrow shall pass away, When the hour of anguish shall turn to peace, And even the roar of the waves shall cease. Then out from its deepest and darkest bed, Old ocean shall render up her dead, And freed from the weight of human woes, Shall quietly sink in her last repose. No sorrow shall ever be written then, On the depths of the sea or the hearts of men,

But Heaven and earth renewed shall shine, Still clothed in glory and light divine. Then where shall the billows of ocean be? Gone! for in Heaven shall be "no more sea."

'Tis a bright and beautiful thing of earth, That cannot share in the soul's new birth; 'Tis a life of murmuring, and tossing, and spray, And at resting time must pass away.

"But, Oh! thou glorious and beautiful sea, There is health and joy, and blessing in thee; Solemnly, sweetly, I hear thy voice, Bidding me weep, and yet rejoice— Weep for the loved ones buried beneath, Rejoice in Him who has conquered death; Weep for the sorrowing and tempest tossed, Rejoice in him who has saved the lost; Weep for the sin, the sorrow, and strife, And rejoice in the hope of eternal life."
